Committee to Rule on Exemptions.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.
President Roosevelt's 12th message to congress will be delivered at 1 p. m. [Chicago time] today. A summary of the message will be broadcast at 9 p. m. by the President over all radio networks. Details on page 5.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—Mobilization Director Byrnes today in effect ordered the cancellation of all conventions and trade shows to be attended by more than 50 persons unless approved by a special government committee as necessary to the war. Conventions scheduled after Feb. 1 will be affected. The action is aimed at cutting down nonessential travel.

Byrnes asserted the move was approved by President Roosevelt, who also approved the naming of ODT Director J. M. Johnson to head the special government committee comprising representatives of the war production board, war man power commission, army and navy.

Has Force of Order.

This group will receive and pass upon applications for gatherings of more than 50 persons, determining if these meetings are sufficiently vital to the war to warrant the use of transportation and other services.

While the ban on conventions was worded as an "appeal," it has the force of an order because of the numerous government enforcement actions which could be taken in cases of noncompliance.

Made Earlier Appeal.

Byrnes made a similar "appeal" last month when he cracked down on the racing industry in an effort to conserve transportation, man power, communications, and other services. All race tracks closed Wednesday, as he requested. The convention restriction had been expected as Byrnes' next move to strengthen the role of the home front in the war.

Byrnes said he realized some meetings were desirable in the best interests of the war, but he believed even these could be "much fewer" in number and "much smaller" than at present. He urged that gatherings of less than 50 be held to a minimum.

Asks Federal Employe Check.

Byrnes also said he is asking heads of all government agencies to examine travel of federal employes with a view to reducing such trips "to the minimum consistent with their responsibilities."

He added he was so certain his request would receive public support that he has "taken no measures to determine government enforcement procedures which might be instituted."

Byrnes asserted the President told him that even invitations to the inaugural ceremonies Jan. 20 have been restricted "as never before" because of war time burdens on transportation and housing. Most of the invitations will go to congressmen and government officials already in Washington, he said.

EXPECTS 200,000 HERE.

William J. Hennessy, executive vice president of the Chicago Convention Bureau, Inc., said last night that Mobilization Director Byrnes' appeal for cancellation of conventions "certainly will have its effect on the entire country." He believed, however, that the 300 conventions scheduled for Chicago in 1945 would be sanctioned as important to the war. These meetings are expected to bring 200,000 delegates, compared with about a million who attended an average of 850 conventions in Chicago in normal years.

Draft Coercion Laid to Army in Ward Reply

Charging that the army has threatened to cause the immediate draft of employes who ignore its commands, Montgomery Ward & Co. hit back yesterday against the army's recent seizure of company properties here and in six other cities under Presidential order.

The counter-attack was delivered in a 20 page answer, accompanied by 21 affidavits, filed in federal District court in reply to the government's suit for a declaratory judgment and a temporary injunction against the big mail order house.

Charges Violation of Constitution.

In other principal contentions, Ward's asserted that:

1. The government is endeavoring by threat and intimidation to force Sewell L. Avery, chairman, and 15 other executives into involuntary service.
2. The government, in addition to the draft pressure, has threatened criminal action against officers and employes for refusing to work for the government.
3. President Roosevelt's seizure order violates the Constitution and that the war labor board orders, which it apparently seeks to support, are unlawful.

Government Charges Denied.

Thruout their many pages, both formal answer and affidavits not only accuse the government agents of illegal acts, but also deny the government's charges against the company that Ward's, by refusing to obey directives of the war labor board to grant certain rights to a CIO union, has inspired strikes and impaired the nation's war production program.

In general, the legality of the military seizure and the Presidential order is challenged by Ward's, with the added contention that even the government must have had doubts else it would not have started the court action. It is asserted that the government is violating the fourth amendment to the Constitution, guaranteeing security of the people in their persons, houses, papers, and effects against unreasonable search and seizure, and also the fifth amendment guaranteeing that no one shall be deprived of life, liberty, or property without due process of law.

Ward's Asks Judgment.

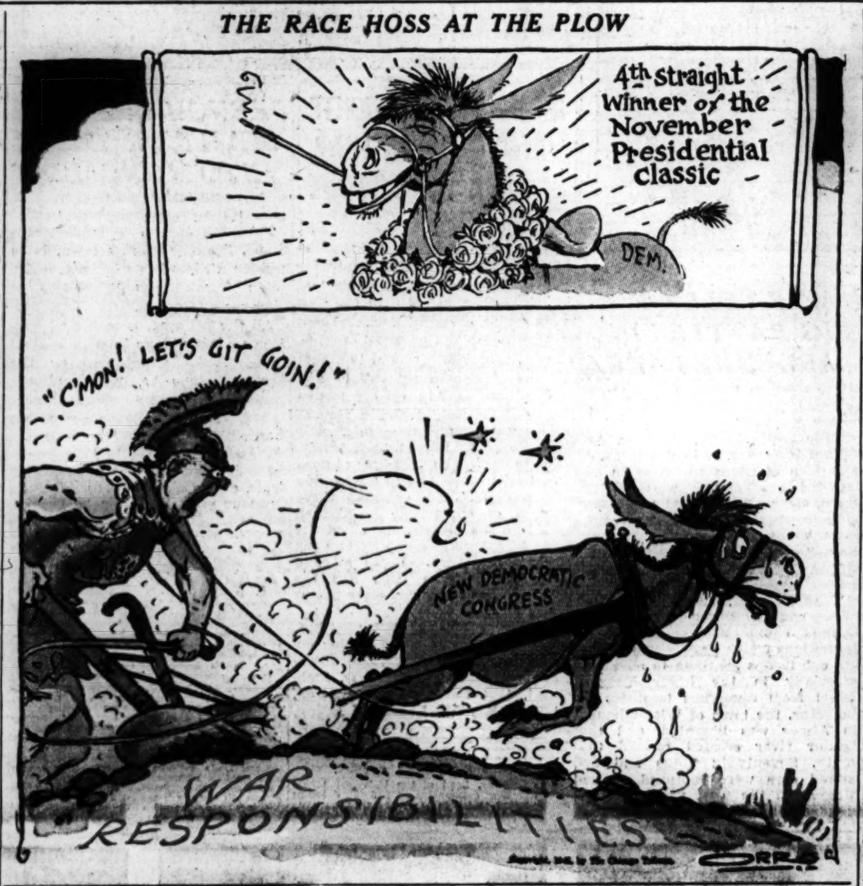

Ward's asks the court for a judgment "declaring that the United States of America has no lawful right to the possession of the properties," and asks also that the President's seizure order "be declared void and illegal," and the resultant seizures also "declared to be in violation of the fourth and fifth amendments to the Constitution."

Hearings on the government's motion for an injunction will be opened at 10 a. m. Monday before Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan, and its importance is attested by the disclosure that Solicitor General Charles Fahy personally will direct the government's presentation.

Of the numerous allegations contained in Ward's affidavits and answer, that dealing with the draft threats commanded most attention. The answer proper declared that "in furtherance of their unlawful seizure, the said agents [army officers] have threatened to cause the

YANKS SHUT UP SUPER SNORER IN 38 MAN HUT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Pvt. Raymond J. Rodriguez, 30, of Trenton, N. J., sleeps tonight in lonely isolation in a 38 man hut at a southern England air base, because he's probably the loudest snoring soldier in the European theater of operations, the Daily Express said.

Rodriguez himself was said to have admitted that for nearly nine months, before the hut became available, he had to sleep outdoors or in washrooms because none of his colleagues could get any shut eye while he buzzed away at the top of his nose. Even on leave, the private moaned, he can't find accommodations in Red Cross clubs.

En route to England, Rodriguez complained, he had to sleep in a washroom all the way, and when he was hospitalized, his cot nightly was wheeled into an empty room so other patients could sleep.

Report ELAS Flee from Athens

ATHENS, Greece, Jan. 5 (AP).—The British reported today highly successful operations against the ELAS, who have been informed by the new Greek government of Gen. Nicholas Plastiras that fighting must cease before parleys on political differences can begin.

[The BBC correspondent in Athens reported that organized fighting ceased in Athens and Piraeus today, and that the ELAS have apparently withdrawn from the Greek capital. "British columns and patrols which ranged in northern Athens, the last area held by the ELAS, met with no opposition and found nothing but an occasional sniper," his broadcast said.]

British troops have succeeded in clearing a big section west of Omonia square held by the ELAS, the armed militia of the left wing EAM. The British captured 894 prisoners and among objectives in northern and western Athens seized the gutted Averoff prison.

GUNS FIRE LEAFLETS

BY CLAY GOWRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Greece, Jan. 4 [Delayed].—British artillery, following a practice perfected in the desert war in Africa, this morning fired propaganda instead of high explosives into ELAS positions. Opening up at 7 a. m., 25 pounders poured 300 shells loaded with leaflets into the guerrilla held areas of north Athens and in the northern suburbs.

But guns hurled more than leaflets at the ELAS. Last night important roads leading into the city from the north were pommeled by a total of 1,000 real shells to harass any attempted transport movement.

Albany Police Chief Is Slain by Bodyguard

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 5 [Special].—A reprimand for excessive drinking was reported tonight to have preceded the fatal shooting at police headquarters this afternoon of Police Chief William J. Fitzpatrick, 57, by Detective John W. McElveney, 48, who had been Fitzpatrick's bodyguard, friend, and confidant.

A link between the slaying and the grand jury investigation of crime in Albany county at first was suspected. But Special Prosecutor George P. Monaghan, in charge of the latter inquiry, who hurried here from New York City, said he had ascertained they apparently had no connection.

Gives Account of Slaying.

Chief Fitzpatrick was in his office with Robert Parr, 50, owner of the Club Eagle, a tavern and restaurant, and a friend of both Fitzpatrick and McElveney.

The detective, who had been off duty since New Year's day, having reported sick, arrived half an hour after Parr and went to his chief's office.

Exchange Angry Words.

Bursting in while the other two men were talking, McElveney exchanged angry words with Fitzpatrick. In the midst of their discussion, the detective whipped out his .38 caliber service revolver and shot Fitzpatrick thru the left temple before the chief could raise his hands.

A moment later he strode out of the office, handed his pistol to Police Clerk Robert Seward, and said: "Here's the gun!" He was taken into custody and made a confession that was corroborated by Parr, who was held as a material witness.

Report Drinking Issue.

District Atty. Erway said a motive had been established but that it would be "untimely" to disclose it now. He explained that at the time of the shooting McElveney was being questioned by his chief about "a police matter," but contended there was no connnection between the visits of the detective and Parr to the chief's office.

Reports given credence by those who knew the two men were that Chief Fitzpatrick had called in Parr to remonstrate with him for permitting McElveney to drink heavily since New Year's in his bar. According to this version, the detective received a "dressing down" from his chief just before the shooting.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5 (AP).—Gen. Marshall said today that the allied counter-offensive against the northern flank of the German bulge in Belgium "is just getting started."

He made the statement as he left the White House, accompanied by Gen. Arnold, chief of army air forces.

The army chief of staff told reporters that on the second night of the German offensive last month Field Marshal Montgomery took command of armies on the northern flank. That offensive began Dec. 16.

Montgomery organized the counter-offensive on that side, while on the south another was begun, largely by the forces of Lt. Gen. Patton under the group command of Lt. Gen. Bradley.

"The salient was sticking out and we were split in the middle," Marshall said, "and there was a normal division there. One man took one side, one the other. The fact that we'd done it we didn't want to convey to the Germans."

Marshall and Arnold were at the White House for presentation by President Roosevelt of a distinguished service medal to the widow of the late Field Marshal John Dill.

FIGHT 7TH ARMY 9 MILES FROM STRASBOURG

PARIS, Jan. 5 (AP).—The second big German offensive in three weeks, stabbing 15 miles into northeastern France, bumped into firm resistance by the United States 7th army today. American and British troops to the north fought savagely to squeeze the Nazis out of their Belgian salient.

Field Marshal Montgomery—now disclosed as commanding the four allied armies north of the Belgian bulge—sent his British 2d army into the battle alongside the American 1st in a concerted drive that had advanced up to 2½ miles against the northern flank of the enemy's original break-thru.

The Germans fought fiercely against this advance and on their southern flank forced the United States 3d army to withdraw one to two miles under the pressure of at least 21 counter-attacks in two days. The withdrawal was described as a line shortening operation to give the Americans a better tactical position.

Hurl Foe from Wingen.

The new German drive south of the Maginot fortress of Bitche, where the 7th army has been pounded back 15 miles in five days, finally was stunted at the point of the Nazis' deepest penetration when Lt. Gen. Patch's doughboys threw out enemy troops who had infiltrated into the highway town of Wingen, nine and one-half miles south of Bitche and 12 miles north of Saverne.

By nightfall all Germans except a few snipers had been cleared from Wingen, Associated Press Correspondent Robert Wilson said, preventing the Germans from enlarging their salient into the northern Vosges mountains. This success kept open the important Sarreguemines-Hagenau highway—main east-west route to the open plain.

However, the Germans posed a new threat by making a crossing of the Rhine river in battalion strength nine miles north of the French city of Strasbourg.

Battle in Two Towns.

The Nazis crossed the river in barges and motorboats at Gambsheim and entered Offendorf, fighting American troops in both towns. But the extent of their attack was not immediately known. Prisoners were found to carry rations for only one day and seemed to have little

SUPREME HDQ. ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, Jan. 5 (AP).—British Field Marshal Montgomery has been commanding the United States 1st and 9th armies and all forces north of the German bulge into Belgium for more than two weeks, supreme headquarters disclosed today. Lt. Gen. Bradley of the United States commands forces only on the southern flank of the bulge.

It also was disclosed that Prime Minister Churchill had returned to London today after conferring with Gen. Eisenhower, supreme allied commander, Montgomery, and Gen. De Gaulle at Eisenhower's headquarters on Wednesday.

This session presumably determined greater participation by the French army on the western front. Churchill and Eisenhower were said to have assured De Gaulle that the French would be helped to form a large army. No details were disclosed officially by London or supreme headquarters.

Eisenhower Orders Shift.

The quick change of commands on the western front was ordered by Eisenhower when the German offensive threatened to split the allies in two.

Montgomery personally took command in the north at midnight Dec. 20 and went to the front to direct American blows that halted the German plunge toward Liege, a field dispatch from Wes Gallagher, an Associated Press correspondent, said.

The British 2d and Canadian 1st armies already were under his direction, so Montgomery now is leading four armies.

Bradley Directs 3d Army.

Bradley—whose 12th army group had comprised the American 1st, 9th, and 3d armies—took the southern command, directing the 3d army's assault northward against the German penetration. Bradley's new command also includes one division of the United States 7th army.

Two American air groups also come under Montgomery's over-all command by the shift. He and Bradley both still are directly responsible to Eisenhower.

While Gallagher said Montgomery took over on Dec. 20-21 during the most critical stage, Gen. Marshall in Washington said the British leader assumed charge on the second night of the German offensive, which was launched Dec. 16.

Supreme headquarter's announcement said:

"When the German penetration thru the Ardennes created two fronts, one substantially facing north and the other south, by instant agreement of all concerned that portion of the front facing south was placed under command of Field Marshal Montgomery and that facing north under command of Gen. Bradley."

By this change, there still would

M'Arthur Invasion Surprises Japs.

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HDQ., Philippines, Jan. 6 [Saturday].—American soldiers landed on Marinduque Island Wednesday [Philippine time] in a new step to liberate Luzon, Gen. MacArthur announced today. The invasion caught the Japs by surprise. They offered no opposition.

Marinduque, about 20 by 25 miles in size, is only 12 miles south of the Tayabas peninsula of Luzon, principal Philippine island. The Americans went ashore in undisclosed strength at Buenavista on the southwest coast of Marinduque. Marinduque is 100 miles southeast of Manila and 20 miles east of Mindoro Island, which was invaded by the Americans on Dec. 15.

Gain Control of Sea.

"Our ground forces supported by naval and air elements have occupied Marinduque," Gen. MacArthur's bulletin said. "Thru seizure of this island we gained control of the Sibuyan sea and established direct contact with the southern coast of Luzon."

A headquarters spokesman said the interior of the mountainous island is virtually impassable. A highway runs 15 miles north and south along the beach on the west coast. The principal towns are Boac on the western coast, and Santa Cruz on the northeastern coast. There are few villages of any size in the interior.

Marinduque is the seventh island of the Philippines on which American forces have landed in the two and a half months' campaign to liberate the archipelago. It is the third within long range gun distance of Luzon. The nearest points on Mindoro and Samar are less than 15 miles from southern Luzon.

Hit Jap Airdromes.

Other islands which previously felt the tread of American soldiers are Leyte, Panaon, Dinagat, and Homonhon.

The day of the landing also saw American planes hitting hard at Japanese airdromes thruout the Philippines and other Southwest Pacific islands.

Mitchells and Liberators heavily bombed Clark field's airdromes on Luzon in daylight Thursday, destroying 30 parked planes. A single enemy plane over Clark field was the first enemy attempt at interception since Jan. 1.

A force of Liberators and P-40 fighter planes hit Limbones Island in Manila bay in daylight on Wednesday.

Japs Raid Mindoro.

American heavy bombers attacked two airdromes near Davao on Mindanao. Buildings were destroyed and two Japanese fighters were hit on the ground.

The Japanese struck back at American installations on Mindoro. American night fighters and anti-aircraft defenses shot down four enemy planes.

"Very few bombs were dropped but we sustained some damage," the bulletin said.

On Leyte American troops killed 301 more Japanese in mopping up operations. Several of the enemy were captured.

[The Tokyo radio quoted an imperial bulletin as saying Japanese planes "sank one aircraft carrier and two battleships or cruisers" in the Sulu sea south of Mindoro Thursday evening.]

Iwo Island Struck Twice.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, Jan. 5 (AP).—Adm. Nimitz today announced the 27th and 28th successive daily aerial strikes at Iwo Island, Japanese air base in the Volcano group.

Continuance of the offensive against Iwo, on the B-29 route from Saipan to Japan, was reported for Tuesday and Wednesday as well as bomber attacks on Marcus Island, 695 miles east of Iwo and 727 miles northeast of Saipan.

U. S. Carriers Raid China Coast

ABOARD ADM. McCAIN'S CARRIER FORCE FLAGSHIP OFF FORMOSA, Jan. 4 [East Longitude Time] (AP).—With the green pastures and rice fields of China as a background, American naval flyers today [Wednesday, United States time] explored for the first time 500 miles of Asiatic coast from Foochow southward almost to Hongkong seeking Japanese shipping, while other planes struck for the second day at Formosa and Okinawa.

Pilots returning to their carriers described how China's mainland looked to them after seeing only islands during the three years the navy has been fighting its way across the Pacific.

Wisconsin Pilot on Raid.

"I thought I could even smell chop suey," said Pilot Lt. Daniels Kalus of Cudahy, Wis., after bringing his Hellcat fighter plane back from a long flight down the Chinese coast.

Pilots said they could easily have flown on inland to American bases in China, refueled and shuttled back to their carriers. Despite thick weather, which cut down visibility both yesterday and today, carrier planes obtained fair results in strikes on shipping as well as on the Formosa and Okinawa targets.

In the two days of attacks at Formosa and Okinawa, at least 32 enemy planes have been shot down, 116 more wiped out by fire on the ground and 50 damaged. A total of 27 ships have been sunk, including a 10,000 ton transport, and more than 50 other vessels, including three warships, damaged.

Attack Formosa Bases.

Reports for the second day's sweeps showed five enemy planes shot out of the air, 42 burned on the ground, and 29 others damaged, largely in attacks on the Giran airdrome and Tamesui seaplane base along Formosa's west coast.

Ten cargo ships were sunk. Added to yesterday's this brought the two day total to 27. Seventeen were damaged, and strafing runs were made on a destroyer, a cargo ship, and one smaller craft.

Thirty-five ships were damaged in yesterday's strikes.

More than 200 planes were spotted around Heito airdrome on southwestern Formosa alone, and many others were observed on various fields, but a low ceiling hampered operations and only a part of the targets were destroyed.

[Tokyo radio said Thursday that 900 carrier planes, aided by 40 China based Super Fortresses, hit the islands for 1½ hours Tuesday and Wednesday, United States time.]

NAZIS RECROSS RHINE NORTH OF STRASBOURG

7th Army Battles for Two River Towns.

of these units pushed west toward Hoerdt and Weyersheim, four to six miles from the Rhine. American Thunderbolt planes blasted the area where the crossings were made last night and today.

Fear swept thru Strasbourg as the struggle raged here and other enemy forces lashed out against the French lines and drove into Neunkirch, 19 miles south of the city.

Once more refugees streamed out on the highways west of Strasbourg, fearful that the Germans again were about to overrun Alsace, and French flags came down inside the city, a civil affairs officer said.

Big Battles Rage.

Once more Field Marshal Von Rundstedt had struck at a critical point, for should he capture and hold Saverne gap the United States 7th army and French units would be caught between these forces and German troops firmly entrenched around Colmar in southern Alsace.

Farther east the Germans were pressing close behind 7th army units withdrawing back on to the plain from the Wissembourg gap.

Lt. Gen. Devers, 6th army group commander, who in an order of the day yesterday reported that the two armies had been forced to pause to regroup, called on his troops to smash back the enemy.

Gain on 21 Mile Front.

The British 2d army's tanks and infantry moved in on the west flank of the 1st army yesterday and today they were driving south shoulder to shoulder on a 21-mile front.

German resistance stiffened south of the pivotal American position of Grandmenil. Heavy fighting swirled around Odeigne, three miles south of Grandmenil. A front dispatch said 53 enemy tanks had been knocked out on the northern flank in the last 24 hours.

On the east of this front, the doughboys were nearing high hills controling a series of road junctions leading west from Vielsalm, seven miles south of the American anchor at Stavelot.

Battle for Road Towns.

One column reached the village of Waha, a mile south of Marche at the northwest tip of the German positions. In gains of nearly a mile and a half other Tommies neared Rendeux, barely four miles from La Roche, a road center nine miles southwest of the allied northern pivot of Grandmenil.

On the western end of the bulge, the British assaulted the Germans at the outskirts of newly captured Wavreille and Bure, two and five miles, respectively, south of Rochefort.

West of Rochefort, mop-up squads were uncovering the size of the German debacle in Von Rundstedt's attempt to press to the Meuse river. They found 81 tanks, 405 vehicles, and 81 guns knocked out or abandoned.

To the east, the 1st army ground on south another mile for total gains of up to five miles in its offensive now three days old.

Doughboys after a rocking street battle seized Arbrefontaine, eight miles east of Grandmenil, and Malempre, three miles east, battering back German counter-attacks in the woods en route.

Withdraw Near Bastogne.

Lt. Gen. Patton's 3d army on the south ground out a one mile gain west of Bastogne after beating off at least 18 counter-attacks in 24 hours up to early today.

A one to two mile withdrawal on a three mile sector from the area of Michamps, four miles northeast of Bastogne, to near Wardin, three miles southeast, was made, however, by the 3d army's armor in what was described as an orderly line, shortening operation.

A front dispatch said the Americans took up strong defense positions on high ground along a curving front two to two and a half miles outside Bastogne. The move reduced their wedge line from six and a half to three and a half miles in the face of a heavy German concentration.

The concerted push of the 3d army from the south still was stopped by the fury of German counter-attacks along the sector of the 12 mile west waist of the Belgian bulge, but a one mile gain was scored near Hubermont, six miles west of Bastogne.

German Forces Strike Toward City of Strasbourg—1st Army Advances as 3d Army Yields Ground

Push Back Six Allied Divisions, Nazis Say.

LONDON, Jan. 5 (AP). — The Germans declared tonight that their offensive in northeastern France had pushed back six American and French divisions and pierced the Maginot line on a 25 mile line extending on both sides of Bitche.

Berlin broadcasts said that United States 1st army attacks on the north side of the Nazi bulge in Belgium had gained ground but failed to puncture Nazi defenses, and that the United States 3d army's punches on the southern side of the bulge had been stopped cold.

Predict Bigger Battles.

Nazi radio commentators predicted that the still-fluid struggle in Belgium would become one of the greatest of the war, increasing in violence as both sides attempt a decisive breakthru soon.

On the northeastern French front, Berlin said, French army units were thrown in hurriedly, weakening the allied grip on upper Alsace to bolster thin American 7th army lines before the Saverne gap, key to Strasbourg.

Nazi commentator Gunther Weber, declaring that the Germans "broke thru" the Maginot line on a front of at least 25 miles, said that the most advanced Nazi spearhead was reported to be 20 miles south of the German border after some of the heaviest fighting of the war.

Claim Special Weapons Used.

"The Germans attacked pillboxes and underground fortifications occupied by Americans with the most modern special sapper weapons, again demonstrating their superiority in pillbox fighting," Weber said.

The German news agency Transocean said that six American and French divisions plus units withdrawn from the upper Vosges were attempting to halt the German push between the Saar and the Rhine.

NEW U. S. SECRET GUN SHATTERS GERMAN BLOWS IN BELGIUM

BEFFE SECTOR, Belgium, Jan. 5 (AP).—A new secret American artillery weapon, used on a large scale on the western front for the first time, shattered Nazi counter-attacks today trying to halt the United States 1st army drive southward in the Belgium bulge. As a result, the snow in this area was blanketed with Nazi dead.

Field Marshal Von Rundstedt reacted violently to the American effort digging into his salient east and west of Beffe—a rubble heap that was once a town. He pushed in four counter-attacks in four hours. The new American artillery invention cut the attackers to ribbons.

Details of this new secret weapon were held up for reasons of security but it was something the United States navy had developed.

Allies Dissolve Economic Mission in North Africa

ALGIERS, Jan. 4 [Delayed]—(AP).—Dissolution of the British-American joint economic mission in North Africa was announced today, but the members are expected to remain as attaches at their respective consulates.

NAZIS TELL OF BIG BATTLES IN ARDENNES AREA

The German Friday war bulletin as broadcast by Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press:

"The battle in the northern Ardennes increased in fury Thursday. American divisions which again attempted a breakthru were struck again, after slight initial successes, in concentrated fire of all weapons. In the Bastogne area our tank formations are maintaining their strong pressure. Enemy attacks failed.

"The front between Sarreguemines and the Rhine is in motion. Despite counter-attacks by enemy formations which have been brought up, our troops continue to advance, especially in the lower Vosges. Apart from numerous localities in Lorraine, the town of Wissembourg in Alsace was liberated, and the Lauter river crossed toward the south. Seventy-six tanks and armored cars were captured or destroyed in the west yesterday. A great amount of guns and war material also has been captured."

INDIANA YANK FIGHTS INTO GERMAN TRAP, THEN LEADS 20 OUT

WITH U. S. 90TH DIVISION, Jan. 5 (AP).—Trapped inside a Siegfried line pillbox with 20 other Yanks for 72 hours, Pvt. James R. Pfleger of Muncie, Ind., sneaked thru the Germans under cover of darkness and engineered his comrades' rescue. The first night Pfleger and 10 others left the pillbox to get rations and ammunition. When they returned the Germans had thrown a ring of infantry around the box, but Pfleger's party fought back inside.

On the third day, Pfleger slipped thru the German line to a battalion commander. Then, carrying three satchels of explosives, he dashed back into the pillbox, explained the route of escape and one by one the Yanks sifted thru. When all had gone, Pfleger lit a fuse, fled the box, and a few minutes later it was a pile of rubble.

Pfleger is now a staff sergeant. Among the Yanks saved by his exploit are Eugene Santora, 9110 Greenwood av., Chicago; Albin D. Ziabcinski, 1124 Darrow av., Evanston, Ill., and Roy W. Bleisch, Lansing, Mich.

FRENCH MAKING MARTYR TOWN INTO MONUMENT

BY ROBERT SAGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 5. — Oradour-sur-Glane, France's martyr town, is to become a historic monument, a dispatch from the near-by city of Limoges said today.

All the 792 men, women, and children of this village in west central France were slaughtered by the Germans June 10, 1944, and the buildings reduced to charred ruins in reprisal for the shooting of a German officer.

Classification as a historic monument means that, like famous cathedrals, chateaux, and historical sites, Oradour must hereafter be left untouched.

300,000 JAPANESE MASS TO FIGHT, CHINA REPORTS

CHUNGKING, China, Jan. 5 (AP).—The Japanese are regrouping their forces in southern and central China, estimated at 19 or 20 divisions, totaling more than 300,000 men, possibly to strengthen their coastal defense positions in anticipation of an American landing, a Chinese high command spokesman said today.

The spokesman took the view that the first move of the Japanese would be to close the Chinese held gap in the Canton-Hankow railway, and then would dispatch forces to guard the coast against any American invasion.

NAZIS STEP UP V-2 ASSAULTS AGAINST LONDON

LONDON, Jan. 5 (AP).—The German high command, which tried and failed last summer to knock out London with the V-1 flying bomb, stepped up its V-2 rocket barrage today.

The Berlin radio, already busy with accounts of the German winter offensive in the west, announced that volleys of the 10 ton radio controled projectiles had been increased in the last 24 hours with all the destructive rockets aimed at the sprawling urban area of Greater London.

Routine Bulletin Given.

The British ministry of home security issued the customary morning bulletin, stating that "there has been enemy air activity directed against southern England. Damages and casualties were reported."

Thus neither the German radio nor the British estimated the number of rockets hurled at London.

Berlin, however, said that a new underground plant was manufacturing the mighty projectiles in addition to earlier facilities which Berlin claimed had produced more than 1,000 V-2 rockets since the rocket attacks were launched by the Germans last autumn.

A possible refinement in V-2 construction was hinted in a dispatch from Sweden which reported the destruction by patriot dynamiters of an important radio components factory in Denmark which, it was asserted, made "magic eye" apparatus for V-2s.

Radio Guiding Flouted.

Air ministry commentators in London said they thought it unlikely that the rockets were radio guided, but the Stockholm report invited unofficial speculation.

There was nothing in the damage caused by recent V-2s to indicate that the Germans can control the rocket and its 2,000 pound warhead after it starts its plunge from a height of 50 or more miles.

Nine persons were killed and others injured when a V-2 struck a block of flats with a number of small stores beneath, igniting an oil shop amid the ruins.

TWO U. S. ARMIES PUT IN COMMAND OF MONTGOMERY

Briton Leads All Forces North of Bulge.

be coördinated self contained armies in the north and south if the Germans had won a complete breakthru, it was explained.

Montgomery has raced about the front, personally giving instructions, visiting Lt. Gen. Hodges of the 1st army and Lt. Gen. Simpson of the 9th army, and all corps commanders, fixing the northern defenses to his own tastes and planning counterblows. He was well received by American G. I.s and officers.

Some 9th army divisions helped oppose the German push at the start. Some British forces were thrown in as long as a week ago.

It was the first time since the burst out of Normandy, when Bradley assumed equal status with Montgomery as an army group commander, that the British field marshal, who won a brilliant reputation in Libya, has had any sizeable American forces under his direction.

Devers' Group Unchanged.

Lt. Gen. Devers' 6th army group farther south, which includes the American 7th and French 1st armies, remained unchanged in this tactical shuffle.

The high tide of the German counter-offensive began to recede the day after Montgomery took charge on the north. The little general is used to planning operations in detail, leaving little to the judgment of army commanders or other subordinates. He followed this same policy in directing his enlarged command.

By the change putting the 1st and 9th armies under Montgomery, there still would have been a coordinated force in northern Belgium and Holland even if the Germans had smashed on to the channel. It would have been supplied thru Antwerp.

Self-Contained Unit.

In the south the 3d army of Lt. Gen. Patton — the only full army left under Bradley's former command — also was a self-contained unit, and linked with Devers' 6th army group on its flank. Had the Germans achieved complete success, Eisenhower still would have had three self-contained forces ready to continue the fight.

For the same tactical reasons the 29th and 9th American tactical air commands, which support the 9th and 1st armies, were placed under control of the British 2d tactical air force. It operates with Montgomery's British - Canadian armies. The 29th and 9th tactical air commands are two of three fighter bomber components of the United States 9th tactical air force. The 19th tactical air command of the 9th air force supports the United States 3d army.

Relinquished Control.

Montgomery had control of American armies of the western front until August when he relinquished control to Bradley, at a time when Americans began considerably to outnumber British forces on the western front.

Since then small forces of one or two American divisions have been under British 2d army or Canadian 1st army control for short periods in cases of emergency. And some British units, particularly flame throwers, have been working for months with American infantry and armor on the western front.

BRITISH PRESS JUBILANT

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 5. — While the British press was jubilant at the news of extension of Field Marshal Montgomery's command, a number of papers pointed out that most of the fighting has been done by Americans.

The Daily Telegraph's main headline said: "British Saved Day in Battle of Bulge." The Daily Express said: "Monty's First Team In."

Alan Moorhead, Express war correspondent, writing from the western front, said: "It is only fair to say the British took only a small part in this action, but they did fit into a key position at a vital moment. It is necessary to emphasize that all of this was an American battle, and the American recovery was superb."

The Daily Mail, referring to British troops, said: "Their role has been a relatively minor one, but they've been there. The knowledge that Montgomery is now in full control will be received with relief in this country."

The Daily Mirror said: "Your hero, whether you like him or not, is the G. I. American infantryman."

CENSORS DELETE BAD WAR NEWS, SAYS OBSERVER

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 5 (AP).—Charles Kendrick, president of the Schlage Lock company, who with five other manufacturers toured European fighting fronts, said today war correspondents in France "stated they wanted to get the news to the public, but that the unfavorable part of the news was deleted."

"They particularly believed that the public is entitled to know the amount of casualties in the various battle actions" Kendrick said.

Kendrick made the statement in commenting on the address in New York City yesterday by Frederick C. Crawford of Cleveland, O., board chairman of the National Association of Manufacturers, who called for "realistic censorship."

"I concur heartily with Mr. Crawford," Kendrick said. "In France we found that the situation as it existed was entirely different from that given the American public."

Challenges Observations.

New York, Jan. 5 (AP).—Eugene Gentil, French industrialist and a director of the French purchasing commission, today challenged the accuracy of Frederick C. Crawford's observations. At a press conference, Gentil expressed the belief that "most of his [Crawford's] knowledge came from conversations with ultra-conservatives," whom Gentil described as "fascist minded people."

DON'T LET DOWN ON HOME FRONT, CARLSON WARNS

Marine Col. Evans F. Carlson, commander of the famed Carlson's Raiders, shock troops of island invasions in the Pacific, warned yesterday that we must exert every ounce of strength on the home front to help our fighting men overcome "Japan's very serious threat to the American democratic way of life."

Col. Carlson spoke at a luncheon in Marshall Field & Co.'s English room. On behalf of Brig. Gen. Robert L. Denig, the marines' director of public relations, he presented certificates to newspaper reporters and radio announcers who covered the Foster av. beach invasion demonstrations during the navy's Pacific theater events in support of the 6th war loan.

Newspapers are making important contributions to the winning of the war by their support of war loans and of military endeavors, Col. Carlson said. Don McKiernan, deputy manager of special events for the treasury department, presided at the luncheon.

INVESTIGATE 2 STORIES PUT OUT BY TIME AND U.P.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Supreme headquarters in Paris announced yesterday that stories circulated in the United States by Time magazine and the United Press in advance of official disclosure of changes in the allied western front command had been brought under immediate investigation as possible violations of military security.

In Washington, the war department said that army review officers had failed to detect the fact that one particular paragraph of the Time story disclosed something which supreme headquarters had not announced.

Article Was Approved.

Eric Hodgins, vice president of Time, Inc., said the article was submitted to the review section of the war department in Washington and on Dec. 30 was approved for publication. It was written by James Shepley, a correspondent, who on Dec. 27 left supreme headquarters in France and flew to New York.

A Paris dispatch to the Associated Press said:

"Correspondents at headquarters and those in the field have known about the shift placing Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery in command of all forces north of the wedge and Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley in charge of forces to the south since the time it was made, but news of the change has been 'off the record' and under complete censorship.

"This morning correspondents called the attention of Brig. Gen. Frank Allen Jr., chief public relations officer at SHAEF, to reports from the United States that the article had appeared in Time magazine and apparently was accurate, as far as known here, in disclosing the new commands. Allen said that despite this publication he could not authorize release of the information which correspondents had been given in confidence. The official headquarters reply was a refusal to comment on the article.

An "Off the Record" Talk.

"At that time correspondents were told off the record that headquarters was preparing a complete day by day record of events since the start of the German drive. This, containing a full account of the change, would be released soon, newsmen were told.

"At a stormy afternoon conference Col. Ernest Dupuy, chief of press and radio operations, announced that SHAEF had sent an immediate request to the war department in Washington to investigate the circumstances of the Time story.

"'The disclosure,' he said, 'was manifestly unfair to correspondents who had been briefed and had maintained that confidence.'

"Dupuy also said the United Press story was being investigated.

"Even at that conference, a handout announcing the changes was given to correspondents for 6 p. m. release, but Gen. Allen agreed that, in view of prior publication of the news that it could be cabled for immediate use.

Correspondents Protest.

"Many correspondents here, even tho keeping SHAEF's confidence on the off-the-record changes, had argued repeatedly for immediate release of the news in order to still rumors of changes in command heard in both the United States and Britain.

"The Manchester Guardian correspondent said, 'One of the reasons for the German offensive was to create dissension among the allies, and failure to bring the actual command set-up to light furthered this end.'

"Gen. Allen declared that the delay in the announcement was based purely and entirely on military security.

"It was pointed out that Montgomery, Bradley, or any other of the commanders all had their own distinctive methods of fighting and that the enemy by knowing who commanded would gain information on likely tactics and use of troops."

[SHAEF'S announcement of the change in commands was made at 4:30 p. m. (10:30 a. m. Chicago war time).]

Wheeler Warns: Stop Power Politics or Lose the War!

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—In a caustically incisive analysis of the state of the war, Sen. Wheeler [D., Mont.] tonight cautioned America will lose the war unless power politics is halted at once and a working federation is established in Europe as the basis of permanent peace.

Warning that "truth is the first casualty of war" and noting that "the opiates that have been poured down the throats of American people by propaganda peddlers are now wearing off," the senator urged abandonment of the "brutal and costly" slogan of unconditional surrender and any thought of a peace of vengeance.

"If power politics in Europe cannot be stopped now, if a free federation of Europe cannot be worked out now, then it does not matter where the American armies stop, our boys will have died in vain—the war will have been lost," he said. "No slogans, no full worded phrases can change this result."

Second Broadcast of War.

Wheeler delivered a nation-wide broadcast — his second since the United States entered the war. Before Pearl Harbor he was a leader in the fight to keep the United States from becoming involved in the conflict.

In his speech he said he had not "even the pretense of an apology" for the position he has held before and during the war.

The senator called on Americans to consider soberly America's stakes in the war. He said that while Americans are doing 70 per cent of the fighting on the western front, 50 per cent of the fighting in Italy and almost 100 per cent of the fighting in the Pacific, "our much vaunted allies are primarily engaged in extending their influence into ever widening spheres in the bloody game of power politics which, if continued, cannot help but blow up in a third world war."

Europe Furnace of Fratricide.

"And while this war goes on," he continued, "the continent of Europe —whose social, economic and political foundations have already been torn up by the roots—is being further battered into a veritable chamber of horrors. Actually, Europe has become a seething furnace of fratricide, civil war, murder, disease and starvation.

The senator criticized President Roosevelt for considering a national service act at this time. The Montanan charged that Secretary of State Stettinius in urging such an act at this time is seeking to inspire fear in the hearts of the American people by drawing verbal pictures of robot horrors in the next war and that Undersecretary of State Grew is further panicking the public mind by saying the next aggressor will make this country the first victim of a third world war.

"America is being subjected to a psychology of fear of insecurity, of a lack of faith in the effectiveness of the normal processes and principles of international law, a part of which process is revealed in the current administration drive to saddle upon the American people before this war is over a war psychology and a war economy in the form of peace time military conscription," he said.

No Creative Ideas.

"Why peace time conscription if the President has faith in Dumbarton Oaks? And at a time when there is not a stable government left in Europe or in Asia, when unity between ourselves and our allies is threatened to its foundation, when millions of men and women are suffering the tortures of the damned, there has not yet appeared a single curative or creative idea around which to rebuild either Europe or the world."

The senator said he is convinced an allied political council should be set up at once as a step toward a United States of Europe. If Russia continues to insist that the fate of Finland, Poland, Latvia, Estonia, Lithuania, Romania, Bulgaria, Jugoslavia, and even Norway be left to her discretion and Britain adopts this method from Scandinavia to Greece, there is no point talking of a world security league in the future, as it will then be too late, he said.

Wheeler said that for years the American people have been told the conflict is "the peoples' war," "the tyrants' war," "a global war," and "a war of liberation."

Question of Liberation.

"Now we ask ourselves in deep dismay the question, 'A war of liberation to whom and to what?'" he said.

Since August, 1941, the senator charged, the highest leaders have been hailing a war of liberation for an old world to a brave new world erected on the principles of the Atlantic Charter. Now, he continued, we despair of the fulfillment of the promise not because the charter is dead but that it never existed as a document.

The senator said Dumbarton Oaks is "a grim hoax" because no real agreement could be reached among the big three for the allied organization contemplated in the Moscow declaration.

"No nation today trusts the other nations sufficiently now to warrant a single gesture toward risking its security on the success of an international organization," he said. "After three years of American participation in the struggle, the precious 'unity' of Great Britain, Russia, and the United States cannot produce a common statement of purpose toward Europe. They cannot even agree on a common policy toward Asia."

Wheeler declared he is unwilling, and is convinced the vast majority of Americans are unwilling, to have their sons police the world. He said a peace must be made which will not require it. He said he is certain that, with the establishment of a United States of Europe in which disarmament and economic collaboration are combined, any threat to the security of Russia and Britain will be eliminated.

MIDWEST YANKS SHOW GERMANS A FEW TRICKS

One Uses His Teeth and Keeps Wires Going.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 1ST ARMY IN BELGIUM, Jan. 5.—For killing three Germans manning a machine gun and thus helping to break up an enemy counter-attack, Pvt. Richard Van Patten, Route 2, West Terre Haute, Ind., has been awarded the distinguished service cross, it was disclosed today. The award was made by the commander of the 2d infantry division, Maj. Gen. Walter M. Robertson.

While bullets cut bushes around him, Van Patten crawled along a hedgerow until he was within 15 yards of the machine gun. Then he tossed a hand grenade from a kneeling position, killing the gun's three-man crew. Inspired by his action, the citation read, his platoon then broke up the counter-attack.

* *

The 9th regiment of the 2d infantry division was attacking pillboxes in Germany during the 5th corps' attack above Monschau just before the German counter-offensive. On the first day of the attack eight members of a 12-man machine gun section of Company E became casualties, but the four others carried on.

They lugged their two 43 pound light machine guns, 18 pound ammunition boxes, and personal equipment. Once they set up near an enemy pillbox and laid down a stream of fire until ordered to withdraw, then, hauling their guns behind them, crept back under fire. And they kept up the work normally done by 12 men during the hot days of the counter-offensive until the battalion went into reserve.

* *

Pvt. Robert Holata, Cleveland, O., is considering whether he should bill the army for a new set of teeth. A wire trouble shooter for the 38th regiment, 2d infantry division, Holata went out to mend the breaks when the wire was shattered by artillery fire.

But, like the well known plumber, Holata forgot his tools. He skinned the covering from the icy wires with his teeth, spliced the break, and communications started again.

Challenging two "civilians" on a road in Belgium the other day, Sgt. Paul Praszkier, 1455 S. Hamlin av., Chicago, maintenance sergeant in a reconnaissance battalion of a spearhead armored division, drew an answering shout of "Heil Hitler!" Instead of shooting, Praszkier questioned them.

The "civilians" were deserters from the German army who could not even speak German. Captured Russians, they said they had been forced into the army. As for "Heil Hitler," the Russians said the Germans told them always to say that first when questioned by high officials.

* *

Looking for the command post of the same reconnaissance battalion, Lt. Dick Latkovic, Gary, Ind., entered a house and saw the figure of a man crouched in a corner in the semi-darkness. Said Latkovic, "Hey, Joe, where's the C. P.?" Said the dark figure, "Kamerad." "Joe" was a Jerry.

* *

Corp. Laurence Mascott, 7656 Greenview av., Chicago, walked into the press camp today. He is an ex-City News Bureau reporter.

Mascott covered Chicago police beats in 1941 and 1942 until the army air forces took him and made him a public relations office soldier in Chicago. The time came when the army needed more doughboys and Mascott went overseas as an infantry replacement.

He arrived last July, joined the 83d division, and fought as a rifleman in the siege of St. Malo.

Mascott has been in the hospital once since then; he made the error of eating some captured German food only to find it was poisoned as a result of bad canning. Now he's with the division public relations office again and telling the deeds of its warriors to newsmen.

* *

Sgt. Albert Campbell of Ypsilanti, Mich., doesn't believe in taking chances, because it's dangerous work when one is with a reconnaissance battalion of an armored division. One dark night recently the sergeant and four buddies captured 14 Germans. Campbell was busy disarming and searching the captives when a voice shouted, "Hey! Who's stripping who?" Campbell, in the confusion, had begun disarming his own men.

JAP MAINLAND HIT IN DAYLIGHT RAID BY B-29S

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6 [Saturday]—(AP).—Super Fortresses of the Asiatic based 20th bomber command hit at industrial targets on the island of Kyushu, part of the Japanese mainland, in a daylight raid today.

A bulletin issued by Gen. Arnold, commanding general of the 20th air force, said details of the mission will be released as soon as they become available. There was no indication of the size of the striking force.

The raid was the first on Kyushu targets by the B-29s since Dec. 19. Kyushu is the southernmost island of Japan.

[American Super Fortresses have made at least five flights over Japan's main Honshu Island between late Thursday night and 9:03 p. m., Japanese time, Friday [7:03 a. m., Chicago war time], the Tokyo radio reported yesterday.]

New Landing Made Nearer Manila

British Advance

CALCUTTA, India, Jan. 5 (AP).—British and Indian forces in a water-borne swoop captured the port of Akyab on the west coast of Burma without firing a shot. This was the last big Japanese naval and air base in western Burma. Its capture virtually sealed the fate of Mandalay, 230 miles to the northeast.

The Japanese, who had made the city of 40,000 a chief base of operations since May, 1942, fled before three allied columns swarmed ashore on Akyab Island — on which the city is situated — early Wednesday, allied headquarters announced today. Landing forces encountered only mines and booby traps.

Capture of the port gives the allies a new forward base for future operations against the Japanese in lower Burma. In addition to a splendid harbor Akyab boasts seven military air fields capable of handling the largest bombers.

Actual occupation of the prized island was something of an anti-climax, as Capt. W. D. David of the R. A. F. had landed a small liaison plane on one of its air fields the previous day and discovered that the Japanese had withdrawn to the mainland New Year's day.

U. S. DESTROYER LOST IN BATTLE FOR PHILIPPINES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5 (AP).—The destroyer Reid has been lost to enemy action in the Philippine area, the navy announced today. No announcement was made as to extent of casualties, but all next of kin have been notified. The ship had a normal complement of 24 officers and 178 enlisted men. Comdr. S. A. McCornock, 34, of Iron River, Mich., her skipper, was reported wounded. The Reid was the 12th naval vessel lost in the current Philippine campaign, the 244th vessel of all types lost since the beginning of the war. She was the 51st destroyer lost during the war.

NEWS WRITERS TOLD THEY HAVE BIG PEACE ROLE

LONDON, Jan. 5 (AP). — French Ambassador Rene Massigli told foreign correspondents today that "the atmosphere in which peace is to be built will be created largely" by them.

Speaking at a luncheon, he urged newsmen to use restraint in reporting disagreements that might arise between allied governments.

"You already share, and will share still more, in these coming months the responsibility for future arrangements with statesmen officially drawing up final agreements from which the world of tomorrow will emerge."

YANKS RETAKE SUPPLY ROAD IN ALSACE SECTOR

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 7TH ARMY, Alsace, Jan. 5.—The German thrust thru the Haardt forest—the strongest enemy action south of the 3d army front in the last five days—was blunted in at least one sector today. Lt. Gen. Patch's forces regained their supply route and relieved two of their companies while American artillery struck heavily all along the line at enemy transport and armor.

The danger from the German attack on the 7th army is not yet over and the army has given ground, but the enemy has not reached what was at least his primary object—highway 49 which runs thru the Vosges mountains with the western terminus at Tiefenbach and the eastern at Imsweiler. If he gained that his next move probably would be to push infantry and tanks thru the mountains in one or both directions to the flatlands.

Astride Supply Road.

In the Reipertswiller vicinity one American regiment had its troubles yesterday. The Germans had gotten astride the supply road to Saegmuhl, just north of Reipertswiller and had cut off two of our infantry companies at Wildenguth, a mile east of Saegmuhl.

The colonel commanding the regiment got the flank protection he needed during the night from other American units and his special task force of infantry and tanks went up to recover the road. Yank and German armor dueled and there were infantry fights on the road and in the dense woods. American artillery, adjusted with watchlike precision, for there were not many yards between the two forces, scored several direct hits on the enemy formations.

Yanks Clear Town.

After the enemy hold on the supply artery was broken the Americans moved on to clear Saegmuhl. More than 100 Germans were killed there and 132 prisoners taken—all that remained of a battalion. The bag included three captains. Some of the captives wore American shoes, equipment seized in the overrunning of one of our quartermaster dumps farther north.

The two companies that had been surrounded by the enemy for three days in Wildenguth hadn't had too bad a time of it, rescuers found after shooting their way thru the German block east of the town. The companies had had only three casualties out of 230 men. The Americans had supplemented their field rations by killing chickens.

Radio Batteries Dropped.

They had needed radio batteries but these were dropped to them by a Piper Cub plane some hours before our other ground forces got thru. First reports had been that the companies had captured more Germans than the former's own personnel but this was one of those G. I. exaggerations—the prisoners totaled 21.

There was one odd circumstance—the five tanks and a tank destroyer with the companies were almost out of gas when the rescue was effected. A high ranking officer wanted to know why and pointed out that the tanks and the destroyer hadn't been doing much traveling. His query was greeted with "know nothing" shrugs. The off the record explanation may be that the gas was used for cooking the chickens and C rations.

Japs Blame Turkish Rift on 3 Powers' Pressure

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS]

The Japanese foreign office was quoted by the Tokyo radio yesterday as saying that Turkey's decision to break off diplomatic and economic relations with Japan was "the result of pressure from America, Britain, and France." The dispatch said the allies thus sought "to recover some of the injured prestige suffered in Greece."

AMERICANS FIND JAPAN'S SECRETS IN LEYTE DEBRIS

U.S. Experts Examine Enemy Weapons.

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LEYTE ISLAND, Jan. 5.—The wreckage of the Japanese army on Leyte is providing a field day for American ordnance experts. Piles of debris are disclosing many secrets.

Most vicious among enemy weapons are three old timers. One is the small machine gun known thruout the New Guinea campaign as "the woodpecker." The others are knee mortars and anti-tank guns. The "woodpecker" and the mortars are the same, light and deadly. The anti-tank gun is improved by the addition of rubber tired wheels, increasing their mobility.

Nearly all the artillery pieces here, the 75 and 150 mm. howitzers, have narrow steel rimmed wheels limiting their use to roads or firm fields. The anti-tank gun, with an extra long muzzle, has a higher muzzle velocity than our 37 mm. anti-tank gun, meaning it will pierce thicker armor than ours will. The basic small arms weapon still is the .25 caliber rifle.

Trucks, found here by the scores for the first time, are peace time models, with dual rear wheels and two-wheel drive. Very few Jap vehicles have a four wheel drive which is universal on American army vehicles. Jap trucks are strictly for highway transportation.

Their ordnance trucks are supplemented by two and four wheeled wagons pulled by horses and mules. Tons of the supplies piled up in the Ormoc hills testify to their efficiency. The Japs had much more supplies in the hills than we did.

Ensign Harry W. Sherman, 20, torpedo bomber pilot who participated in numerous engagements in the Pacific, was on leave and asleep in his home at 317 Picotte st., Yankton, S. D., on the morning of Dec. 22 when a telegram was delivered.

It was addressed to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry D. Sherman, and reported that Ensign Sherman was missing after action in the Pacific area. The report would have been accurate two months ago.

Sherman's plane was shot down Oct. 26 in the second battle of the Philippines after he had scored a bombing hit on a cruiser. He and two crew members were picked up by Filipino fishermen in outrigger canoes within two hours. They were taken to an island and later made a nine day trip in a small sailboat to rejoin American forces on Leyte.

Sherman, on his way to a naval base for assignment to a new squadron, stopped in Chicago last night to visit Harold Smith, Tribune war correspondent, also home on leave.

'THIS IS IT,' SAY YANKS AS THEY OPEN BIG DRIVE

BY WILLIAM STRAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. FORCES SOMEWHERE IN BELGIUM, Jan. 4 [Delayed].—Thru snow, fog, and bitter cold, American forces today were hurling their first concerted counter-blow against the Germans from the north.

The attack began at 8:30 o'clock yesterday morning, but the announcement was withheld until today. There was an air of suppressed excitement, mixed with grim resolve, as word spread among the units that they were attacking at last, and doughboys were telling one another, "This is it."

Roads were choked with traffic moving over sheets of ice and disappearing into the gloomy fog hanging low over the countryside. Trees and ground were blanketed with snow, except where the tanks had churned it into a thick slush. The ground shook under the steady thunder of big American guns. German shells were seeking out our columns in reply.

Called Bone Crushing Assault.

Weather and the nature of the terrain again is favoring the Germans, making the going slow. Tanks adjusted their pace to that of the infantry, altho it was doubtful they could go much faster over the slippery thorofares and the muddy ground. By this afternoon American armor had not yet met the Nazi armor in strength, but was encountering "well placed anti-tank weapons and mines."

One high ranking officer described the drive as a steady, bone crushing assault rather than a lightning thrust toward the heart of the German held wedge. Thus the dogged doughboys, who were breathing frostily and shivering under their overcoats as they walked determinedly forward must now begin the heartbreaking task of retaking yard by yard the territory overrun by the Germans in the early stages of their December offensive.

Determined Resistance Missing.

The weather also has made flying impossible for both sides, and the Yanks are pushing ahead thru the punishing cold without benefit of air support, which ordinarily is depended upon to soften up Nazi positions and pave the way for the advance. However, progress of as much as two miles at some points was registered by midafternoon, with the seizure of several small towns in the Grandmenil and Stavelot sectors.

The lack of determined resistance by the Nazis immediately led to speculation as to whether the enemy had decided to withdraw ahead of this drive on the theory that it was wiser to concentrate strength and save as much of the penetration as possible while yielding the lightly-held tip. It was evident, in any case, that German infantry was taking the brunt of the American attack before the panzers accepted a decisive engagement.

HOUSE MILITARY GROUP READY TO BACK 4-F DRAFT

Would Consider a Labor Levy if Asked.

Farmer Exams

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 5 (AP).—Physical examinations of agriculturally deferred registrants in the 18 thru 25 age bracket in Illinois will begin at the Chicago induction station Jan. 15, state selective service headquarters announced today. State Draft Director Paul G. Armstrong predicted the bulk of them will be found physically fit for military service.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—Chairman May of the house military affairs committee predicted today that his committee will approve legislation asked by War Mobilization Director Byrnes to draft 4-F registrants for limited military service or war work.

May told reporters, after a meeting of the committee, that he will press for such legislation immediately, unless President Roosevelt demands a universal labor draft law in his message to congress tomorrow. If Mr. Roosevelt renews his demand of last year for such an act, May said, he will seek to have the military committee consider it. The chairman did not, however, predict committee approval of a labor draft law.

Face "Special Service."

The chairman said he will introduce a house bill along the lines of the so-called Bailey-Brewster senate measure, which died in the upper chamber last year.

Under the proposal, 4-F registrants between 18 and 45 who failed to take war supporting jobs in industry after being warned to do so by local draft boards could be drafted into "special service" military units at regular army-navy pay. They would be given noncombat jobs, presumably "cleanup" and other menial work, to release physically fit personnel for other duties.

Those serving in the special units would be excluded, however, from insurance, bonuses, and other benefits enjoyed by regular draftees.

The committee at its closed session today heard Col. Francis V. Keesling, selective service legislative officer, indorse such a plan.

Criticize Byrnes' Proposal.

Altho most of the committee members afterward agreed that the war situation calls for action to get 4-F's into essential jobs, some criticized the Byrnes proposal.

Rep. Harness [R., Ind.] asserted it would be "impractical" to draft men for military service and then deny them financial benefits enjoyed by other draftees.

Rep. Shafer [R., Mich.] said there may be need for such legislation, but contended congress resents the recent flood of "instructions" from Byrnes as to what laws it should pass.

"Mr. Byrnes sits down at the White House and tries to tell congress what to do," said Shafer. "If he has a constructive program why doesn't he come before the proper committee of congress, outline what he wants, and give us sound reasons why it should be done? If Mr. Byrnes would try really coöperating with congress we'd have a better chance for constructive action."

Suggests Medical Aid.

Sen. Pepper [D., Fla.] proposed in a statement that the federal government pay for medical treatment for 4-F's in the communities in which they reside, in the hope that large numbers could be rehabilitated for military service or civilian war jobs.

Pepper called for a conference of representatives of the army and navy, selective service, public health service, war man power commission, and other government agencies to consider his proposal.

YANKS BEAT OFF GERMAN ATTACK NEAR BOLOGNA

ROME, Italy, Jan. 5 (AP).—German troops tried unsuccessfully to blunt the spearhead of the American 5th army pointed at Bologna, in the heart of the Po valley, allied headquarters announced today.

The Germans staged a raid, supported by heavy artillery and mortars, on American positions a mile north of Livergnano and 10 miles south of Bolgna. They were driven off by doughboys in snow encrusted foxholes after a battle lasting more than an hour.

Canadian troops advanced a mile farther along the road east of Alfonsine, in the Adriatic sector, to within a mile of Sant' Alberto despite many German counter-attacks.

To the south, British and Canadians opened surprise assaults and cut some territory from the German bridgehead pocket between the Canale Naviglio and the Senio.

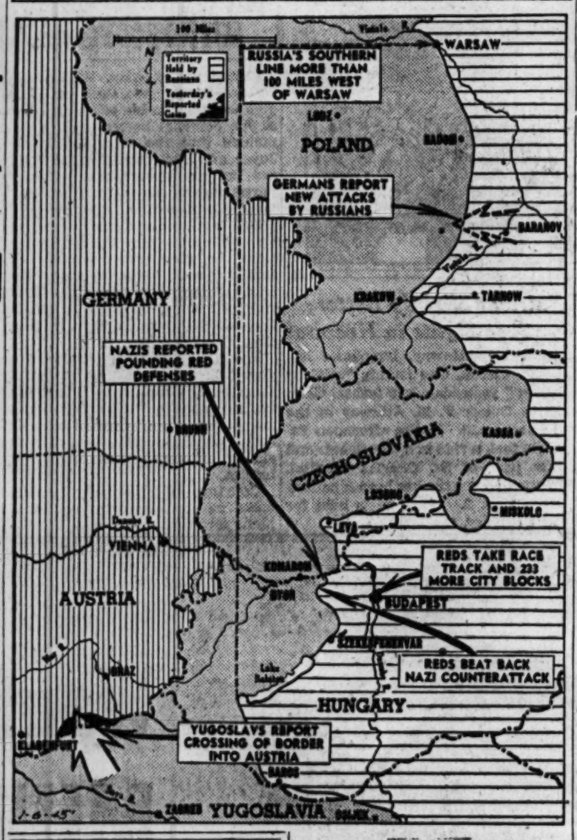

[Germany's broadcast bulletin said yesterday: "In central Italy heavy defensive fighting is continuing. In the area north of Faenza our troops are holding their positions against enemy breakthru attempts. Northwest of Ravenna, German troops are engaged in heavy fighting against enemy formations which had thrust forward."]

Billion Lei Earmarked to Aid Romanian Jews

BUCHAREST, Romania, Jan. 4 [Delayed]—(AP).—The Romanian division of the American joint distribution committee, in coöperation with an International Red Cross committee, plans this month to distribute one billion lei to assist Jews who have returned from Transnystria and others who have been freed from concentration camps, it was announced today.

[Lei are not quoted in foreign exchange. At pre-war rates the lei was worth 1 cent. Transnystria is a part of the Ukraine which had been assigned to Romania by the Germans after their campaign in the east.]

Progress of Battle for Balkans

REDS RECOGNIZE LUBLIN POLES; 'BIG THREE' SPLIT

LONDON, Jan. 5 (AP).—Soviet Russia brought to a head today one of the thorniest problems facing the impending "big three" parley by extending formal recognition to the Polish provisional government of Lublin and making a clean break with the exiled Polish regime in London, which is supported by the United States and Great Britain.

The soviet move emphasized with finality the inability of Russia, the United States, and Britain to agree on the Polish question and brought a definite split in big three unity.

The United States and Britain had been informed officially of Russia's intention in advance of today's announcement.

Both Britain and America followed the Russian statement with a reiteration of their announcements of four days ago that they still were standing by the London Polish government.

London Poles "Regret."

Caught between this terrific diplomatic crossfire, the London Poles officially expressed "regret from the point of view of united nations unity," but said they were not surprised at the development.

Diplomatic and military observers here believed that the Russians, having made their decision, were ready now to launch their long expected offensive in Poland.

The soviets severed relations with the London Polish government in April, 1943, in a dispute over the finding of the graves of thousands of Polish officers in the forests near Smolensk. Russia accused the Germans of having killed the officers, but the London Poles asked the international Red Cross to investigate a counter-claim by the Nazis that the Russians had committed the atrocity.

Soviet Announcement.

In announcing their recognition of the Lublin group the soviets made no mention of the London government, saying only that:

"The presidium of the supreme soviet of the U. S. S. R., pursuing its policy of upholding and strengthening friendly relations with democratic Poland, decided to recognize the provisional national government of the Polish republic and to exchange ambassadors."

V. Z. Lebedev was appointed ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary to the Lublin regime.

Authoritative British quarters said Moscow's move came as no surprise and in no way affected Britain's recognition of the London Poles.

"It had been anticipated," a spokesman said. . . . "There has been correspondence between the United States, Britain, and Russia on the subject, but it just hasn't been possible to agree."

[Official reaction in Washington was that "the worst has happened," and that there appeared to be no immediate way of breaking the deadlock.]

Hope for F. D. R.'s Help.

The London Poles were left only with the hope that President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill would be able successfully to plead their cause when the "Big Three" meets some time after Jan. 20.

Pravda, official organ of the Communist party in Moscow, anticipated recognition of the Lublin government in an editorial today in which it said the group in five months had "eminently justified" itself and that its activities had "won approval not only of the Polish people but of the people of the soviet union and also progressive elements in Britain, the United States, France, Czechoslovakia, and other democratic countries."

The Lublin group's most important feat was described as the distribution of more than 600,000 acres to 100,000 landless Polish families.

General Sees Weakening of Britons' Will in War

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 5.—"I see in this country a weakening of the determination to take a part in the defense of the country," Maj. Gen. James Drew, director general of the territorial army, said today. "It's most extraordinary what war weariness brings about."

RUSSIANS REPEL COUNTER-BLOWS NEAR BUDAPEST

Nazis Report Soviet Jabs in Poland.

LONDON, Jan. 6 [Saturday]—(AP).—The Germans hurled 300 tanks into the Red army lines northwest of Budapest yesterday in an attempt to relieve the trapped Nazi garrison in the Hungarian capital, but achieved only small penetrations that were "cut off and annihilated," Moscow announced.

The entire front appeared to be stirring in preparation for great winter operations. Berlin reported new Russian stabs 120 miles below Warsaw which may herald an all-out soviet drive on that long dormant front.

The midnight soviet bulletin and the supplement disclosed that more than 3,000 Germans were killed yesterday and almost the same number captured in savage fighting.

Wedges Wiped Out.

Tank attacks were hurled at the Russians in groups of 25 to 30. "Disjoined" groups of tanks and infantry were able to carve out small wedges in the Russian lines, only to be wiped out later.

Moscow said the Nazis brought up their fresh armored forces from divisions transferred recently to the Hungarian front. Among these were the SS [elite guard] Death's Head and Viking tank divisions.

Inside flaming Budapest the Russians smashed into the capital's race track, which the Germans had been using as a landing field for supply planes, and beat off fierce German counter-attacks, killing 300 of the enemy and destroying four tanks. The Red army seized another 233 blocks in the city to boost their total to more than 1,530.

Families Threatened.

As an indication of the desperate situation faced by the Nazis, the Russians quoted prisoners as saying the Nazi command has threatened to shoot "the whole family" of any soldier who surrenders.

Snarling aerial battles over Budapest increased, Moscow dispatches said. German transports sought to drop supplies to the remnants of 100,000 enemy troops in the besieged city. Soviet bombers struck at Nazi-Hungarian positions there.

By Thursday, roughly one-third of Fest had been seized by the Russians, along with three-quarters of Buda on the west bank, Moscow advices said. Berlin, however, said Germans were counter-attacking and had rewon "several blocks of buildings."

The Berlin radio said Russian tanks scored a temporary dent in the battle of Courland, in western Latvia, but claimed this had been eliminated.

Danish Brewery Blown Up in Reprisal by Germans

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Jan. 5 (AP).—The Nazi Schalburg corps last night blew up the Tuborg brewery in Copenhagen, Denmark's second largest, in revenge against patriots for their destruction of a plant manufacturing radio products including V-2 bomb parts, the Free Danish Press service said today.

CONGRESS GETS 8,000 WORD F.D.R. MESSAGE TODAY

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—President Roosevelt tonight was deep in the preparation of his twelfth and most anxiously awaited message to congress, which will be delivered tomorrow afternoon at the joint session that is to officially proclaim his election for a fourth term.

The chief executive told his news conference the document will be unconscionably long — about 8,000 words in order to embrace a comprehensive discussion of the state of the union at home and abroad. He will not appear before congress to read the message as he did for his first 10 messages but will broadcast a 30 minute summary at night as he did a year ago. The broadcast will be carried on all networks from 9 to 9:30 p. m., Chicago time.

As he disclosed the message would cover foreign affairs, the President revealed that the long expected big three meeting with Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin will be held sometime after Jan. 20—the date of the fourth term inaugural.

Participants Not Decided.

The time and place depend a good deal on weather conditions, he said. He was not certain whether other allied leaders would be invited to participate in the meeting.

The three leaders have not met since December, 1943. The President and Churchill have not met since last September when they held their second Quebec conference.

While much of the message will be devoted to foreign affairs, it was not expected Mr. Roosevelt will define this country's position on European political problems or give anything approaching a definitive exposition of American foreign policy. It was felt he would sidestep demands for clarification of these points by indicating that he will leave discussion of problems for the big three conference.

Republicans Are Skeptical.

There have been insistent demands in recent weeks that the United States make known its war and peace aims so that it may be known what America is fighting for and what it wants. New Dealers in congress are confident the message will be a great historic document in that it will state this country's position and objectives exactly. Republicans and conservative Democrats were waiting to be shown, making no secret of their expectation the message will largely be a glitter of generalities.

The message will be read by the clerk of the house at the joint session about 1 p. m. [Chicago time]. By that time the electoral vote will have been canvassed and the official tabulation made, 432 for Mr. Roosevelt to 99 for Gov. Dewey, his Republican opponent, in line with the election returns of last Nov. 7.

He Will Discuss Man Power.

In the domestic field Mr. Roosevelt acknowledged his message will discuss the man power situation. He declined to give any further hint as to the content of his report.

Neither the President nor the White House has explained why the submission of the message was delayed until tomorrow. Ordinarily in the past the report has gone up on the day following the organization of congress, which was on Wednesday.

Police last night were asked to search for Cecil Douglas, 40, of 4913 Henderson st., who has been missing from home since Jan. 3.

BERLIN AND HANOVER BOMBED TWICE; BLAST NAZI SUPPLY LINES

LONDON, Jan. 5 (AP).—Hanover and Berlin were each raided twice tonight by British bombers after more than 1,500 United States heavy bombers and fighters pounded a score of road and rail junctions behind the front during the day.

Hanover, industrial city of 500,000 population which was the night's main target, was smashed first by a force of about 750 Halifax heavy bombers and later by another smaller formation of Lancasters.

Both raids on Berlin, which was hit for the second consecutive night, were by Mosquitos dropping two ton blockbusters.

More than 1,000 American Flying Fortresses and Liberators with an escort of 500 Mustangs struck virtually every major supply link in the 150 mile distribution zone supporting the German western front offensive. The fleet spread 3,000 tons of explosives on freight yards and highway junctions from Cologne south to Karlsruhe and from the Siegfried line east beyond Frankfurt. Surprise blows also were delivered at Nazi airfields near Frankfurt, Coblenz and Bonn. No opposition was encountered from German planes, but anti-aircraft fire was intense.

CAPT. CARSON TAKES COMMAND AT GLENVIEW

Capt. Joseph M. Carson, 19 years in the navy, has succeeded Comdr. Willard I. Staples as commanding officer of the Naval Air station at Glenview, it was announced last night. Capt. Carson was executive officer and air officer of the United States carrier Bunker Hill, and later commander of an escort carrier division in the Pacific theater before assuming his new duties.

Comdr. Staples, U. S. N. R., will continue as executive officer.

The new commander was born in Enniskillen, Ireland, but migrated to Front Royal, Va., where he attended school before receiving an appointment to the naval academy. His experience in naval aviation included duty at Norfolk, Va., as a primary flight instructor.

YUGOSLAV ARMY FIGHTS ACROSS AUSTRIA BORDER

LONDON, Jan. 5 (AP). — Marshal Tito's Yugoslav army was reported fighting its way into Austria tonight after a surprise crossing of the enemy frontier south of Graz.

In a sudden extension of his Balkan fighting front, Tito announced that Yugoslav advance units had slashed a vital German rail supply line running northward from Maribor in Yugoslavia to Graz, 26 miles inside Austria, and had destroyed stretches of another line paralleling the border.

The Maribor-Graz line, which Tito's broadcast war bulletin said had been cut "in many places," has been used to supply Nazi troops both in northern Yugoslavia and in Hungary, where Russian forces have driven within less than 50 miles of the Austrian frontier southwest of Lake Balaton.

FRANCE'S REDS OPEN BALLYHOO TO WIN RIVIERA

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NICE, France, Dec. 29 [Delayed].—The French Communist party is trying to promote its cause by filling Riviera shop windows with photographs of victorious Red army battles and pictures of Nazi atrocities. It is difficult to believe, however, that the hard-headed Riviera residents, nearly every one of whom profits from the international tourist trade, will deliberately adopt a policy that would wreck the system that has expanded their prosperity for 100 years.

As a result of military operations that ousted the Nazis from France, the Riviera has been cut off from the rest of the country. Transportation has been smashed and there is a lack of coal and gasoline. This has given the Communists, the only organized political element, an opportunity to propagandize almost without rebuttal.

Tourist Traffic Doubled.

The realists here agree, however, that the French know on which side their bread is buttered and will not lightly toss away the gigantic and lucrative tourist traffic, which has more than doubled in the decade since the Mediterranean coast became a summer as well as a winter resort.

In that era it has attracted far more visitors during the hot season than formerly when the resort hotels, casinos, and other attractions were open only between Christmas and Easter.

It is admitted freely that the communist influence gained considerable strength because Gen. De Gaulle, to exercise pressure on the British and Americans during the Algiers regime, courted support from Moscow and granted certain concessions to the Kremlin in exchange. Observers expect this balance to be neutralized, however, in the post-war era when France assumes its former world position.

Little Heavy Industry.

It is said that there is little heavy industry in the entire Riviera area with large blocs of workers united economically against capital, usually a condition necessary for the promulgation of communism.

The perfume industry, the cut flower business, and the early fruit and vegetable trade are not ideal breeding grounds for the Marxists.

Today, when there are no tourists, when production of luxuries is at a standstill, when there are food and wine scarcities, and when there is prospect of a freezing winter because of the lack of transport to carry wood as a substitute for coal, the mass of people are dissatisfied and willing to listen to any political panacea.

immediate induction into the armed forces of employes who have refused to take actions demanded of them by the agents."

Threat Affidavit by Employe.

This alleged threat was expanded in a two page affidavit filed by Maurice E. Garrison, 1336 Gregory st., Wilmette, operating assistant manager of Ward's Chicago store. He asserted that on Jan. 2, this year, Lt. Col. W. A. Munroe and Maj. R. E. Shalberg read to him an order from Maj. Gen. Joseph W. Byron, the government's manager of Ward's, stating that the government was in control, and that all employes were to coöperate with the government.

Garrison's affidavit went on to state that "Lt. Col. Munroe then read from the order a statement to the effect that if an employe was of draft age, and it became necessary to discharge him because he failed to support the government, his name would be turned over to the selective service system for reclassification."

It charged further:

"That Lt. Col. Munroe then stopped in his reading of the order, looked at affiant [Garrison], and said that 'line is pregnant, we had better read it again,' and then read the line again; that affiant agreed that the line was pregnant.

Told of Possible Army Duty.

"Affiant further says that Lt. Col. Munroe then asked whether affiant wished to work and coöperate with the government; that affiant said yes, that he had no alternative as he had a family to think of.

"Affiant further says that Maj. Shalberg, the other officer who was present, then informed affiant that it was better to work at a merchant's pay; that affiant asked the meaning of this statement; that Maj. Shalberg said that affiant could be put back in the store doing the same job in uniform at a soldier's pay. Affiant further says that the officers then had affiant sign an oath to coöperate and uphold the government management."

"Involuntary Service Threats."

Elsewhere, the answer proper alleges that the government "is endeavoring by threats and intimidation unlawfully to force into involuntary service in aid of the plaintiff's [government's] unlawful purpose" the 16 individual defendants, including Avery.

It charges further that the government's agents "have threatened criminal actions against officers and employes for refusing to accept employment with the plaintiff, well knowing that such officers and employes have committed no offense." This reference was evidently to the grand jury investigation initiated by United States Atty. Woll into alleged instances of resistance by Ward employes. The grand jury met yesterday, but it was reported that no Ward matter was submitted.

Physical Damage Alleged.

In a lengthy summation, Ward's charged that the government has seized its monies, has caused physical damage to Ward's building, has prevented subordinate executives from conducting company business, has interfered with the company's widely scattered operations, has interfered with administrative operations in hundreds of locations not specified in the President's order, and has demanded of employes such obedience as to make a mere refusal in government eyes an instance of obstruction or resistance.

The major portion of Ward's answer, prepared by Attorneys Stuart S. Ball and Harold A. Smith, deals with the legal issues involved. First of all, the company denies that the controversy affects the public interest in the effective prosecution of the war. It denies that it is a manufacturing business, stating it operates only a paint factory in Chicago Heights, a former farm implement factory at Springfield, Ill., now turning out war material, and a fence making factory at Fort Madison, Ia.

Denies Ward's Is War Business.

Not more than 2 per cent of its own manufactured products are sold in its retail stores, Ward's contends. Many of the 21 affidavits deal with the same subject, the purpose being an attempt to discount the government's contention that Ward's is in effect a war business, and thus subject to the war labor disputes act under which the President acted. The company holds that it is a nonwar merchandising business, and exempt from that act.

Thus, Ward's contends in its answer, it was not amenable to the war labor board's orders, altho, it adds, the company attended all hearings. Not all the hearings were complete, it is complained, nor in accord with WLB provisions. The answer reiterates the company's contention that the WLB's orders are advisory only, and not binding, and so considered by proper judicial authorities, and added that "congress has neither prescribed nor authorized as a procedure for the settlement of labor disputes the compulsory acceptance by either party of all determinations of the board."

Presidential Order Challenged.

As to the President's order, the company asserts such strikes as did occur did not warrant Presidential intervention, then declares:

"No act of congress and no power conferred upon him by the Constitution of the United States authorizes the President of the United States to enforce the orders of the national war labor board by seizure of the properties of the . . . defendant involved in this suit."

The same trend is contained even in more detail in a 19 page affidavit filed by John A. Barr, lawyer, assistant secretary, and labor relations counselor of Ward's. Barr recite the history of each of the Ward-CIO disputes in seven cities, and charged that the WLB hearings were prejudicial against the company from the start. He, too, contended that WLB orders are not binding, and cited both court opinions and congressional reports upholding that view.

In particular, Barr assailed the government's orders imposing upon Ward employes the check-off system and maintenance of membership dues, which he asserted mean at the least a modified form of the closed shop. In his opinion, he stated, the WLB's established policy was to order "this modified form of closed shop in practically every case where it was requested by a labor union." Ward's position, Barr added, was that every employe should be free to join or remain aloof from any union. The closed shop, he declared, would necessitate the dismissal of many key employes, impairing Ward's business.

Barr further declared that WLB orders are not voluntarily accepted by most American industry, but are accepted in fact because "of coercion by the WLB and other agencies of the executive branch of the government."

Meanwhile, the army was reported running into difficult complexities in its attempted operation of 16 separate properties of Ward's extensive business totaling several hundred units. All properties are interwoven, and it is asserted that in many instances the army has taken over sections not contemplated in the seizure order.

Financial Problems Pile Up for Army in Ward's Offices

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Intricate financial and legal problems confronted the United States army yesterday as it continued its efforts to operate a large segment of the vast merchandising business of Montgomery Ward & Co.

In possession of about one quarter of the company's facilities, the army officers in charge struggled to find a satisfactory solution of myriad financial difficulties arising from the seizure ordered by Commander in Chief Roosevelt.

More Difficulties Seen.

The seizure has upset the procedures by which thousands of routine transactions normally are carried on between different units of the organization. The company's refusal to recognize the army's legal right to operate part of its business and the equally determined stand of the army to direct the operations threatened to bring about still more difficulties.

Among the immediate problems confronting the army was the disposition to be made of thousands of checks, money orders, and currency remittances received by the Chicago mail order plant and other plants in its possession. The checks and money orders are payable to Montgomery Ward & Co. and up to yesterday banks refused to accept them as deposits by the army because they did not carry the indorsement of company officials.

Meanwhile, company officials refused to give their indorsements to the checks and money orders to permit them to be deposited in the army custodian's accounts.

Trunks of Remittances.

Three trunk loads of the remittances piled up in the receiving office of the Chicago mail order plant, 618 W. Chicago av. It was said to be the largest accumulation of checks and currency ever seen in the plant. Normally such checks are sent daily to banks for deposit.

The army also was reported to be trying to develop a procedure for making refunds to customers. Thousands of such refunds are necessary daily because customers send in checks for merchandise that is not available. Earlier this week the army had issued drafts on Ward's treasurer for such payments to customers. The army's right to draw on Ward's treasury for funds was challenged by H. L. Pearson, company treasurer, in a letter sent Wednesday to Maj. Gen. Joseph W. Byron, military manager of the seized properties.

Paper Work Increases.

Ward's held that the writing of such drafts constituted a seizure of company funds not authorized in the Presidential order directing the army to take over part of the business.

Failure to make prompt remittances to cover overpayments by customers is expected to multiply the paper work of the army operators. Each day's delay in dispatching such payments will bring in more letters.

It was estimated that 45,000 payments to customers are being held up and the number will mount rapidly.

These and other immediate procedural difficulties arose because of the virtual separation of the business into two segments, one controled by the army and the other under the direction of the company management.

Problems of a more complex legal character also have developed as a result of the army seizure. One involves the status of former company employes now working for the army who were insured under the company's group insurance plan. It was reported that the insurance company which wrote the group insurance was preparing to hold up payments pending a clarification of the situation.

Many on Army Pay Roll.

A large number of the individuals insured under the policy, it was pointed out, no longer are employes of the company as a result of their transfer to the army pay roll. About 16,000 of Ward's 70,000 employes now are working for the government in the army controled units.

The army now is in possession of 16 Ward units, not one of which is an integrated operation. The army is operating 10 retail units, including the large Chicago av. store, three mail order houses, and three warehouses.

There are five main divisions into which the company organization heads up. These are: Administration, finance, buying, cataloging, and operating. None of these was taken over and the army controled properties are operating without benefit of their services.

Complex Questions Posed.

Under traditional company procedure a system of debits and credits is used to balance the thousands of daily transactions between different units of the organization. These ultimately balance out in the consolidated books of the company. With 25 per cent of the business split away and operated under independent management there are literally thousands of routine transactions that now involve complex questions.

In all Ward's operates in excess of 850 branches including its mail order catalog offices. There are more than 600 retail stores, including 17 large department stores. There are nine mail order houses. They handle 130,000 different items of merchandise ranging from farm equipment to diamond rings, some of the latter priced as high as $5,900.

CIVIC FEDERATION UPHOLDS BUDGET BAR ON CITY PAY BOOST

Refusal of the city council finance committee to recommend salary increases for municipal employes in the 1945 appropriation ordinance was indorsed by the Civic federation yesterday at the public hearing on the budget.

"We commend the committee for rejecting increases of $6,800,000 that were requested," said J. A. Cunningham, president of the federation. "This action is in line with the anti-inflation policy of the federal government."

Fifteen members of the finance committee, of which Ald. Bowler [25th] is chairman, met in the council chamber for the hour and one-half hearing on the budget, which will be submitted to the council Monday for adoption. The budget totals $169,849,591, compared with the 1944 budget of $164,658,059.

The committee was urged yesterday by Ferd Kramer, president of the Metropolitan Housing council, 69 W. Washington st., and representatives of other organizations to appropriate funds to increase the present staff of 25 sanitation inspectors to 75 in the health department. In its present form, the budget provides for three more inspectors.

Other speakers urging improved sanitation inspections represented the Association for Family Living, the Chicago Urgan league, Chicago Council of Negro organizations, CIO United Packing House workers, Women's City club, Cook County League of Women Voters, and other groups.

POLICEMAN GETS YEAR IN JAIL FOR SHOOTING THREE

Walter Gray, 45, suspended River Forest policeman, who shot three persons in a tavern at 6149 Ogden av., Cicero, while on a drunken rampage Oct. 13, was found guilty on a misdemeanor count last night by a jury of eight women and four men before Chief Justice Harold G. Ward of Criminal court.

The jury, after deliberating three hours, imposed the maximum penalty of a year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

Gray, who lost one of his legs several years ago in the unsolved bombing of his automobile, shot John F. Kessler Jr., the tavern owner, John Jira, and Jira's wife, May, both of 3702 Euclid av., after he lined them against the wall and kept them there for about an hour. Gray opened fire after remarking, "I'd better do a little shooting." Gray testified he had so many drinks on a tavern tour he did not remember the shooting.

Patricia Slightly Better; Sees Sights in Hospital

Patricia Attaway, lymphatic leukemia victim, was feeling "slightly better" yesterday, her father, Chief Petty Officer F. M. Attaway of the Seabees, said. In the afternoon Patricia took a ride in a wheelchair and saw part of St. Charles hospital, Aurora, where she has been a patient since Nov. 9. No hope is held for her recovery, the father said.

WOLL SAYS HE HAS LIAISON POLICEMEN, BUT NO BODYGUARDS

United States Atty. Woll denied yesterday that two Chicago policemen assigned to his office are there as his personal bodyguards. He explained that the pair, Sgt. Martin Joyce and Policeman Joseph Lang, are liaison between the police department and his office. Their work largely concerns arrests made by police that involved draft violations. The policemen also handle applications for alien travel permits. Before he took office in 1940, Woll said, there were as many as six city policemen assigned to the office, but he found a need for only two.

The two policemen assigned to guard former State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney will continue in that capacity "until they are no longer necessary," Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief investigator for the state's attorney's office, said yesterday.

Courtney said yesterday he could make no announcement yet of his plans for the future.

OPEN INVENTORY OF WORKERS IN 700 WAR PLANTS

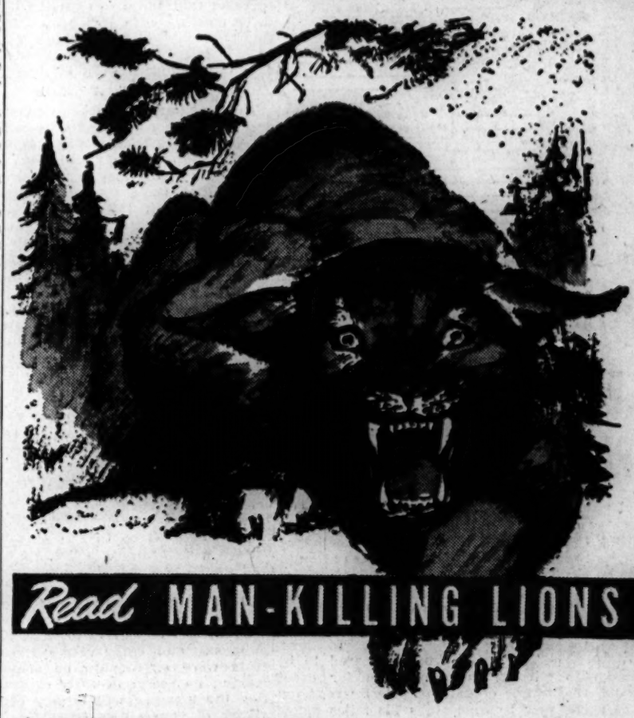

The war man power commission has started to take a worker inventory in Chicago's 700 major war plants as part of a drive to find 15,000 skilled workers for vacancies in 50 high priority establishments, William H. Spencer, regional WMC director, said yesterday.

Spencer said War Mobilization Director Byrnes' recent work or fight warning to 4-F's had not resulted in any increase in job applicants in Chicago or the four states of the WMC midwest region, and that he did not believe many would seek war plant work. Reports from several other regions, including Ohio, Kentucky, and Michigan, said many 4-F's had applied for jobs in the last two weeks.

Spencer also laid some of the blame for the present worker shortage in critical plants here to "choosy" employers, who, he said, hire less than half the workers referred to them by the United States employment service.

FORT SHERIDAN'S NAZIS EAT WELL AND WORK WELL

None Has Tried to Escape and Few Break Rules.

BY FRANK CIPRIANI.

The other day at Fort Sheridan, a German prisoner of war cleaning out a mess kitchen was overheard to remark, "Hitler promised us we'd march across America, but he didn't say we'd be picking up garbage on the way."

Don't be fooled by such a remark. The more than 1,300 German prisoners of war at Fort Sheridan, virtually all unreconstructed Nazis, are still tough, still militarily proud, and give no indication of a belief that Germany is losing the war.

Largely blond, well built and well disciplined, they represent a fair cross-section of Hitler soldiers. Their ages range from 15 to 56, but most are in the twenties. Some were captured in Tunisia, as their Afrika Korps caps show; some in Italy and Sicily, and the latest arrivals, in Normandy. All are privates.

1,700 Work in Branch Camps.

In addition to the 1,300 plus at the fort, more than 1,700 others are working at seven branch labor camps, including one at Thornton, under Fort Sheridan supervision.

Tough tho the Germans may be, Fort Sheridan officers permit no doubts that they are prisoners of war. Given every right provided by the Geneva convention, they are held to strict obedience to rules and to performance of a fair day's useful labor.

Col. George H. Cushman, commanding officer at Fort Sheridan, and Maj. Ernst R. Schuelke, commander of the base prisoner of war camp, assure humane treatment but require prisoners' coöperation.

Quick to Assert Rights.

Maj. Schuelke, formerly of Kohler, Wis., is a hard boiled executive who knows not only the prisoners' rights, but the American government's rights. He has to be hard boiled, for the Germans, all "Geneva convention lawyers," fully know their rights, and assert them.

In such a large colony, minor incidents are inevitable, and for offenders there are the disciplinary barracks, with bunk accommodations for 40 and a tier of wooden cells, reserved for the bread and water diet boys and humorously known both among prisoners and guards as the $5 rooms. Occupants are few in proportion to the number of prisoners.

Most violators receive the accepted forms of punishment, hard labor and deprivation of privileges. For example, the other day a young Nazi refused to do a chore ordered by his group leader, a fellow prisoner, and for this was put on 30 days' hard labor by Maj. Schuelke.

They Buy No Cigarets.

This meant that he must work 12 hours a day instead of the usual eight, at some such disagreeable task as shoveling coal, that he lost 70 cents of his daily 80 cent work wage, that he might not patronize the canteen, that he might not have a second helping at meal time, and that he might not have dessert. In addition it meant that he might smoke no more than three cigarets a day—if he had cigarets.

To set civilian cigaret smokers at ease, prisoners of war at Fort Sheridan are not permitted to buy American cigarets. In fact, they may not purchase any article in the shortage or rationed class. They may, however, buy bulk tobacco and roll their own or smoke it in pipes.

The prisoners at Fort Sheridan perform 167 different kinds of jobs. They range from straightening nails—a one man job performed by a southpaw—to mosquito abatement.

Mend Damaged Equipment.

The prisoners are perhaps most valuable in reclamation. They sort and repair anything from worn-out G. I. clothing to dented spades. Canteens will serve as an example. They come to Fort Sheridan by the thousands, dented, nicked, bent, smashed. A water pressure machine developed by Maj. Schuelke bulges them into original shape. If junked, they would bring only 10 cents apiece for their aluminum. New, they cost 90 cents. But the reclamation cost is less than 6 cents. Thus the saving is 74 cents each—and the monthly total ranges from $40,000 to $100,000.

In the last six months, items salvaged and repaired in all categories have exceeded 500,000.

Because of the civilian labor shortage, prisoner of war labor has found an increased demand. The Fort Sheridan base camp is required to supply needed prisoner labor in all Wisconsin, upper Michigan, and Cook, Lake and Du Page counties in Illinois.

Four Pulpwood Camps.

Already pulpwood prisoner camps are operating at Pori, Sidnaw, Autrain, and Evelyn, Mich., and food camps at Hartford and Rockfield, Wis. A seventh camp was opened Jan. 2 at the Libby, McNeill & Libby plant at Thornton. In all places old civilian conservation corps camps are used for housing. By summer, Fort Sheridan expects to operate 25 more branch camps, with additional thousands of prisoners.

Wages paid for prisoner of war labor are about $6 a day, all of which goes to the United States treasury. The prisoners are paid their 80 cents a day by the army in canteen coupons—never in cash. This is in addition to the 10 cents per day allowed to each prisoner.

Their food equals in quality and quantity that given to our own doughboys at the fort—a Geneva convention must.

The good treatment of the Nazis at Fort Sheridan is vouchsafed by their own camp leader, who has reported to authorities that the Geneva convention is being punctiliosuly observed. Better proof is the fact that since Fort Sheridan became a prisoner of war camp last May not one German has escaped or even tried to escape.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY MARYON ZYLSTRA

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Bill Schnitz, 424 Washington st., Gary, Ind.]

THE QUESTION.

WHERE ASKED.

THE ANSWERS.

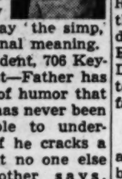

Lorraine Pape, singer, 1251 Grace st.—I make an Italian dish that consists of spaghetti, cheese, peppers, olive oil, carrots, and other ingredients too numerous to mention. A cousin of mine dubbed the dish goop. Now we've all called it goop for so long that the family and I no longer know what the original name for it is.

Lorraine Heaton, bookkeeper, 6839 Indiana av.—Cranch means crunch, but my sister started using it in a different manner. Whenever she would see a crunchy item of food, such as celery, radishes, raw carrots, etc., she'd say, "O, cranch!" Now cranching in our family means eating one of these crunchy foods.

Janeanne O'Brien, student, 3456 Jackson blvd.—When any one in our family looks out only for himself we say, "O, a Dick Smith!" That expression originated a long time ago when Dick Smith was a frequent guest of the family. He'd always light his own cigarets and then blow the match out without offering any one else a light.

Helena Redding, musician, South Bend, Ind.—For many years I've been interested in music. When I was struggling hard to be a success, my sisters and brothers thought I was foolish and referred to me as the simp. Now that I have attained some of my ambitions, they still say 'the simp,' but not with the original meaning.

Kathryn Dooley, student, 706 Keystone av., River Forest—Father has a sense of humor that mother has never been quite able to understand. If he cracks a joke that no one else gets, mother says, "The Dooley humor." If she doesn't understand something or it sounds unbelievable she'll say, "Is this the Dooley humor?"

James W. Fisher, manager, 6419 Fairfield av., Berwyn—A woman who lived next door to us was very close to our family. In conversation when she mentioned some one who was ill she'd say, "flongetus geboughten," which meant anything from a headache to near death. We adopted the expression. It doesn't mean a thing.

PRINTING TRADE IS 2D LARGEST IN NEW YORK CITY

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 5.—The second largest industry in New York City—garment making is first—is the printing trade, with 37,000 employes. That is one reason for New York's predominance in the intellectual life of the United States. In the written word [and spoken, too, for all the important lecture bureaus are in New York] it has a place nearer like a monopoly than even in finance or the show business.

Boston, which once boasted it was the intellectual capital of America, long ago lost first place in book and magazine publishing to New York. Today only two important houses [Houghton Mifflin and Little Brown] are still in Boston. Chicago in the 1890s and later had some publishing firms which counted. One of them, Stone & Kimball, even made such a high-brow venture as the first edition of Santayana's Sonnets. But Chicago seems to have abandoned the race before getting fairly started.

Maybe that went with the decline of the "Chicago school" of American literature [Masters, Sherwood Anderson, Ben Hecht, etc.]. Today the young Chicago writer probably would come to New York; or in any case, if he wants national reputation, he would have to deal with some of the 75 important literary agencies [not counting ghost writing services] or 220 book publishing firms in New York.

Big Advertising Business.

The allied business of advertising takes up three full pages in Manhattan's classified telephone directory. As you can imagine, it includes the head offices of all firms which operate on a national—some of them international—scale.

The public opinion of the United States is influenced from New York, probably more than by anything else, by its periodicals. Leaving aside magazines published purely or mainly for entertainment, can you think of those with national circulation published outside of New York? Yes, two — the Atlantic Monthly of Boston and the Yale Review of New Haven, both in the New York orbit. Once Philadelphia had its North American Review. Chicago likewise had the Dial, but even that was moved to New York before it quietly faded away.

Weeklies Influential.

Most influence of this sort probably is exercised by what Westbrook Pegler calls the butcher paper weeklies. Let no one be deceived because their circulation is tiny compared with the popular mastodons like the Saturday Evening Post, Life, or Collier's.

They go into schools and libraries, where each copy may reach hundreds and they have their bands of devoted zealots. These are precisely the ones who make their numbers count. They talk in clubs. They write to newspapers and congressmen. Each week the nation's cosmic busybodies get a fresh dose of "liberalism" and "leftism" from the professional thinkers of Manhattan.

Newspapers are another matter, and here New York is unlike most other great capitals of the world. Its daily press does not dominate the United States as that of London does Britain or that of Paris does France. Originally, the dispersion of our population and difficulties of communication prevented the press of any one city from becoming national, even if the desire had been there. But it wasn't, and absorption in local news is so strong still that within 100 miles from New York the vast majority buy the local daily in preference to the competing New York paper on sale beside it.

Papers Purely Local.

Can any one imagine what would be the circulation of a newspaper which devoted its front page, its main heads, and its best talent exclusively to news of international or national import, burying in obscure corners the items about the local worthies?

Nor has any American organization adopted the system used in Britain, and to some extent in France and in Germany under the Nazis, of publishing provincial editions of the great metropolitan dailies. Our chain newspapers [Hearst, for instance] are not a case to the contrary. Despite common "features"— in the technical sense—and a similarity of tone and policy, these remain local newspapers playing up to the community where they are published.

A big London daily, in contrast, sends by telephone or ticker the "leaders" and all the big stories of its home edition bodily to Manchester or Glasgow for its Midlands or Scottish editions. Even if the stories concern peculiarly London events, it is assumed these will be more interesting to the provincial public than what has happened nearer home. That will be there, too, of course, but in some special supplement added to the "original" or buried inside.

News' Circulation Tops.

New York may lay claim to having once had the only American newspaper truly national in presentation and tone, the New York Post, before and during the editorship of Walter Gay. That once proud name now bedecks a hysterical virus spreading tabloid. The old Post could stand comparison with the Times or News [London], the Manchester Guardian, the Temps or Figaro, the Frankfurter Zeitung, or the Corriere della Sera [Milan] when all those were at their best. The Post's circulation was microscopic. It was the only daily of its time which cost a nickel a copy.

At present the New York Times has some aspirations to being national, and is taken seriously by many people. How many of them, however, would read it exclusively and disregard the local press? On international events, certainly it is the only newspaper of ours which attempts to give the sort of coverage that might be approved by a future historian.

The New York News, with its circulation of nearly four million, has the largest national circulation by far. It sells thousands of papers in every state and even in the Hawaiian Islands.

Divorce Granted

MRS. ALICE JOHNSON.

Mrs. Alice Johnson, 26, of 1925 Sedgwick st., was granted a divorce for desertion yesterday when she told Superior Judge Joseph Sabath that her husband, Clyde, 29, a war worker, left home because his sister, Gladys, lived with them. Miss Johnson was a witness for Mrs. Johnson, represented by Atty. S. Edward Bloom. The Johnsons were married May 31, 1938, and separated Sept. 10, 1943. She was given $25 a week support for three children.

BURGLARS GET $746 TAVERN LOOT.

Burglars stole from Doyle's tavern, 803 S. Ashland av., 18 cases of liquor, eight cartons of cigarets, a radio, all valued at $700, and $46, James Pigott, proprietor, reported to police yesterday.

ARMS SHORTAGE HURTS AT FRONT, SOLDIERS WRITE

Rationing of bullets on the western battle line in Europe and strikes on the home front were described by three Chicago soldiers who sought to explain why American forces were halted or repelled by the Germans. Their letters reached THE TRIBUNE yesterday.

Pvt. M. J. Jakovich.

"Somebody's face is going to be awful red," wrote Sgt. Martin E. Underwood of 9623 Beverly av., reporting a shortage of ammunition and gasoline handicapping 9th army units in Belgium.

"We are lacking ammunition," Pvt. Marko J. Jakovich of 10835 Hoxie av., said in explanation of why "the Germans are pushing us back" somewhere in France.

Need War Material.

"We need war material so this war can be finished and we all can come home," T/4 Marion J. Donati, who neglected to give his address, wrote.

Lack of ammunition and the belief of the "people back home" that the war is virtually at an end were cited by Pvt. Jakovich, writing Dec. 22 to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Jakovich. He has been in the army since May 18, 1942, and formerly was a pitcher at Bowen High school. After reporting a shortage of ammunition in his area he added:

"The people back home seem to think the war is over and are going to jobs which they are sure to hold after the war."

Tells of Rationing.

Necessity of rationing ammunition in his area prevented the Americans from "finishing it off" in Belgium just before the German drive started, Sgt. Underwood wrote under date of Dec. 16 to S. Jepson Sutton, area manager for the war production board in Chicago. Underwood formerly was principal administrative assistant for the WPB salvage division here.

"Things aren't going well out here, as you know," Sgt. Underwood said. "If we had had enough ammunition and gasoline a couple of months ago we could have finished it off. It's a hell of a note and I'm afraid somebody's face is going to be awful red. As it is now, the Germans really are dug in and have plenty of time to get set."

Technician Donati, also telling of a shortage of ammunition, wrote that his bunk in France was a muddy ditch and "my ears are full of E. T. O. [European theater of operations] mud."

After strikers experieneed dodging bullets, sleeping in fox holes, soaking in mud, eating from a can, hearing the moans of the wounded, hearing snipers' bullets, Donati said, "we'd send them home again to $10 jobs to tell the other guys what they had seen down E. T. O. way."

Advises Deliberation

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5 (AP).—Sen. Connally [D., Tex.] urged Democratic members of the senate today to refrain from making commitments on foreign proposals until a new international security conference can be held.

Connally, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, arose in the midst of the routine reëlection of party officials by the Democratic caucus to voice a plea that members keep an open mind on controversial international questions. Questioned about it later, the Texas senator told a reporter he had advised his colleagues "not to run off across the field after a rabbit while the fox is going down the road."

TAXICAB DRIVER ROBBED.

Anthony Conil, of 1315 Chicago av., a cab driver, told police yesterday that two men, one armed, forced him to drive to Illinois and Rush sts., where they robbed him of $20.

CHICAGO EVANSTON OAK PARK GARY

SLAVS TO BEGIN CELEBRATION OF YULE TONIGHT

100,000 Chicagoans to Attend Services.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Tonight is Christmas eve for at least 100,000 Chicagoans of Slavic birth or descent. Russian, Ukrainian, and Serbian Orthodox, and Greek Catholic [Carpatho-Russian] churches are adorned for tomorrow's great feast of the nativity of Christ. The Greek Orthodox church has adopted the Gregorian calendar and observes Christmas on Dec. 25, whereas Slavic churches, and the Church of the East [Nestorian] follow the Julian calendar.

The 100,000 Chicago communicants of these churches are divided among six communions in estimates made by the Rev. Michael Lenovsky, pastor of St. Michael's Greek Catholic church, 2419 N. Campbell av. He said 60,000 are Russian, 25,000 Ukrainian, 20,000 of his Carpatho-Russian faith, 10,000 Serbian, and several thousand are members of the Church of the East.

Services Are Announced.

The Rt. Rev. Bishop Leonty of the Russian diocese announced services at Holy Trinity cathedral, 1121 N. Leavitt st., beginning at 9 o'clock this morning. Tonight at 7 will be Christmas compline and matins, and the brilliant Christmas divine liturgy will begin tomorrow morning at 10. On Christmas, many churches of the Eastern rites use the liturgy of St. Basil the Great in place of the liturgy of St. Chrysostom. Father Lenovsky announced a midnight mass at St. Michael's with high mass tomorrow morning at 10. Tomorrow night will be marked by great vespers at 7.

Ukrainian Christmas carols will open Christmas eve services tonight at SS. Peter and Paul Orthodox church, 9211 S. Avalon av., at 10 o'clock, with the Rev. Francis M. Donahue, pastor, celebrating midnight mass following the carols. Tomorrow, masses will be offered at 8:30 and 10 a. m.

Prepare at Harvest Time.

Father Donahue, explaining Ukrainian customs in the home at this season, said that preparation for Christmas began at harvest time when a bundle of hay and a sheaf of wheat was ceremonially set apart. On Christmas eve a thin layer of hay is laid under the tablecloth and a small bunch of hay is put on the floor beneath the table, in token of the Infant Christ's humility in being laid in a manger.

When the first star appears in the sky, the Christmas eve feast is served, composed of 12 dishes symbolizing the 12 apostles. In the center of the table is placed a bowl of "kutya"—a compote of wheat, honey, poppy seed, and nuts—which is served only twice in the year and eaten in accordance with the traditional rite. This is followed by jellied fish, "borsch," strudel, and fruits, but no form of meat is used by Ukrainians.

HELD FOR FIRING AT POLICE.

Cleveland Austin, 20, Negro, was held to the grand jury yesterday by Judge Joseph Drucker in Boys' court on a charge of firing five shots at two policemen who chased him and seized him. Police said the gun he had was stolen.

Train Runs Over Youth and Crushes His Ankle

PORT OF CHICAGO KEPT AT SEA BY YANK SOUVENIRS

BY KAY CLANCY.

Things are different at the Port of Chicago, where customs officials used to be concerned chiefly with collecting duty on imported commercial goods. American soldiers with a yen for sending home souvenirs and gifts caused the change.

Rationing is one of the new problems. Examining Japanese cigarets for narcotics is another. Customs officials even examine the straw in grass skirts to make sure it does not come from a country where there is hoof and mouth disease.

Must Collect Stamps.

Properly wrapped packages are not examined. But if a soldier neglects to comply with custom and mailing regulations, his package is greeted with groans and not gladness when it contains rationed articles. Custom officials, like the corner grocery store, must then exact the stamps as "pay."

Frequently the one to whom the gift is addressed has not enough stamps and then the customs office is stuck. It can mark the article "refused" and return to the sender or keep the stuff in the hope some one in the family will muster up stamps. Usually the family finally gets enough stamps.

When the folks at home wrote at length on the hardship of coffee rationing some of the boys in Australia thought it would be nice to surprise the relatives and send over a few pounds. They felt that way about butter, too, which they could purchase in hermetically sealed cans. One young lieutenant sent his wife a pair of shoes and she had to wait until the next shoe stamp was good before she could "lift" them.

Few Packages Examined.

But the boys have learned to comply with custom regulations now and few packages are examined by officials. If a package is accompanied by a certified list of contents and the value of the items, it is segregated, but suspicious looking packages are examined.

Grass skirts, officials say, lead in popularity as souvenirs.

Last month customs officials handled 130,000 packages from soldiers. Most of the gifts sent home are under $50 in value and no customs may be levied. [Civilians are permitted a $1 valuation before duty is collected.] As more men go overseas, the volume of mail continues to shoot up and perspiring customs men have no way of knowing where it will end.

Now that butter is so high in ration points they are hoping the men in uniform will refrain from putting it back on their list.

LACK QUORUM FOR HIGHWOOD COUNCIL AGAIN

Mayor Charles Portilia of Highwood again was compelled to adjourn the scheduled meeting of the city council last night because of a lack of a quorum. Only one alderman, Americo Luderini, appeared.

The other five, apparently piqued because of Portilia's appointment of Charles Singer as chief of police, have remained away from meetings since Oct. 13. As a result bills totaling $6,000 have not been paid.

77 IN CONGRESS BEAR BRAND OF 'HILLMAN BLOC'

Subservience Is Shown in Dies Committee Vote.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—Seventy-seven members of the new congress have accepted the "Hillman bloc" label, an analysis of the roll call vote on perpetuating the house committee on un-American activities revealed today.

The CIO News, official weekly of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, after the November elections listed 96 representatives who, it was claimed, owed their victories to support of Sidney Hillman's political action committee.

Several successful candidates repudiated the CIO-PAC brand but a majority of those listed remained silent. The opening day vote giving permanency to the old Dies committee, legislators of both parties agreed, afforded a true test on PAC subservience by those included in the CIO listing.

Party Split Widens.

Deep political significance was attributed to the vote. Some observers glimpsed a reshuffling of party lines and a widening split in the Democratic majority.

Only three Republicans were listed among the 77 who indicated their loyalty to CIO bidding by voting against a continued probe of subversive activities in the nation. The 73 Democrats and one American Laborite who cast negative votes were almost wholly from northern urban districts.

Seven Democrats, listed by the CIO as PAC congressmen, voted for the committee and are expected, as a result, to be read out of the Hillman party. They were:

Representatives D'Alesandro [Md.], Johnson [Okla.], Stigler [Okla.], Stewart [Okla.], White [Idaho], Wickersham [Okla.].

5 Illinoisans in CIO Camp.

The three Republicans claimed by the CIO who indicated their acceptance of the Hillman label by voting against the committee were Representatives Bender and Bolton [O.], and Bennett [N. Y.].

The five Illinoisans upon whom the CIO set the Hillman brand after the election all cleared themselves with Sidney by their vote. They were Representatives Sabath, Kelly, Douglas, Resa, and Price.

Six members listed by the CIO as faithful followers may have some explaining to do because they failed to vote. They were Representatives Coffee [D., Wash.], Crawford [R., Mich.], Dingell [D., Mich.], Fogarty [D., R. I.], Harless [D., Ariz.], and Neely [D., W. Va.].

Democrats Listed.

Following are the Democratic representatives, in addition to those already mentined, whom the CIO claimed to have elected and whose votes against the investigation of un-American activities indicate the authenticity of the claim:

Representatives Anderson [N. Mex.], Bailey [W. Va.], Barrett [Pa.], Bates [Ky.], Biemiller [Wis.], Boren [Okla.], Bradley [Pa.], Cheif [Ky.], Clements [Ky.], De Lacy [Wash.], Douglas [Cal.], Doyle [Cal.], Eberharter [Pa.], Engle [Cal.], Fernandez [N. Mex.], Folger [N. C.], Forand [R. I.], Gallagher [Minn.], Gardner [O.], Geelan [Conn.], Granahan [Pa.], Granger [Utah], Green [Pa.], Gregory [Ky.], Hart [N. J.], Havenner [Cal.], Healy [Cal.], Hedrick [W. Va.], Hollifield [Cal.], Hook [Mich.], Izac [Cal.], Kee [W. Va.], Kirwan [O.], Kopplemann [Conn.], Lane [Mass.], Lesinski [Mich.], Ludlow [Ind.], McCormack [Mass.], McGlinchey [Pa.], Madden [Ind.], Mansfield [Mont.]; Monroney [Okla.], Miller [Cal.], Murdock [Ariz.], Norton [N. J.], O'Brien [Mich.], O'Neal [Ky.], Outland [Cal.], Patrick [Ala.], Patterson [Cal.], Powell [N. Y.], Rabaut [Mich.], Rains [Ala.], Robinson [Utah], Ryter [Conn.], Sadowski [Mich.], Savage [Wash.], Sheridan [Pa.], Spence [Ky.], Starkey [Mich.], Sullivan [Mo.], Thom [O.], Tolan [Cal.], Traynor [Del.], Voorhis [Cal.], Wasielewski [Wis.], Welch [Cal.], Woodhouse [Conn.].

Rep. Marcantonio [A. L., N. Y.], known in the house as the "Daily Worker congressman" because of the prominence he receives in that official organ of the Communist party, was the 77th member of the bloc revealed by the analysis.

This tabulation accounted for 90 of the 96 members claimed by the CIO-PAC. The other six, it developed, were not winning candidates when all the votes were counted.

IT'S YOUNG MAN'S WAR NO LONGER, HERSHEY WARNS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5 (AP).—The war "can no longer be regarded as a young man's war," Maj. Gen. Hershey said today in an editorial in the official publication, Selective Service.

"True," the national draft director said, "the young man makes the best warrior and should be in the fighting ranks if he is physically fit, unless he is irreplaceable in production most critical to the prosecution of the war. The older registrant who is required for war work and can do it and will not, must be made available for whatever military service he can render."

Hershey indicated that more pressure would be brought to bear on those who are not either in uniform or in essential work. It is a case, he said, with the exception of essential workers, "that every lug who can lug a gun and isn't, is likely to be invited to lug it."

DICK TRACY

DEMOCRATS ADD TO COMMITTEE POWER IN HOUSE

Martin Is Assailed for Accepting Plan.

BY LAURENCE BURD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—House Democrats today stengthened their control over the chamber by boosting their proportionate representation over the Republicans on key major committees for the 79th congress.

Senate Democrats, meanwhile, reelected Sen. Barkley [Ky.] majority leader and completed their organization for the new session except for the filling of committee vacancies, which was deferred until next week.

The house changes were agreed to at a conference of Speaker Rayburn [D., Tex.], Majority Leader McCormack [D., Mass.], and Minority Leader Martin [R., Mass.]. The higher committee proportions for the majority party were accepted by Martin as a result of the Democrats' pickup of 27 house seats in the November elections.

Cut Size of Committee.

The two most significant losses for the Republicans, in the view of congressional experts, were in the rules committee, which has power to choke off or approve all pending bills, and in the new permanent committee on un-American activities, successor to the Dies committee.

In the rules group, as a result of the new agreement, the Democrats will have a 2 to 1 majority, with eight members against four Republicans. The minority previously had a higher percentage, with five members to nine, but Martin acceded to Democratic demands for reducing the size of the group by leaving two vacancies unfilled.

The Democrats also will have a powerful 2 to 1 margin over the minority on the un-American activities group, with six members, against three for the Republicans. On the predecessor Dies committee the minority had three members against only five for the majority.

The Republicans also suffered a net loss of two seats on the naval affairs committee, and the Democrats gained two posts on the interstate commerce committee, and one each on the foreign affairs and banking committees.

Martin Criticized.

Altho Martin defended the revisions as the "best bargain we could make," numerous other Republican congressmen expressed disappointment with Martin's concessions. They observed that the G. O. P. still holds 190 house seats, or 44 per cent of the total of 435, and claimed this justified more than a 1 to 2 proportion on all major committees.

One member, who declined to be quoted by name in the interest of G. O. P. house unity, criticized Martin for giving in too easily to administration forces in the past, and declared today's action is further evidence of the same tendency. The concessions, it was said, may handicap the G. O. P. in its efforts to force important remedial legislation out of committees for house consideration.

The proportion of party seats was left unchanged in five major committees—appropriations, agriculture, judiciary, military affairs, and ways and means. In 35 minor committees, the Democrats gained one seat each in eight, and 27 were left unchanged.

Reëlected members of both parties will retain their old committee assignments in most cases, and vacancies will be filled within the next few days by the committee on committees for each party.

Senate Democrats reëlected all their officers at a party caucus and pledged their support to Sen. McKellar [Tenn.] for president pro tem or vice president of the senate. Since the Democrats have control of the senate, his election is assured. He will succeed Sen. Glass [Va.], who said he did not wish the post again because of his illness. Glass is 87.

Reëlect Hill.

Barkley was reëlected chairman of the party caucus and its steering committee, as well as majority leader. Sen. Hill [Ala.] was reëlected the party's whip.

The caucus renamed Edwin A. Halsey secretary of the senate and Leslie Biffle secretary of the majority.

The steering committee was authorized to fill the committee vacancies.

The major vacancies to be filled are three Democratic seats on the foreign relations committee. Sen. Lucas [Ill.] is a contender for one of them.

Vito Burde, accused of fatally injuring watchman and driving his body to hiding place in an alley.

Vito Burde, 23, of 845 S. Racine av., a truck driver, was arrested at work yesterday as the hit and run driver whose car Jan. 1 killed Richard Cleary, 50, of 1020 S. Cicero av., at Cicero av. and Roosevelt rd.

Police said Burde, who was arrested by Detective James Barron on information from an anonymous source, confessed that he had struck Cleary while he and his wife and two other women were driving a soldier to Hines hospital. He said they placed Cleary in their car and drove around debating what to do with the injured man. Finally, he said, one of the party felt Cleary's pulse and announced he was dead. Burde said they then drove to an alley at 4042 Roosevet rd., and dumped Cleary's body.

Police records showed that Burde was arrested for speeding in 1937 and 1939 was dismissed on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident.

One man was injured and three others were shaken when their automobile was rammed by a caterpillar truck trailer, loaded with steel, which had been struck by a Nickel Plate railroad passenger train on the 135th st. crossing near Baltimore av. The truck driver, waiting for a freight train to pass as he left the Pressed Steel Car company, Inc., plant, leaped to safety when he saw the passenger train. The injured man, Jacob Zemkas, 5059 Wells st., was removed to St. Margaret's hospital, Hammond, Ind.

WALKER SLATED TO KEEP POST IN F. D. R. CABINET

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—Reports of a shift in the cabinet seat of the postoffice department were exploded today when Postmaster General Walker said he had no idea of leaving his place and Democratic National Chairman Hannegan said he had no plans except to remain at the head of the party organization.

Hannegan, who had been reported as striving for Walker's post, had a luncheon conference with the President. He said his conference did not concern the cabinet. He said the nation has "a good postmaster general now."

Reports that Hannegan might succeed Walker were somewhat discounted earlier in the week when it was disclosed Hannegan is being paid $20,000 a year and expenses as chairman.

Mr. Roosevelt today parried questions about another reported cabinet change in the department of commerce. He was asked if he had received a letter from Vice President Wallace asking for the post now occupied by Jesse Jones. Mr. Roosevelt answered that he would have to look into his personal files.

DEMOCRAT SELECTED FOR CHICAGO AID TO SECRETARY OF STATE

Secretary of State-elect Edward J. Barrett, who will control more than 800 full time state jobs when he takes office Monday, made his first appointment yesterday. He said that Edward T. Baran, brother of Sanitary Trustee Joseph T. Baran, will be executive in charge of the automobile division of the Chicago office at 336 S. Ashland av.

Baran assumes his new duties when Barrett takes office. He has been general manager of the Cornell Provision company of Chicago. He is married, has two children, and resides at 2228 Iowa st. Baran is a native Chicagoan and for 15 years has been active in the Democratic organization of the 26th ward, where his brother is ward committeeman.

Early appointment of Baran was made because of the present rush of business in the west side office, where the sale of 1945 auto license plates is in full swing. Baran will replace Frank M. Kalteux, 38th ward Republican committeeman.

BYRNES 3 YEARS LATE WITH PLAN, WILEY CHARGES

BY PHILIP DODD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—Sen. Wiley [R., Wis.] today supported a proposal of War Mobilization Director Byrnes that members of the President's cabinet be given the privilege of appearing in person before congress to discuss legislation, but charged that the Byrnes plan was similar to one advanced by Wiley 10 months before Pearl Harbor but pigeonholed by the administration.

"In February, 1941," said Wiley in an interview, "I introduced a resolution asking the secretary of state to report in executive session to the senate on the threat of war in the far east and our preparations to meet it.

"At that time the state department knew that war in the Pacific was rapidly approaching. But administration forces pigeonholed the resolution.

Wiley said he planned to introduce a resolution in the senate again requesting the secretary of state to report in person on American foreign policy.

SLAYER OF BRIDE IN LOWER 13 DIES IN GAS CHAMBER

Salem, Ore., Jan. 5 (AP).—Robert E. Lee Folkes died in the state's lethal gas chamber today for the "lower 13" slaying of Mrs. Martha Virginia James.

"I have nothing to say except that I am innocent," the 23 year old Negro told reporters in the death cell. He said he had been convicted because "it's easier to convict a Negro than a white person."

The state had charged Folkes, a dining car cook, had crept into the berth of a navy ensign's bride and slashed her throat when she resisted him. The slaying occurred on a Southern Pacific train thundering thru a snow covered countryside Jan. 23, 1943. The husband of the victim, navy Lt. Richard F. James, later killed in a plane crash, was traveling in the second section.

First to See Chamber.

Folkes walked into the lethal gas chamber without a blindfold—the first condemned man to see the chamber. The blindfold was placed upon his eyes before the poison pellets were dropped.

"So long, everybody," he said as the door to the gas chamber closed. He entered the chamber at 9:04 a. m., the pellets were dropped at 9:07, and he was pronounced dead at 9:13. The execution was witnessed by 95 spectators.

He had partaken of nothing all night except coffee.

Governor Kept Awake.

The Rev. C. H. Steinmann, Salem, who spent part of the night with him, said the Negro maintained his innocence thruout their conversations. The Negro's mother, Mrs. Clara Folkes, Los Angeles, left him last night.

Gov. Snell said he had received hundreds of phone calls during the night, and had neither eaten nor slept. In a statement he said he was unable to grant clemency because of evidence "which convinces me beyond any doubt of the guilt of Robert E. Lee Folkes.

A NATION IN THE DARK.

The announcement of Field Marshal Montgomery's assumption of command of the allied forces on the north flank of the Belgian bulge was made 16 days after the event. The disclosure was forced from Mr. Roosevelt, the war department, and supreme headquarters in Europe in a very curious way. A magazine, thru some favoritism or other, was permitted to get the story out of France when all the rest of the American correspondents, who must have been equally aware of the facts, were forced to sit on the news. When publication was made the authorities in this country were confronted with the demand to know whether it was true. Only then did they talk.

This episode can be related to innumerable others, all of which point to the undisputable conclusion that the American people are being kept in the dark by their political, military, and diplomatic spokesmen as to the truth regarding the war. This evidence is to be found on every hand.

American correspondents have been making the most vigorous representations to the supreme allied command about news lags, stupid censorship, and favoritism to the British Broadcasting corporation and others. The handling of the Montgomery story demonstrates that they have not been permitted to do their job of keeping the people abreast of the news.

Congress is little better informed about matters of vital concern. For example, is it or is it not true that Russia has been granted leave by Mr. Roosevelt to use lend-lease arms in equipping an army to enforce the Lublin vest pocket government's rule over Poland? Congress proposes to find out. The executive branch has not chosen to inform the people's representatives.

Then there are the thousand and one intimations of a hidden diplomacy which governs world-important decisions, but of which neither the people nor congress know anything. The London Economist this week hints that the German offensive was in part successful because of mistaken policies forced upon British leaders by Mr. Roosevelt at the 1943 and 1944 Quebec conferences. It is asserted that the President there agreed to the dismemberment of Germany in order to compensate Poland for the loss of her eastern provinces to Russia, as previously agreed to, and that the threat of partition renewed the German will to resist. Neither the agreement that Russia was to get east Poland nor Mr. Roosevelt's assent to the plan of dismembering Germany has ever been openly admitted to the people.

Private observers find the same discrepancies. Frederick C. Crawford, chairman of the executive committee of the National Association of Manufacturers, has returned from a visit to liberated Europe with the conviction that conditions there are far different from what the people have been told. No one is in a position to say whether all of his conclusions are justified or not. The facts by which they might be judged have been withheld.

Many more instances might be cited in proof of the fact that this country has been left to grope in a dimly lit no man's land of truth, half truth, fantasy, and outright deception. As to what is fact and what is opinion in the total aggregate of what we have been permitted to learn no one can say.

There is one thing, however, which can be said and that is that the New Deal has played the people false. It is the responsibility of government to assure that the people are given truth and not lies, facts and not hearsay, knowledge and not deception. Without the full truth citizens cannot determine where they are being led, or how, or why. The facts upon which judgments can be based have too frequently been suppressed, or distorted, or misrepresented.

The clew that the New Deal intellectual leadership has deliberately created these conditions is to be found in the merciless advantage they have taken of the fact that the people cannot find the facts to make an intelligent appraisal of any problem for themselves. In lieu of the truth the New Deal leaders offer a prefabricated and predigested body of doctrine to apply to the problems of the war and the peace and say that it must be accepted without any deviation. Those who dissent are hounded. The Washington philosophy is that the people do not need the facts; that the facts are too good for them.

If the people are to escape being taken down an ever more darkening road they must demand before it is too late that their leadership give them a full and frank accounting, day by day and week by week. The war is not a private concern of a few men in Washington. It is the business of all the people. The world that will be shaped by the peace is not one in which Mr. Roosevelt alone must live. It is the world in which all Americans must live.

THE NEXT TEST.

The vote in the house on the continuance of the Dies inquiry showed no less than 186 members accepting the leadership of the PAC, including 34 Republicans, 150 Democrats, and 2 representatives of minor parties. Sidney Hillman and his following were determined to put an end to the investigation because it had demonstrated the Communist connections of many of the leading figures in the CIO and the PAC. That had to be stopped if the PAC were to continue to command congressional support.

It may well be that not all of the 186 were consciously accepting the PAC's dictation but no doubt most of them were and, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, the country can assume that the strength of the PAC's bloc has now been revealed. The test showed that a substantial majority is not afraid of Hillman.

The fight, however, is not over. It will continue thruout the session. It is already apparent that the Hillman forces have not accepted their defeat. The effort now is to pack the committee with left-wingers and at the same time to restrict its activities by giving it very little money with which to operate. If either of these schemes succeeds, the will of the majority will have been frustrated.

What the country wants and expects is a continuing, alert, and comprehensive investigation of the activities of individuals and groups in this country who are aiming to destroy the Republic and replace it with some kind of a totalitarian regime. The congressmen assigned to the committee should not be men who are sympathetic with the revolutionaries.

The showdown is coming soon. We shall know from the makeup and the budget of the committee on un-American activities whether congress is able and willing to assert its independence of the most powerful lobby this country has known since the late and unlamented Anti-Saloon league went over the hill.

The first test was encouraging. If the house continues to withstand the pressure, the nation will have reason to rejoice.

IF THE GENTLEMEN WANT TO WIN.

The Republican national committeemen who will hold their first meeting since the election at Indianapolis on Jan. 22 are, almost all of them, professional politicians. They will reap the same direct and indirect personal benefits if a Republican national administration comes into power that the Democratic national committeemen now reap from a Democratic national administration.

These facts are not presented as criticism. They merely indicate that the national committeemen, in their conduct of party affairs, have harmed themselves as much as they have harmed the voters who entrust the management of the party machinery to them. The party has been betrayed twice already, and if they want to win in 1946 and 1948, it is up to them to take precautions against a third betrayal.

The argument used to accomplish the nomination of Mr. Willkie was the same fallacious one that was dusted off four years later and used successfully on behalf of Gov. Dewey. The party was assured that it would have to suppress its natural sentiments, originating in its middle western strongholds, and appeal to the sentiments of the eastern seaboard if it wanted to win. To do them credit, the professional politicians didn't want Willkie. To the discredit of their reputations for sagacity, they fell for Dewey.

They should have been forewarned by the nominating convention. The only genuine outburst of enthusiasm at its sessions was for Gov. Bricker the day he renounced the Presidential nomination. The delegates who nominated Gov. Dewey received him with apathy. He got the nomination because of the fiction that only he could carry New York.

He didn't carry New York. He lost it by approximately the same proportions by which he lost Illinois. He even lost former Republican strongholds in upstate New York cities. Gov. Bricker would have stirred enough Illinois voters who were apathetic to Gov. Dewey to carry this state, and he would not have been the drag on state candidates that Dewey proved to be. He certainly could have done no worse in New York than Dewey did.

Gov. Bricker stood by the principles in which the vast majority of Republicans believe. Gov. Dewey tried to slide into office by indorsing the principles of his opponent. The voters weren't fooled, and the party is still suffering the effects of his "me, too" campaign. Mr. Roosevelt's vaunted foreign policy carried him only as far as the polls and then blew up. Poland and Greece demonstrated its emptiness and fraud. The Republican opposition in congress should be making political capital of this, but the majority of the Republican members are still cowed and bewildered by the beating they took at the hand of their own Presidential candidate.

The national committee has more important tasks at Indianapolis than the creation of effective party machinery, essential as that is. It has to get the party back on the track of the American principles which have always been its strength. It has to commit itself to an American foreign policy and to a domestic policy based on faith in free enterprise and opposition to state socialism. It should have learned by now that it cannot win by aping Roosevelt, or by accepting the leadership of the Wall st. Republicans who are Roosevelt stooges.

A GOOD MEMORIAL.

The last general assembly appropriated $25,000 for a memorial to the late Gov. Frank O. Lowden. The state department of public works has just taken this money, with an equal sum, partly raised among Gov. Lowden's old neighbors in Oregon, Ill., and partly from state land acquisition funds, and has purchased 275 acres of land on the Rock river, near the former governor's home, for development as a memorial park.

This is a most sensible move and one that the state and the city of Chicago alike should keep as a precedent for future actions. Chicago, Springfield, and most of the other cities of the state are cluttered by memorial statues. Occasionally we get a Saint Gaudens Lincoln, but more often it is a Haym Salomon or even a Haymarket policeman. Gov. Lowden loved Illinois, and particularly loved the Rock river country to which he retired to spend the pleasant twilight of his life. Illinois' budding state park system needs expansion and development. No finer memorial could be found to the governor than a park where citizens of his state may enjoy the kind of beauties that he did.

MR. PEPYS FINDS A HOBBY.

6th Jan.—Now comes Twelfth Day, which used to be called Old Christmas, and every one has settled down to business as usual, for the new year is almost one week old and seems like its forerunner except for lack of talk about the war's coming to a quick close. Spent the last weekend in seclusion, struggling with a rheum in the head, and also with the income tax return, which offers a pretty problem in clairvoyance.

Dined with the Sherlock Holmes brotherhood last night, and great scholarship was displayed by all present except myself. Have a happy faculty of forgetting the fine points in the famous stories, and thus am able to find new pleasure whenever I re-read them.

Wrapped up my Christmas cards for sending to a hospital, where patients who need amusement make good use of them, I'm told. Have done this for the last three years, and received thanks from the nurse in charge of such matters. Burned my Christmas tree on a wind-swept prairie, and it made a fine sight in the night.

Am approaching the end of my 15th year on the staff of this newspaper, which is longer than I have worked for any other; yet the January of 1930 seems only a short time ago. Have been asked by the editor of the intramural magazine, which makes note of such anniversaries, what is my hobby. Told her to skip this point, for I either have no hobby at all or too many to mention. Having thought it over, however, decided that my hobby is working for this newspaper.

VISION OF PEACE.

The snow is white,
Brown shrubs are bare
And gardens lie
In deep despair;

Yet barren twigs on every tree
Foretell the fruit that is to be,
And tho you do not see them now,
The pears are gold upon the bough.
Red berries gleam among the leaves;
Ripe grain is bound in yellow sheaves.

The fields lie bare in many lands,
While terror holds upon the sands.
Still, there are those who see them now—
Sweet apples hanging on the bough.

I want to trade a gorgeous yellow hand-knit necktie for anything of value. It, tha necktie, has got a beautiful pink carnation crosshayed right in front, but if you tie it just right it won't look like fruit or a vegetable. I will admit its kind of short on both ends, which is very practical on a/c you can also wear it as a bow-tie.

Another great sacrifice I'm willing to make is to exchange a smoking jacket for something to smoke. With this trade I will throw in fer nothing a calendar that our butcher gave me; it has a picture of a very sweet cow on it and is entitled, "I am contented." Seems on a/c I'm with his shebang 5 yrs. he says as how each dollar represents a year of faithful service. Gosh, I can hardly wait fer 1959 to roll around; just think of it, 20 bucks all in one lump. Let's see; now there's 20% withholding, 1% social security plus my regular 5 buck contribution fer F. D. R.'s 8th term, an $9.22 fer a new coat fer tha Mama which I really ought to get her. I anticipate
A tough peace time job,
For won't that guy, now in France,
Make me the goat
For his overcoat,
His shirts, his socks, and his pants!

They were hanging around;
I put them on—
I do like his taste in apparel;
But I see that guy
With a gleam in his eye,
And me right over a barrel!

And will I enjoy it!
He will, too—
The scales of justice may waggle,
But the family
Won't be helping me;
They will line up with him when we haggle.

As to price of his things
Which I have used,
Inflation no doubt has enlarged them;
Yet I must attest
He bought the best;
He always did—and charged them!

Yes, there are regular air mail letter cards available free at all post offices. No postage is required on these letter cards. Ask for W. D., P. M. G. form No. 111. There is no limit to the number of letters that can be sent.

D. F. writes: "My husband is in the army in Holland. We both love children but have none. My husband has suggested we adopt one. If we do, can we get an allowance from the government and how soon?"

LIFESAVING MEASURES AT THE FRONT.

LETTERS reach this department daily inquiring about the medical and surgical care of our casualties on the battle fronts. Reassurance can be given wholeheartedly. There never was a time in our history when an injured warrior was so likely to recover. The statement has been attributed to the surgeon general's office that 97 out of every 100 now survive.

The chief lifesaving factor is speed in getting the wounded back to small, improvised hospitals where they can receive expert attention. This organization is a development of the present conflict. The setup is of particular value in jungle warfare where handicaps of a tropical atmosphere must be combated. First of all, the soldier is treated on the field of battle. Essential dressings and splints are applied and the litter bearers then convey the sufferers to a near-by shelter where anything that can be done in a modern well equipped city institution is carried out.

As a rule, the anesthetic employed is pentothal sodium. As soon as the drug takes effect, fractures can be manipulated, cleansed, and splinted with perfect ease, safety, and without pain. If the individual has lost blood, plasma is immediately at hand. So are bottles of salt and glucose solutions, which are in great demand because so much fluid is excreted by perspiration. In addition, hot food is available from a temporary kitchen, wherein sanitary requirements are met satisfactorily.

Here the patient remains until he can be evacuated [for the most part, by air] to a larger center. Very little of this front line surgery will need to be redone once a base hospital is reached.

What sort of lesions are encountered? The principal weapons of the enemy are machine guns, rifles, grenades, and mortars. As we know, the Jap specializes in sharpshooting and sniping. Most of the lacerations involve the soft tissues of the extremities. But sometimes delicate surgery is required because nerves are severed, blood vessels destroyed, and bones shattered.

"We cannot pay sufficient tribute," writes one medical officer from New Guinea, "to the sulfonamides, tetanus toxoid, quinine, and morphine. All have proved invaluable." The sulfa remedies probably receive more credit than they deserve but let's accord it to them. They are valiant destroyers of germs and we are willing to lay a laurel wreath on their altar.

"At first our service men were easily shocked," he continued, "but they have learned that a stout heart can overcome fatigue and loneliness. Furthermore, they have acquired the knack of conserving their strength for emergencies. It is the fine spirit of our G. I.s that has made the success of the medical department so spectacular.

"One complication which bothers us no end are fungous growths, especially of the skin. In many instances, these parasites delay healing. The sulfa drugs are usually harmless against these invaders. Nevertheless, they are being overcome slowly but surely."

We must not forget that the corpsmen, who make up the first aid detachments, are extremely skilful. They exemplify high courage. They seek out the wounded under fire and, somehow or other, get them back to safety. We dare not underestimate their contribution.

POLYP FORMATION.

Mrs. G. writes: My uncle has polyps in his nose, ears, and rectum. What can be done about these things?

REPLY.

Better elimination and increased drainage are advised. As a rule, these jellylike growths do little harm. Now and then, however, those within the bowel may undergo degeneration and hence give us real concern. Keep down these weeds with skilled surgery.

IN A RUT.

J. R. writes: How would you describe a habit spasm?

REPLY.

Any habitually performed movement, such as twitching a corner of the mouth, shrugging one shoulder, etc. After a time, these jerks become involuntary.

GOOD IDEA.

L. S. writes: Is it safe to drink citrus juices while taking a course of sulfa drugs?

REPLY.

Yes. We guard these chemicals with alkalis, which citrus fruits supply.

Amazingly Trivial.

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—Don't think for a moment that hospitality is dead out this way. A cab driver turned around the other day and offered his passenger a cigaret!

New variation on the commission racket: A gent who knows something about the soft drink bottling business is going to the Pacific to set up a bottling plant. It will take him two months. To make him happier in his task, the navy has commissioned him a captain. The male cat, an army officer, who told us of this thinks he should wear a small gold bottle embroidered in lieu of the star above his four stripes.

The competition between the east coast and the west coast as originators of radio programs is becoming intense. Any radio performer signing an east coast contract should study the little object lesson of Frank Sinatra [yes, the voice] and fight for a clause stipulating he can broadcast, if necessary, from the west coast, too. Our Frank's contract with a tobacco company that just ended failed to stipulate that. It crippled him severely when he wandered out this way for a movie contract [heaven knows why], for altho he made $2,500 for his Saturday night yowl for the tobacco outfit, he had to plunk down between $4,000 and $4,800 a week in charges for wire tolls, orchestra, and other items necessary to maintain a broadcasting room for the required 45 minutes. He was in Hollywood nine months of the year, and bringing his voice to the public thus cost him quite a few pennies, altho tears of sympathy are easily controled in consideration of his total earnings. When his contract came up for renewal, he asked for $4,000 a week and said if given this he would still pay the piping charges out of his own pocket. The tobacco company shook its head, possibly thinking this an expensive advertisment for the little commodity that wasn't there, and that is why Lawrence Tibbett replaces our Frankie on that hour. Don't ever say we don't work hard to bring you the facts that make the whirl go 'round.

By pony express we have received a classified ad from a Beloit, Wis., paper:

A news item on the pidgin French of this war reminded a reader, Billong, of a French girl in Paris following the last war. Her conversation: "Me look you metro [subway], Me speak you. You no speak me. Pourquoi you no speak me? Me beacoup fachée wid you. You pay me wan drank for make up?"

Some amazing things happen on war time trains. This department jogged up to San Francisco by train on New Year's eve. Our seat mate was a girl who looked 15 or so. She had on bobby sox and saddle oxfords, a very short plaited skirt, one of those enormous, enguling sweaters that fall from neck to knee, and a bandanna. On the way up she read comic books. An hour out of San Francisco she pulled down a suitcase. Calm, imperturbable, utterly oblivious to the rest of the train [she sat on the aisle], she changed her bobby sox for sheer black nylon stockings, her saddle oxfords for high heeled, bowed pumps. Then, suitcase in tow, she disappeared for half an hour. She came back in a decollete black dress covered with black sequins, a sequin arrangement in her now flowing, freshly curled tresses, long black suede gloves, and several varieties of perfume. Then she went to work with a whisk broom. Altogether, an extraordinary metamorphosis.

IS JOE LOOKING AT KOREA?

Washington, D. C., Jan. 2.—In Newsweek for Nov. 6 it is stated that Russia is leagues ahead of China and the western powers in political preparedness for Korean liberation; that at least one division in Russia's far eastern armies is made up of Koreans drafted from the colony of 180,000 in Siberia, and that this colony has provided Moscow with a corps trained for the alternate roles of advisers to the Korean government or a "liberation committee," as circumstances warrant.

I have been much disturbed by this thought. Such a development would mean the imposition by an insignificant minority abroad upon the will of 25,000,000 Koreans at home, thru the prompting of an outside power. Finland, Poland and other eastern European countries, as well as Belgium, Italy, and Greece, are suffering untold injustice and misery under exactly such circumstances today.

Amid all the dismal gloom cast by the shadows of two big military powers over the small nations now struggling for freedom, I am happy to see a new ray of hope arising on the American horizon. Secretary Stettinius' recent statement against a unilateral intervention in Italy's domestic affairs was also a caution served on all military powers. Mr. Stettinius declared that the policy of nonintervention would "apply to an even more pronounced degree" with regard to governments of other small nations.

The American public, nurtured in the ideals of justice and freedom, will never sanction the use of American soldiers to help impose an unjust alien imperialism on any people.

Outwood, Ky., Jan. 1.—An M. T. S. nurse advises all girls who expect to take up nurse's training to have their heads examined.

I am a patient in a United States hospital. We pass THE DAILY TRIBUNE from bed to bed among us Illinois boys. We are Yankees among southern nurses, but O how fine they are to us. The article has been shown to them and they all call the writer a misfit and say that she missed her station in life. They say she should drop the "R. N." from her name and build ships or make bullets.

Five of our nurses here, in World War I., during the influenza epidemic in France, worked from 7 a. m. to 10 p. m. for $60 a month. Every one of them has volunteered to do it again without any pay.

We are terribly short of nurses here. The serious and critical wards are doing without one or two nurses who used to be on duty, making the nurses that are on these wards work twice as hard.

Nurses here haven't a place where they can shop much or a town where they can get any kind of entertainment, as the hospital is located on a reservation 3½ miles from even a railroad. They work and go to quarters, same routine every day.

Nurses here can't get leave that is due them because of the shortage of nurses. They don't kick. They just go on and work with a smile for all us boys. We love our nursing staff.

CHAPLIN THE ENTERTAINER.

Chicago, Dec. 21.—We are urged to save every scrap of paper to help the war effort, yet the papers all over the country are wasting tons of newsprint every week describing the filthy sewage of Hollywood. A clean, decent American boy dies in battle and rates two lines of six point type, while column after column is devoted to the worthless doings of the film capital.

MARRIAGE LEGAL.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—My son married an Illinois girl last year under what was supposed to be her adopted name. She said her stepfather had adopted her but now claims no papers are to be found. She says [1] the marriage, therefore, is not legal. 2. Can a divorce be obtained by her in Indiana without having legal counsel in Illinois? R. J.

1. She is mistaken. 3. Not on the bare facts stated. She would have to prove one of the grounds listed in the Indiana statutes. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

Miss Brown was graduated from the University of Wisconsin. Her father is stationed at Great Lakes, in charge of the navy's V-12 program in the office of the district director of training. Lt. Kitchen Pointers

—By Mary Meade—

"Exactly what is meant by the terms simmer and braise which are used so often in cookery?"

To simmer is to cook in water which is just below the boiling point, approximately 185 degrees Fahrenheit. At the simmering point, tiny bubbles [pinhead size] rise continually to the surface and break. Braising consists of cooking food in a covered pan, either in the oven or on top of the stove, with a small amount of liquid, after an initial browning in hot fat. Swiss steaks and pot roasts are good examples of braised meats. [When larger amounts of liquid are used, the process is termed "stewing."]

"How long can a fruit or vegetable gelatin dish be kept in the refrigerator? Also does custard filling spoil readily?"

I would not advise storing a gelatin dish for longer than two or three days. Not only does the gelatin become slightly rubbery and somewhat changed in flavor, but it often is actually dangerous to use. Gelatin is an excellent medium for germ growth and should always be covered, even when stored for short periods. Custard filling for cake or pies is another favorite bacteria food, so be sure to keep left-over portions of these desserts under refrigeration and use them as soon as possible.

"Does freezing change the food value of milk?"

Freezing does not affect the nutritive constituents of milk [vitamins or minerals], but it does seem to change the milk somewhat in flavor and consistency.

On the Aisle

Another Chance at Offenbach.

More years ago than my inadequate scrapbooks are positive about, Offenbach's "La Vie Parisienne" invaded the Auditorium with a production so corny it cut short the company's hope of sticking around for a while with other revivals. About all I can remember about it is that at one point the actors capered around the stage waving handkerchiefs at the audience, which churlishly failed to respond. And that Charles Collins, then at his drama post, polled the dissenting vote, remarking that when he observed how little his colleagues knew about light opera he felt "like Philo Vance in a group of boob detectives." I don't need a scrapbook to remember that one.

Ashton Stevens, Lloyd Lewis, and I are the only boob detectives still on the job, so we have a chance to retrieve our reputations, and "La Vie Parisienne" had better help us out by improvement even we can't mistake when it reopens, with a brand new setup, at the Civic Opera house the night of Feb. 12.

I am encouraged in balletic illusions of grandeur by the fact that Leonide Massine will design the ballets, danced by Anna Istomina and others, and that Antal Dorati of Ballet Theater has arranged the score. If Massine recaptures the frothy brilliance of "Gaité Parisienne" — remember how it foamed when it was new?—"La Vie Parisienne" ought to help console the balletomane bereft of his favorite diversion. And if you can't place Istomina, she is the charming dark child who danced "The Snow Maiden" when Krassovska was ill.

Among the leading singers are Brian Lawrence, Edward Roecker, Marion Carter, and David Morris. The new English text is by Felix Brentano and Louis Verneuil, with lyrics by Marian Farquhar. The operetta will have two preliminary weeks at New York's City Center before the New Opera company launches its tour.

Notes.

When Katherine Dunham returns with "Tropical Revue" it will hold a new voodoo number called "L'Ag'ya, a free-for-all boxing and wrestling bout in Martinique style, reputedly banned in its native land as too dangerous. . . . Lucienne Boyer was released by D-day from a Gestapo jail. . . . Volunteer junior hostesses from the U. S. O. have sold more than 40,000 "Winged Victory" souvenir books during the Civic Opera house engagement, chalking up another $10,000 for army charities. . . . Maurice Schwartz is playing "The Jewish King Lear" at Douglas Park theater, where next Friday he opens his last play, "Hard to Be a Jew." . . . The Metropolitan Opera announces Wagner's "Ring," directed by George Szell, the nights of Feb. 2, 6, 13, and 20. Prices range from $4.80 to $21.60, tax included. . . . The Jack and Jill Players open "Once Upon a Clothesline" at their 180 E. Delaware pl. theater at 2:30 p. m. today.

'Fighting Lady' Epic Picture of Carrier at War

"FIGHTING LADY."

By Mae Tinée.

A brief but brilliant history of one of our airplane carriers, Fighting Lady should bring courage and pride to any American who sees it. Thru this medium we at home can see at first hand this important part of our fighting navy, can have some appreciation of these giant ships and their charges—a single ship that is the home of thousands of enlisted men, trained in a hundred skills—the nesting place of our winged fighters—the proud culmination of the work of a million hands, and brains, and wills. Thru the eyes of the camera one is enabled to go into the heart of battle with our planes, to zoom at screaming speed onto the secret island bases of the Japanese in the Pacific, to follow the fiery tongues of our tracers sowing destruction on them.

As weapons of modern warfare, cameras, installed in the planes as are the guns and trembling with the fury of their fire, record the flight as even the pilot can seldom see it.

Entirely in color, under the direction of the famous Steichen, the photography often is breathtaking. Among the many memorable shots are those of the shining sky at dawn on the day of battle, the gum chewing marine calmly manning his gun as the Japs attack the carrier, the bloody face of the squadron leader who lands his plane tho his body is torn by a hundred bullets, the bird's-eye views of the mighty task force steaming majestically in its search for the enemy. Our flag never looked so beautiful as it does on the caskets of the men who gave their lives for it.

Here is stirring documentary evidence of the part our navy plays in the battle of the Pacific—a page in our history which will be indelibly stamped on the minds and hearts of all who see it.

"Fighting Lady" is scheduled for early release in a loop theater. It was previewed yesterday by the advertising department of THE TRIBUNE for a group of business leaders.

Cameo Salon to Hold 'When Chicago Was Young' Party Tonight

The Cameo salon's postponed "When Chicago Was Young" costume party will be held tonight in the John Grant home at 2640 Prairie av., which was the Cyrus McCormick residence in the era of the horse drawn carriage, the gold watch fob, the satins and furbelows. Miss Herma Clark is to be a guest, and the fete is designated for her Sunday column in THE TRIBUNE. Mayor and Mrs. Kelly are expected to attend.

Mrs. William Ragland will come gowned in one of the elaborate costumes in which she sang at La Scala when she was the Edith Mason of grand opera. Out of the past will step Jennie Lind in the person of Nepple Melton and Chauncey Olcott, portrayed by Clyde Bassler, to sing "The Last Rose of Summer" and "My Wild Irish Rose." The lift to the powder room will serve Leona Lee as a stage set from which to warble "Only a Bird in a Gilded Cage." Impersonating P. T. Barnum, H. McClelland Hess will preside as master of ceremonies. Many others among the salon members have planned costumes to portray prominent figures from Chicago's yesterdays.

Miss Clark will wear a bustled gown, and her contribution to the entertainment will be a recitation of the ballad, "Over the Hills to the Poor House," with which Will Carleton drew a national flood of tears from an earlier generation. Another special guest will be Florence Dibell Bartlett, Art institute lecturer.

Looking at Hollywood

—By Hedda Hopper—

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 5.—Don Ameche's at it again—inventing things on the screen. His first picture in his new series for Jack Skirball and Bruce Manning will be "Genius in the Family," which is based on the biography of Sir Hiram Stevens Maxim written by his son. Screen play will cover the youthful period in the inventor's life and the scene is laid in Brooklyn. Production starts March 13. . . . Mary O'Hara, who wrote "My Friend, Flicka," just has been signed by Twentieth Century to do a special story to co-star Peggy Ann Garner and Roddy McDowall. They say Peggy Ann is sensational in "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," and she has the top spot in "Junior Miss." Looks as tho youth is having a field day at Twentieth. . . . I hear Victor Saville, who knows Churchill well, and who has produced pictures both in England and here, is heading a syndicate to secure rights to Churchill's life, which Saville plans for a big post-war picture.

Esther Can and Does Sing.

Esther Williams, who made a terrific hit on her tour of hospitals with the song "Can't I Do Anything But Swim?" will sing it in "Early to Wed." Jack Cummings is changing the script to include that, as well as a special dance number for Esther with Tony De Marco. Sure, she'll swim, too. . . . Rosemary De Camp has been signed to a long term contract at Warners, and she goes right into "This Love of Ours," in which she plays a Red Cross gray lady, but will be her own age. Rosemary tells me she considers it one of the best roles she's ever had. . . . Bruce Bennett, who plays the part of Joan Crawford's husband in "Mildred Pierce," describes himself as "A swell dish, a diaper washer, and a fair cook." From what I saw the other day on the set, he also can act. . . . Kurt Kreuger gets the second male lead in Connie Bennett's production, "Paris Underground." Technical adviser is George Kissell, French journalist formerly on the Paris Soir, who left Paris soon after the Germans came.

Little Frances Never Stops.

Frances Langford has given so much time entertaining at hospitals and overseas that she's had to drop some activities, among them making records. Not that she minds, and she hadn't given it a thought till she sang "More and More" in one of the amputation wards at Lawson General hospital, Atlanta. One of the patients put his one arm around Frances and said, "If I had a record of you singing that I'd play it all day." Frances promised him she'd make one, and the first thing she did when she got home was visit a recording studio and wax four numbers. . . . Jimmy Wakely, who's making a theater tour in Texas, will take time out on Jan. 15 to visit Boys' ranch, to which he contributes 10 per cent of his salary, and help the boys celebrate their 4th anniversary. . . . Gail Patrick is back from visiting her husband, Lt. Arnold White, in San Francisco.

Pvt. Andy Hardy Reports.

Mickey Rooney has written from Paris that things are pretty grim over there, and people in the United States don't know how lucky they are. He was expecting to move up to the front soon. Mickey's wife, who's been here visiting his mother, has gone back to her home in Birmingham to await her blessed event. . . . Anne Sterling says nobody was more surprised than she at the news that she's expecting a baby. . . . Elyse Knox was given a shower the other day and one gift was a tiny football outfit, which her husband, Lt. Tom Harmon, had ordered. So now she's hoping for a boy. . . . Chet Lauck of Lum and Abner was on hand to receive his first shipment of 30 head of cattle from his Las Vegas ranch, Bar Nothing. Who wouldn't be on hand to welcome that many steaks?

War Working Mother Given Child Advice

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Mothers who have had to go back to work again, leaving their young children with relatives [or sometimes even leaving them all day in a nursery school], write me in great distress of mind about the difficulties that have gradually arisen, only since they have been away from home each day.

Now, of course, at any time during a child's growth, the phases that he goes thru sometimes take the form of what we call naughtiness or misbehavior. That is normal enough. But often problem behavior arises because a little boy or girl misses his mother, especially, as often is true in these cases, when the father is away. The child's underlying sense of loss or deprivation will show itself in some form of undesirable behavior.

This probably is the case in a situation such as the following:

"Dear Mrs. Bevans: Due to war conditions I am a working girl again like many other mothers.

"I have a problem. I live with my uncle and aunt. It has come to the point, where my child will not obey any of us. He will be 6 years of age this month.

"His eating problem bothers me most. I've had him to specialists and they have advised me what to do, but I find I can't make myself do it. It could be that my child does not like his diet or meals; maybe a change would do him good. Whatever suggestions you make will be appreciated."

Part of my personal reply to the writer may interest other mothers:

"I should not be at all surprised if some of your little boy's behavior may be due to the fact that you are away from home during the day while you are working, and he is with older persons whose ways he is not used to, who may be making some small, even tho loving, mistakes in dealing with him.

"If I were in your place, I would make some special effort in the evenings and on week-ends to give your little boy a special kind of interest. You might plan certain things to do before bed time with him, arrange at least one little trip somewhere on Saturday or Sunday, and be sure to give him plenty of praise and affection when you are with him. None of this will interfere with his real training; in fact it will make the management of him much easier. Also, try to get your relatives to understand your system of handling your child.

"As to his diet, I quite agree with you that the diet of a child of 6 should have the monotony taken out of it. Changes in the foods offered and the way they are prepared, help a great deal in this particular habit problem."

Palm Beach Wedding News Is of Interest to Chicagoans

From Palm Beach, where the 1945 season has had a successful launching, according to our correspondent, comes news of two weddings which are of interest here. Miss Barbara Kritzer, daughter of the Henry E. Kritzers of Glencoe, is to be married next Wednesday to Ensign Harold A. Clark Jr. The wedding will take place in the patio of the Kritzers' Palm Beach home.

Either today or tomorrow, another daughter of the Kritzers, Miss Jean Kritzer, is to be married to Ensign Avery Seaman, son of Mr. and Mrs. David S. Seaman of Providence, R. I., in a ceremony that is being hastily arranged following Ensign Seaman's arrival in Palm Beach after duty abroad. It is probable that Miss Jean Kritzer will serve as matron of honor at her sister's wedding, in which another feminine attendant will be Ensign Clark's sister, Mrs. Edward Pence Gardner, also a recent bride. Ensign Clark's mother, Mrs. Stevenson Clark of Northfield, is leaving for Palm Beach Monday.

The 1945 season got off to a gay start with the New Year's eve dance in the Everglades club. The party formally opened that establishment. The Breakers, newly restored as a resort hotel after serving as a military hospital, will be opened tomorrow.

The Valentine C. Spaldings, the James W. Carnahans, the LeRay Berdeaus, Mrs. Maurice McGrath, Mrs. Thompson Thomas, the junior Jesse Spauldings, the Carleton Dodges, and the Mario di Tullios are some of those who have been entertaining at the start of 1945.

Mrs. Alexander Babcock is occupying the Via del Lago home of her mother, Mrs. Hugh O'Neil, who is expected later from Lake Forest. Among the first guests joining the large Chicago colony expected at the Breakers is Mrs. Edward S. Beck, who has been stopping at the Villas.

The history of the Everglades club, tho an oft told tale, is an interesting one, our correspondent writes. It was in 1918 that the late Paris Singer, heir to the sewing machine millions, commissioned Addison Mizner, the architect, to design the club. It was supposed to be used as a hospital for wounded veterans of World War I., but things didn't work out that way, and it always has been a residence club.

INSTALMENT XLVIII.

UNPLEASANT DUTY.

"Where's Webb at now, Cole?" the hunted man asked. "You wouldn't be joshin' me, would you? You gotta have yore little joke."

"No joke. All I'll say is this. If Bob Webb didn't have first claim on you I'd drag yore big carcass back myself."

"Gimme five minutes, Cole,"Uhlmann pleaded.

The man's wheedling tone stirred contempt in the other. "You've thrown yoreself down, you fool," Hawkins told him bluntly. "I never did like you even when I did business with you. Had a feeling you were rotten bad. Now I know it."

"I'm no more a killer than you. Think I don't know you shot Chuck Holloway that night at Tucson?"

The eyes of Hawkins narrowed and grew chill. "If I did, he had it coming—as you have. It's a show-down. Pull yore freight, wolf, right now, or I'll do the job the hangman is waitin' to do."

The dry lips of Uhlmann opened but no words came from them. Out of his throat came a strange animal sound of distress. His dragging feet took him thru the screen doors to the narrow adobe street. Up and down the street his gaze swept. A few men were in sight, a group of three not 20 feet from him, but none of them showed any interest at his appearance.

He had made a mistake in stopping on the United States side of the line, but it might not be too late yet to get across to the Mexican side of Nogales. He would keep going, deep into Sonora, where a fugitive was safe.

All his thoughts were concerned with reaching the horse he had tied in front of a dry goods store. When he was yards from his horse he broke into a shuffling run.

Abruptly he pulled up. A slim man, coffee brown, walked out of the dry goods store lithely as a panther. The killer's stomach muscles tightened. Webb was looking leisurely down the street. In a moment he would turn his head and see him.

Uhlmann fired in panic haste. Before Bob had his gun out a second bullet tore thru a hanging sign above his head. Bob was so sure of himself that he shouted an order at the frenzied man.

"Drop that gun!"

The revolver of the killer roared again.

Bob took deliberate aim at the huge body and sent a slug crashing into it. A second one struck the desperado just below the heart, not four inches from the first. The revolver dropped from Uhlmann's fingers. He spread his two hands over his great stomach. One foot caught on the other, and the giant figure pitched heavily to the sidewalk and rolled from it to the dust of the street.

Bob's harsh face, the hardness of battle still stamped on it, looked down at the inert mass of flesh and bones that had a moment earlier been quick with life. He felt no emotion, no shock. This had been a possibility he had looked forward to for years, and now that it was fulfilled he had no sense of elation. It was just something unpleasant he had been forced to do.

A voice said heartily, "No regrets—he's better dead."

Bob looked up, and saw Cole Hawkins. "Yes," he agreed dully.

"You're in the clear. He took three shots at you before you fired. I never saw the beat of how cool you were."

"That's right," another man spoke up. "Three, four of us saw it all. Self-defense."

"I meant to take him back to be hanged," Bob explained, his tone still lifeless. "He shot my best friend last night."

"And your worst enemy," Hawkins added.

The surprised eyes of Webb questioned him without words.

"He told me back there in the Silver Dollar," the San Simon rancher continued, "that he rubbed out Jug Packard last night."

Bob stared at him in astonishment. "Are you sure that is what he meant to tell you?"

"Dead sure. He trapped himself. I called him a murderer for what he did last night. He thought I meant Packard and said Jug tried to ambush him and was killed."

Bob drew a long breath. "I reckon if there are no objections I'll ride back to the Circle J R and see how Stan is making it."

"Nobody will stop you, Mr. Sloan," Hawkins said, stressing the name. "We'd better see the sheriff and explain how this happened."

Webb took the advice of the ranchman and gave the sheriff the name of Cape Sloan, which meant nothing to the officer. He told Bob that since the killing had been clearly self-defense, no arrest would be made.

Hawkins said, "I'm going north, and if you have no objections, I'll ride part way with you."

When they came to the parting of the ways, a few miles south of the Circle J R, Bob made a remark that surprised the other.

"Funny how news gets around," Hawkins commented dryly. "One man saw me fire that shot. He wasn't going to tell anybody. Now two people inside of an hour accuse me of it—you and Uhlmann."

"I'm not accusing you," Bob replied. "I'm thanking you."

"No need of that. I had an ax of my own to grind. When I saw his rifle aimed at you I let him have it. Understand, I'll deny this if anybody else puts it up to me."

Bob assured him that nobody would ever hear of this thru anything he would say.

Hawkins nodded. "That's all right. I'll be saying adios, Mr. Webb. Good luck."

They took different trails. The one Bob followed led him to the Circle J. R.

Sandra walked out of the cabin with the doctor and looked an anxious question at him.

"Fraser is a tough old hombre," he said. "Barring unexpected bad luck he's going to make it."

"I'm glad," the girl said, deeply pleased. "When his friend, Bob Webb, comes back he will be so happy."

She replied, with a sigh, "I wish he hadn't felt he had to go and bring that villain back. You don't think——?"

Dr. Brown finished her uncompleted query. "I think your young man will come back sound as a dollar. He's too hard a nut for Uhlmann to crack."

[Concluded Monday.]

SUDDEN DEATH to the clanging of Christmas chimes — that's the startling mystery in "Private Investigator Maclain," by Baynard Kendrick. Be sure to read this exciting new novel, beginning in Monday's Chicago Tribune.

School Frocks

Any mother knows that school clothes can exhaust the fashion budget in a hurry. These two patterns make a duet of smart tailored frocks for classroom wear. One buttons down the front, making it easy to sew, wear, and keep pressed, and the other is the popular jumper, this time with dainty scallops. Style No. 2563 is designed for sizes 6 to 14. Size 8 requires 2¾ yards of 35 inch fabric. Style No. 3889 is designed for sizes 4 to 10. Size 8, jumper, requires 1¼ yards of 54 inch material; short sleeved blouse, 1¼ yards of 35 inch fabric. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing.

Order Clotilde patterns from Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY. Print name and address; state size. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing. The winter fashion book, on sale at Tribune Public Service offices, is 15 cents, 12 cents if ordered by mail with a pattern.

Household Forum

By Louise Bargelt

Mrs. V. S., Springfield, Ill.—I save on time, also on wear, of my hair brushes when I clean them thus: Rub them in flour, using a small, soft cloth, and then after an hour or so shake out the flour. Dust comes out, too.

Martha M., Chicago—I can reuse rubbers for my cannings if I brush them with paraffin before I screw on the lids. This makes a firm seal.

Edna S., Oak Park—I pin a turkish towel around the left end of my ironing board when I have a sizable ironing to do for use in ironing initials, heavy seams, some laces, etc.

Stupid Cupid Tactics of Lad Worry Lassie

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.]

on the SOLID side

"I have been practically everywhere. Some girls may have trouble having dates and going places, but with me it is much different. I always like to meet new friends, and I rate high with all of them. I have a particular group of girl friends and spend much of my time with them. Recently I got to know a young man who is 21 [I am just 17]. He had taken me out several times, and I enjoy being with him much more than I do with my own classmates.

"During this last summer, too, I met and dated older fellows which made me more 'grown up' than most of my friends. But these girls wouldn't want me in their crowd if I went steady with the boy I mention. They already have told me that they think he is too old and besides he just isn't one of the gang. Do you think I should keep on seeing him or stick with the younger crowd just to preserve the group friendship?"

You can't give up a sincere friendship just because the Joe in question doesn't appeal to the snob mob. A gal your age might not be wise to go steady with a fellow five years older [you're only young once; don't let it wear off too quickly], but you certainly can see him occasionally and still find time for your other friends. But forget that sophisticated conversation about having been "practically everywhere." You may have dated three nights a week, hit a few of the bright lights spots and gathered a choice collection of class rings, but at 17, you still have a lot to see.

Well, here goes. There's a swell boy whom I like very much and most of our friends take it for granted that he likes me. Everything is just perfect, except that he is shy with any girl for whom he particularly cares. In this case, it's me. He never asks me to go anywhere with him, but finds out in a roundabout way where I'm going in the evening and sort of "turns up" there. I believe he thinks a girl should do the asking. . . ."

Maybe the young Joe likes you so much that he is having trouble working up courage to ask for a date. Just give him time, be friendly when you see him, and before long he'll forget his stupid cupid tactics and come out frankly with "Will you go to a movie with me Friday night." If he's really a mellow character, the waiting will be worth it.

Alpha Xi Delta Chapter at N. U. Will Give Dance

Alpha Xi Delta sorority of Northwestern university has invited presidents and representatives of other sororities at Northwestern as special guests to a dance tonight in the Michigan room of the Edgewater Beach hotel. Miss Lee Weiss is chairman for the party.

Thru the Looking Glass

It doesn't take a minute to cream the skin of your legs at least once a day and it's a whale of a good idea. You'll keep the skin smoother and whiter and far more comfortable than it otherwise would be—and you'll save yourself a lot of trouble next summer when it's a cinch you'll be going stockingless and want presentable underpinnings.

Lately we've been using one of those creams that is absorbed quite quickly; it's a favorite for the relief of sunburn but we find it marvelous for this winter leg beauty treatment. You can rub it in until it disappears completely or you can leave a film of it on overnight. It has the tremendously attractive quality of not staining linen!

What you use and when you use it will depend on how much time you have and what your routine is. If you take your bath at night use cream or lotion on your legs as soon as the skin is dry. Work it in as long a period as you can. If you bathe in the morning before you dash off to the factory you'll have to use a cream or a lotion that leaves no greasy film. The point is to use something in the way of an emollient on your knees and on the area just below them, where the cold winds play special havoc.

Rough leg skin and the revolting goose pimples won't just wear off; you've got to lubricate that skin, and scrub it daily as well. But it's worth the effort. Smooth skin is attractive and, in cold weather, far more comfortable than the kind that's chapped and dried. Using the cream or lotion on the feet is a good idea too for those two reasons and for a third one that is important nowadays: it lessens the chance of snagging your precious stockings.

Winter Sports Wear Is Light, Neat, and Gay

BY REA SEEGER.

Smart winter sports clothes in brilliant colors are plentiful, toast-warm, and skilfully designed to fit. Because designers are on their toes, winter sports enthusiasts this year can keep their original streamlines. Visions of layers of blanket-like apparel of a year or two ago no longer need haunt them, for weather repellent fabrics are light weight and flexible. Ski jackets and skating blouses are made of gabardine, especially treated to ward off chills, cold winds, and snow. They are made in the same slim, smart silhouette of a summer jacket.

Wool skirts, teamed with jaunty jackets of plaid or checked wool, make neat, decorative, and very feminine skating clothes. The skirts are short, the extra plaits allow for strenuous exercise, and the jackets make you feel snug as a bug-in-a-rug. Flannels, tweeds, and fleecy materials include brilliant colors and patterns. There are pockets, and extra linings can easily be added.

Under-sweaters are legion, from the classic pullovers with long sleeves to the clever sleeveless affairs of cable stitch pattern, with a deep vee in front and a ribbed panel around the waistline. Notice the dozens of bonbon tinted beauties in this last lot.

Cardigans play the same contrast role as always. Fleece coats in snow white with vivid wool bands for trim are special delights of the teenage shoppers, as they double obligingly for winter sports and for school wear. A few wool petticoats and a limited collection of wool underwear, fit for warmth and a slim silhouette, complete the important wardrobe pieces for the cold 60 days ahead.

Seek White Collar Girls to Fill Red Cross Jobs

White collar girls were urged yesterday to volunteer their services for stenographic and clerical jobs for the Red Cross Volunteer Special service. Mrs. Darrow B. Fulton, vice chairman of the service, said the need for workers is great. Those interested may enter a class starting Jan. 15 or one opening Feb. 5, where they will be taught methods used by the Red Cross. The volunteers will be called on to work evenings or week-ends in the organization's home office or in medical hospitals. Information may be obtained by telephoning Wabash 7850.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

The Tubbs Family.

Long distance telephone operators will tell you their days are so jumbled with the unexpected that nothing amazes them. However, Dorothy Rogers, a telephone attendant in a hospital at Augusta, Ga., was put to the test recently. A Sgt. Tubbs placed a call to a Sgt. Tubbs in the east. Well, that seemed odd. But when he finished the sergeant said he'd like to place a second call to another Sgt. Tubbs in a different city. The operator gasped, whereupon Sgt. Tubbs explained the first call was to his father, the second to his wife.

In the Mail.

I notice that startling advertisment again in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, offering a stenographer 10 minute work periods every two hours. Now, I'm worried. Was the result of the first trial so satisfactory that the employer wants to try again? Or has the girl skipped on to somebody who offers a five minute work period every three hours, higher pay, free lunches, and mahicures on office time? ALTHEA M.

Perspective Does It.

It is all right for a business executive to care about trifles, in moderation. But I know an otherwise nice chief who is about to lose an efficient secretary because he has run that "trifles" thing into the ground. He doesn't mind if three others of the staff are off, vacationing with new husbands on furloughs, or are at home ill, or attending funerals or what not. Everything has to have the same meticulous attention that it would have if the others were there.

Well, even the best secretary has only two hands and two feet, and these perfectionists obscure the noble effort of two hands and two feet to accomplish what six hands and six feet should be doing! Doesn't the line have to be drawn, somewhere, on what is really important and what can be skimped if necessary? Perspective does it. D.

Dis and Data.

A young woman, 23, has been promoted to the job of assistant secretary to the finance committee and also assistant to the real estate committee of Equitable Life. She is Penny Campbell, the first woman to hold these jobs. . . . Have you seen the cartoon of the two men at a desk, one showing the other a graph of the business, pointing to the place where it abruptly drops, saying, "That's when my secretary joined the WACs"? . . . Mary Frances Mears, who does character analysis for the entertainment of the service men at Masonic center and at St. Chrysostom's, is tossing together a book on her experiences, interesting specimens of handwriting she has collected, etc. The boys especially enjoy one of Gen. Stilwell, a distant relative of hers.

The Loop Zonta club will give a silver tea at 3 p. m. today in the Arts club to swell its special war service fund, which this year is being used to assist the Red Cross arts and skills corps' program at Gardiner, Vaughan, and Great Lakes hospitals. WMC'S WOMEN CABBY IDEA O. K., IF U. S. INSISTS!

Women passed an acid test as motorists yesterday. The war man power commission disclosed it is considering asking taxicab companies to hire women chauffeurs. The companies, altho not enthusiastic about the idea, said it was not because of skepticism about women's ability.

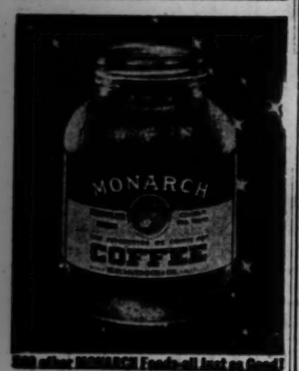

Mike Sokol, head of the Checker Cab company, said women would be good cab drivers, but it would be an intricate problem to make such a change. He expressed doubt of the advantage to war industries, pointing out that most Checker drivers not in military service or war work have been with the company 15 or 20 years and have no other special skills.

Ben Samuels, vice president of the Yellow Cab company, raised the question of safety because of the condition of cabs now in service, but indicated that otherwise his company would have no objection to hiring women.

Both Samuels and Sokol pointed out that their companies have had no shortage of men drivers. They expressed themselves as willing to coöperate in replacing men with women, however, if the WMC decides it is essential to divert such man power to war plants.

SWITCHMAN HURT IN FALL.

MRS. THOMPSON 'IS TOO WEAK' TO APPEAR IN COURT

A physician testified yesterday that Mrs. Mary Wyse Thompson, widow of former Mayor William Hale Thompson, was too "nervous and weak" to appear in court even tho she is able to walk with her dog. His testimony won postponement for at least a week of her appearance as a witness in the Probate court action brought by Ethabelle Green, Thompson's secretary, to get half of his 2 million dollar estate.

Miss Green's lawyer, Joseph T. Harrington, had demanded that Mrs. Thompson appear for questioning about the secretary's personal effects which he said she had left in her room in Thompson's suite in the Blackstone hotel. He said that a bailiff sent to serve her with a subpena Thursday had found her out with her dog and that she had refused to accept the summons.

Dr. William H. Gehl, 55 E. Washington st., said he had attended Mrs. Thompson for a nervous condition since last May 6. She has been "extremely nervous and weak," he said, and bringing her to court "might have serious consequences."

Judge John F. O'Connell said that Mrs. Thompson, as administratrix, would have to testify "some time or other," and he continued the hearing to Jan. 12.

CHICAGO'S ARMY ACE IS DOWNED BY CUPID'S DART

To Wed Oak Park Girl Next Summer.

Lt. William J. Cullerton is Chicago's leading army air ace. He's top man in the 355th fighter group of the 8th air force, too—and the 8th is the largest air force in the world. Tomorrow Lt. Cullerton is voluntarily going back to the buddies who, with him, have made the 355th the best strafing outfit in the 8th air force.

Already he has 18 planes to his credit—four in the air and 14 on the ground. The 355th has destroyed 311 planes in the air, 289 on the ground.

In September, 1942, he was a 19 year old boy who kept Mayor Kelly and a host of dignitaries waiting at a fancy La Salle st. ceremony designed to honor him as the 10,000th aviation cadet enlisted in Chicago. He was mayor for a day, and had a lot of publicity to live up to.

Chases Nazi to His Lair.

His favorite story is about the time last Sept. 11 when he chased a German Focke-Wolfe pilot all the way home by himself. At home, the Nazi felt safe, put down his landing flaps, and hit the runway. Cullerton strafed him, then wrecked a total of seven planes, and damaged two more. It was a new record for planes destroyed in one day.

On Nov. 2 the lieutenant got two planes in the air and six on the ground. The combined total for the two days is believed to be a record for any war theater. Most of the credit, Cullerton said, should go to his Mustang P-51 single engine fighter. The ship carries six .50 caliber machine guns in the wings.

Will Be Married Next Summer.

Lt. Cullerton lives at 1719 New England av. with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Cullerton, and a sister, Jean, 18. In his current three week leave he formally asked Elaine Stephen, 21, of 732 S. Wesley av., Oak Park, to marry him. Elaine is a senior at Rosary college in Lake Forest. She plans to marry the officer next summer when he comes home after another combat tour of 270 hours.

Graduated from Fenwick High school, Oak Park, in 1941, Cullerton won letters for football and swimming and left Wright Junior college to enter the air forces. He has since earned the distinguished flying cross with four clusters, the air medal with three clusters, and four battle stars in his European service ribbon.

27 Minute Fight in Air.

Among his exploits was that on Aug. 16, when, with other Illinois buddies, Lt. Cullerton mixed in a dog fight with 50 Nazi planes. Twelve American ships took part, shooting down 11 of the Germans while losing only one. The fight—which lasted 27 minutes—is said to have been one of the longest on record.

Before he leaves this country he's scheduled to do a coast to coast broadcast next Saturday in which portions of his army career will be dramatized as "Life in a Fighter Squadron."

SIX BIG NINE TEAMS TO OPEN RACE TONIGHT

BEGINNERS IN SILVER SKATES TUNE UP TODAY

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Six speed skating races for beginners, sponsored by the Chicago Sports association, will be part of the program of events this afternoon at Humboldt park, and will furnish novice contestants with some experience for competition in the 28th annual Silver Skates Derbies. The annual Derbies, inaugurated in 1917 by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be held Jan. 20 and 21 in Garfield park.

Entries for the Silver Skates Derbies—five for boys and three for girls—will be accepted until midnight, Jan 14. All amateurs are eligible, but entry must be made before this deadline. Individual entry may be made on the blank printed daily in these columns. Team entries may be filed by coach or instructor either on special blanks provided for this purpose or on park or playground blanks.

Souvenirs for All.

Silver Skates primarily are for inexperienced skaters and souvenir buttons are awarded to all who report for their trial races. Today's special races at Humboldt park are for junior, juvenile, and midget boys and girls. Each of the six races will be 220 yards.

Other races today at Humboldt park are sponsored by the Catholic Order of Foresters. In addition to the races, which are open to members of the Illinois Skating association, there will be five events for Foresters. These are as follows: Senior men, 220 yards and one mile; junior boys, half mile; juvenile boys, 220 yards, and midget boys, 220 yards.

State Meet Tomorrow.

The first race today at Humboldt park will start at 1:30 p. m. Contestants are requested to report to the clerks at least 30 minutes earlier.

The speed skating campaign in Illinois reaches a climax tomorrow at Glen Ellyn, where the state championship will be decided. Chicago and western titles have been determined, and Lowell Miller of the C. Y. O. took honors in both of these. Tomorrow he will face John Martin of the Champaign-Urbana Skating club, who will be competing in a state meet for the first time this season. Martin won the 1943 Silver Skates intermediate Derby and later added the North American and national titles to his list of championships.

Feminine Stars Meet.

Former Silver Skates champions, Elaine Bogda Gordon of the Northwest Skating club and Peggy Barber of the George F. Barrett club, will seek state titles at Glen Ellyn. They divided honors in the city and western meets. Mrs. Gordon won the girls' senior Silver Skates in 1937. Miss Barber was the 1942 champion in the same division. Since senior champions can not defend their titles, neither is eligible for the 1945 Silver Skates race Jan. 21.

Both also will skate this afternoon at Humboldt park in the 220 yard and half mile races.

SEAHAWKS BEAT CAMP ELLIS FIVE FOR NO. 8, 46-28

Iowa City, Jan. 5 [Special].—Camp Ellis, previously unbeaten in six games, rallied briefly midway in tonight's game to climb from a 20 to 11 deficit to a 22 to 20 lead but ultimately was routed by the Iowa Seahawks, 46 to 28. It was the Seahawks' eighth victory of the season.

The army camp five from Illinois, whose only lead finally grew to 26 to 22 before the Seahawks went ahead, had little to offer offensively outside of Bob Rogers, Oklahoma A. & M. alumnus, who scored 15 of their 28 points.

Speaking of Stews.

A very ritzy hotel in Philly,
Says the OPA's head man,
Has been doing a little chiseling
On its Pot Pie L'Ancianne.
Now, you'll have to admit that that very name
But not enough, say the snoopers gruff,

And this same hotel in Philly
Must likewise tear its hair
O'er a little matter of pricing
On its beef stew Allinere.
On the first dish 50 cents too much,
On the second, two-bits, it seems,
And now they must make a refund—

Well, how would you like the chore
Of getting the liners on all of the diners
Who in the past year or more
Might have eaten that Pot Pie Ancianne
Or Stew Allinere? Good grief!
And to think that, the one time I ate there,

ZIVIC DEFEATS BILLY ARNOLD IN MAJOR UPSET

The 31 year old Zivic, a 5 to 1 underdog in the betting, stunned a crowd of 16,923 by outsmarting the Philadelphia high school student who previously was unbeaten in 31 bouts. The gross gate was $57,576.

Pacing himself well, the cagy Zivic, former welterweight champion and veteran of 14 years in the ring, took everything Arnold threw and twice in the fifth and eight rounds staggered his 18 year old opponent with vicious lefts and rights.

WALLER RALLY BEATS SCHURZ SENIORS, 43-41

BY DAVID CONDON.
[LINEUPS ON NEXT PAGE.]

City league junior and senior basketball teams, still in their first week of league competition, had a busy time yesterday with close play marking several contests. In the North section, the Waller seniors rallied to defeat Schurz, 43 to 41, in the last minute.

It was John Katzler who scored the winning field goal with the score tied at 41 to 41. His team mate, Joe Dorner, however, carried the brunt of the Waller attack thru the early periods and scored 16 point. The Waller juniors won, 56 to 30, and experienced no trouble as they took a 30 to 11 half time lead.

Amundsen Fives Undefeated.

Elsewhere in the North section, Amundsen's junior and senior quintets each won its second straight game. The Taft seniors led Amundsen, 18 to 16, at the half, but by the end of the third period the Vikings had gained a two point advantage and held it to win, 39 to 37. Center Walter Osterkorn scored 18 points. The Amundsen juniors triumphed, 29 to 25, altho Taft also led, 16 to 15, at the half.

Von Steuben's seniors routed Roosevelt, 59 to 20, and the Roosevelt juniors defeated Von Steuben, 36 to 34, in the third North section double header.

Harper Wins Two.

In the south division, Harper won two games from Bowen, with the Harper seniors winning their second straight game. The seniors triumphed, 37 to 12, with Capt. Fred LePore making five field goals for a 10 point total. The junior score was 30 to 27.

Calumet's quintets also made Morgan Park victim of a double defeat. The Calumet seniors led, 17 to 15, at half time, and steadily increased this lead in the two final quarters to win, 40 to 30. The Morgan Park juniors were behind by only one point, 7 to 6, at the end of two quarters, but could score only five points in the second half as Calumet won, 20 to 11.

Hirsch and Fenger divided in the third South section double header. The Hirsch seniors beat the Titans, 40 to 30, and the Fenger juniors won, 34 to 26, after the score was tied, 15 to 15, at the half.

Lowy Paces Marshall.

The Austin senior team, leading Marshall, 17 to 16, at the intermission, was not able to maintain that advantage in the third and fourth quarters and went down to a 41 to 34 defeat. Ray Lowy, Marshall forward, won scoring honors, however, by accounting for nine points. This was the only senior game in the West section.

In two junior games in the Central division McKinley led Crane, 13 to 8, at the half, and held this five point lead to win, 27 to 22. Tuley defeated Foreman, 34 to 31, after trailing, 18 to 17, at the half.

Notre Dame, Great Lakes Meet Tonight

Unlike in previous years when an abundance of material made substitution by team possible, Great Lakes will depend only on its first five and probably two other men in the game with Notre Dame tonight at the Great Lakes Naval Training center. This is assuming, of course, that it will be a tight game, as it figures to be.

The starting quintet has Paul Cloyd of Wisconsin and Luke Majorki of South Side High school, Fort Wayne, forwards; Walt Budko of Columbia, center, and Warren Ajax of Minnesota and Mickey McGuire of St. John's, Brooklyn, guards.

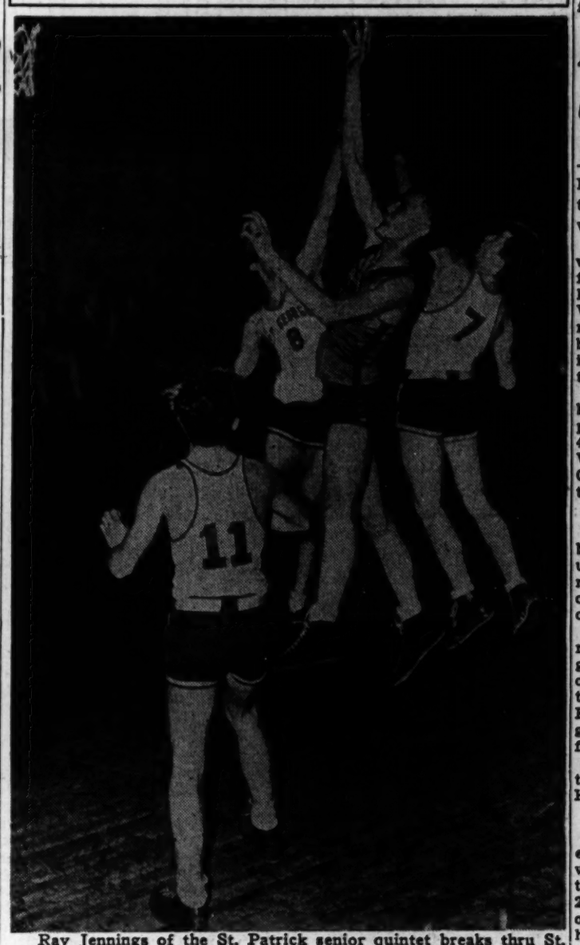

Notre Dame has lost twice in eight starts—to Iowa and Purdue. Coach Clem Crowe will start the following five against Great Lakes: George Ratterman and Paul Gordon, forwards; Vince [Bullets] Boryla, center; Billy Hassett and Frank Gilhooley, guards.

Tonight's affair is the seventh between Great Lakes and Notre Dame. Each has won three and lost three.

Wilson Quintet to Play. George Williams Tonight

IT'S 3 TO 1 AGAINST IRISH LUCK

Ray Jennings of the St. Patrick senior quintet breaks thru St. George's defense to score a goal last night in a Catholic league opener in the winner's gymnasium. Irish luck, plus skill, prevailed as three members of the Dragon five, Charles Castino, Bill McCarthy, and Jack Carrigan, left to right respectively, tried in vain to stop the shot.

St. Patrick High school, playing the role of favorite to win the Catholic league basketball title by virtue of its championship in the St. George holiday tournament, last night made its first step toward the league crown, but not until the Irish had been scared by St. George's Dragons of Evanston in a north section game.

In the south section, Lou Blankmeir, Mount Carmel center, paced the Caravan to a 39 to 24 victory over St. Rita. Mount Carmel led, 15 to 10, at the half.

The strong Weber senior quintet lost to De Paul, 43 to 40, after the Weber juniors had continued their winning streak by defeating De Paul, 36 to 20. Joliet Catholic's senior team defeated Loyola, 34 to 28, in the third south section meeting.

In late games, the Fenwick seniors defeated St. Philip, 42 to 30, while Leo beat De La Salle, 31 to 28.

U. OF C. HOST TO RADIO CHICAGO FIVE TONIGHT

The University of Chicago basketball team will meet Radio Chicago tonight in the Maroon fieldhouse, 56th st. and University av.

In the last game of 1944 the Radios beat the Maroons on a last-second basket, 45 to 43.

A victory for Chicago would insure them of at least a .500 season record, since after the game with Radio Chicago, only two contests remain. The Maroon record is now six won and five lost. Radio Chicago has won five and lost four.

Majors Meet an' Gab About —Three Hours

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[PICTURE ON NEXT PAGE.]

The magnates delegated to frame a fresh working agreement for the American and National leagues met in the Palmer House yesterday for what they predicted would be a two day debate but, after three hours under cover, they burst from hiding and dispersed.

They offered a brief statement to the effect they had accomplished something, would do some more in a special session called for Feb. 2 in New York and in the meantime, or even longer, will keep their lips buttoned as to just what they intend to embody in the new pact under which a successor to the late Commissioner K. M. Landis will be appointed.

Anyway it all must have been peaceful, if not unimportant, because the session lasted only about three hours and one committee member, beset by train troubles, witnessed only the last 20 minutes of the act.

They Don't Say Much.

"At today's meeting the committee discussed the agreement generally. It now will be put into formal shape and presented back to the committee at a meeting to be held in New York, Feb. 2, at which time the committee will decide upon its final recommendations to the two leagues. There will be no announcement made of the recommendations until they have been considered by the leagues."

May Be Hiding Out.

Of course, the assembled dignitaries, after making these statements to disperse the press, could easily have found a new hideout and continued with whatever it was they were talking about.

The committee at this time may be slightly confused by the man power whirligig and desirous of stalling for time. If, by chance, the committee should settle on a complete agreement at the Feb. 2 sessions, their findings will be presented for adoption or adjustment at a joint meeting of the 16 clubs in New York, Feb. 6. Anyway, the committee used up approximately 10,000 rail miles for its three hour session.

The speed with which the meeting was reeled off, and taking it for granted that some progress was made, could indicate either that the majority favored picking up the agreement under which Landis operated or making provisions for eventual drawing up of specific rules which would eliminate the "dictator" feature.

Collins Arrives Late.

Yesterday's meeting was attended by Will Harridge, president of the American league; Ford Frick, president of the National; Jack Zeller, Detroit; Don Barnes, St. Louis Browns; Eddie Collins, Boston Red Sox; Harry Grabiner, White Sox; Joseph Hostetler, American league attorney; P. K. Wrigley, Cubs; Horace Stoneham, New York Giants; Sam Breadon, St. Louis Cardinals; Branch Rickey, Brooklyn, and Warren Giles, Cincinnati. Collins, who arrived late, was subbing for his boss, Tom Yawkey, and Grabiner substituted for Alva Bradley, president of the Cleveland Indians.

Hoosiers Are Beaten, 54-53, by Wolverines

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 5 [Special].—Michigan won a nip and tuck basketball game, 54 to 53, from Indiana tonight after trailing by three points with less than three minutes to play.

Ted Berse, freshman civilian forward, clinched the game in the final 35 seconds as he broke half the length of the floor, took a pass from Walt Kell and shot the game winning basket after Bob Geahan had brought the Wolverines within striking distance with a pitch shot from the corner.

The game gave Michigan an even break in Western conference competition following last week's 44 to 41 overtime loss to Ohio State. The Wolverines will meet Illinois at Champaign in another league game tomorrow night.

Geahan Tops Scorers.

The Hoosiers, apparently bothered by an inability to hit the basket until the late stages of the game, nevertheless pressed Michigan closely thruout the contest. The lead changed hands 10 times.

Geahan, whose shooting eye has returned to him in the last two games, led the scorers with 19 points on eight field goals and three free throws. Indiana's high scoring Gene Faris ran his point output for nine games to 111 with 16 points on seven field goals and a pair of free throws.

The defeat was Indiana's third of the season and followed losses to Kentucky and DePauw.

Almost on Even Terms.

The two teams played on almost even terms in the first half and went out for the intermission with the Wolverines leading by a scant 27 to 25 score. Michigan jumped out in front early in the second half and at one time enjoyed a nine point advantage before Faris and Lanky Al Kralovansky began hitting the basket frequently enough to give Indiana a 53 to 50 lead with less than three minutes of playing time remaining. Kralovansky picked up seven of his 15 points on free throws but missed his last three chances.

TRANS-AMERICA PRO LEAGUE HAS 6 CLUBS ON LIST

Dallas, Tex., Jan. 5 (AP). — The Trans-America Professional Football league is a settled fact and already has six cities enrolled, John F. [Chick] Meehan, head of the new circuit, said today.

Meehan announced before departing for Houston to confer with sports leaders there regarding a possible franchise in the league that Dallas, New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, and Brooklyn had completed arrangements and met all requirements.

"There is nothing tentative about our setup," Meehan, former Syracuse, Manhattan, and New York university coach, said. "These six cities already have been granted franchises, have leased stadiums in which to play, and are eager to start. Two other cities—Denver and Houston—may be added before the league begins operations." He added that Denver and Houston had reported prospects good for entering.

JOIN MICHIGAN AND OHIO ON 4 GAME CARD

Indiana Only Idle Conference Five.

Six Western conference basketball teams—Illinois, Northwestern, Wisconsin, Purdue, Iowa, and Minnesota, will swing into Big Nine title competition tonight while Ohio State is engaging in a second and Michigan a third conference game.

The Big Nine lineup of games tonight is:

Michigan vs. Illinois in Champaign.
Northwestern vs. Wisconsin in Madison.

Indiana Idle in Big Nine.

Indiana, which opened its Big Nine season against Michigan at Ann Arbor last night, thus is the only team which will be idle from conference play.

Michigan and Ohio State ushered in the conference season at Ann Arbor last Saturday when the Buckeyes, defending champions, won in overtime, 44 to 41.

Iowa and Ohio State are rated as slight title favorites, but one of the closest and most spectacular races in conference history is anticipated.

Illini Talent Home Grown.

ILLINOIS—Coached by Doug Mills. Has won seven of eight pre-conference games is depending upon home grown talent. Tonight's starters will be Bob Morton, Elgin, and Howie Judson, Hebron, forwards; Johnny Orr, Taylorville, center; Jim Seyler, Centralia, and Jack Burmaster, Elgin, guards. All five played in Illinois state high school basketball finals, Judson in 1940, Seyler in 1942, Morton in 1943, and Burmaster and Orr in 1944. Walt Kirk and Don Delaney, out with injury and illness, have returned to the squad.

Versus

MICHIGAN—Coached by Bennie Oosterbaan. Won seven straight games for best pre-conference record in five years, before losing Big Nine opener, 44 to 41, to Ohio State at Ann Arbor last Saturday. Bounced back to beat Indiana, 54 to 53, last night. Dick Rifenburg, 6 foot 3 center, and Walt Kell, 5 foot 9 guard from Kankakee, Ill., are key men of team. Must face Illini without services of Reserve Forwards Bill Gregor and Keith Harder, who will be kept at home by navy restrictions.

Morris, Schadler Spark N. U.

NORTHWESTERN — Coached by Arhtur [Dutch] Lonborg. Played only four pre-conference games, winning from DePauw, Marquette, and Western Michigan, but losing to Great Lakes, Max Morris, tall center, and Benny Schadler, high scoring guard, are key men on well balanced team which may go far in Big Nine competition.

Versus

WISCONSIN—Coached by Harold E. [Bud] Foster. Won five of six pre-conference games, defeating Marquette [twice], Lawrence, Iowa Pre-Flight, and Missouri, and losing to Notre Dame. Badgers may be handicapped tonight thru loss of Ray Patterson, veteran forward, who scored 74 points in five games before being hospitalized by illness. Will be replaced by Gene Mathews, 5 foot 5 sparkplug.

Ohio Is Tallest Team.

OHIO STATE—Coached by Harold Olsen. Defending Big Nine champions, and loaded with experience. Tallest team in the conference, with 6 foot 9 center, Arnold Risen, bringing the average up to 6 feet 4. Has an all-conference forward of 1943-'44 in Don Grate. Showed strength in defeating Michigan, 44 to 41, at Ann Arbor in opening conference game.

Versus

PURDUE—Coach by Ward [Piggy] Lambert, dean of Big Nine coaches, who is in his 27th season at Purdue. Lambert coaching, has won 220 of 315 conference games and holds edge over all conference opponents. The 1945 team depends on speed and youthful enthusiasm, and broke even with Notre Dame in two games while splitting six pre-conference games. Key men are Center Paul Hoffman, Bill Gosewehr, and Red Anderson.

Hawkeyes High Scorers.

IOWA—Coached by Lawrence Harrison. Made basketball history by averaging 71.3 points a game in winning all of six pre-conference games, and is favorite, along with Ohio State, in Big Nine race. Dick Ives, individual scoring champion of the conference last season, is back with the Hawkeyes, who defeated Macomb Teachers, South Dakota State, Nebraska, Denver, Notre Dame, and Michigan State in tuning up for conference play.

Versus

MINNESOTA — Coached by Dr. Carl Nordly. The Gopher five is made up of five untried freshmen and one senior, and is the unknown quantity in the Big Nine race. Arnold [Butzy] Lehman is the only experienced player, and Clarence [Kleggie] Hermsen, 6 foot 7 center, is top man among the freshmen.

Probable lineups:

PURPUR LEAVES HAWKS IN DEAL FOR A PHANTOM

Wings Will Send Player at End of Season.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The three hockey gents obtained by the Blackhawks from the Detroit Red Wings in exchange for Earl Seibert have been corraled after a modicum of consternation and will play against Montreal tonight. And that isn't all—Fido Purpur, the Hawks' bouncing forward for four seasons, is in Toronto to join the Red Wings and may play with Detroit against the Leafs tonight.

The three former Detroit chattels, Don Grosso, Butch McDonald, and Cully Simon, joined the Hawks in three instalments. Grosso reported Thursday and worked out with the team, as scheduled. McDonald, who has been playing recently with Indianapolis, reported yesterday morning after helping his team effect a 3 to 3 tie with Buffalo Thursday night. Simon, who failed to show with Grosso, as expected, was located in Toronto by Manager Jack Adams of the Wings and agreed to proceed to Montreal to join the Hawks when he was assured he will get certain bonuses for being a regular with the Wings.

Hank Blade Still Missing.

The Purpur deal developed during the excitement over locating Simon. Fido was not a part of the earlier transaction but went to the Wings in exchange for a player to be agreed upon at the end of the season.

While all this player traffic was going on Hank Blade, who has been under contract with the Hawks following his discharge from the Canadian army, continued as a stray from the fold. He has been located definitely in Ottawa, however, and may be in the Hawks' next home game, against Boston, on Jan. 14. The reason he is in Ottawa, instead of Chicago or Montreal is something about passports.

It's Getting Monotonous.

Tho the swap of Purpur for a phantom skater caused great sorrow in some quarters, the day's developments made Hawk officials comparatively happy, but just for yesterday. Today they will have to fret about facing the Canadiens in the Montreal rink. Including the Stanley Cup finals last spring, the Hawks lost nine games in Montreal last season. They also have lost the two engagements they have played there this winter. Furthermore, the Hawks thus far this season have not won on anybody's ice save their own.

The Canadiens will be bearing down, for they may find themselves out of the league lead if they lose to the Hawks.

Tomorrow night the Hawks will play the Rangers in New York, then will return home to gird or something for the Bruin game on Jan. 14.

HUGH BURNS IS APPOINTED NEW IRISH TRAINER

Notre Dame, Ind., Jan. 5 [Special].—Ed McKeever, acting director of athletics at Notre Dame, announced today the appointment of Hugh Burns as trainer of Irish athletic teams. Burns, who will report within the next 10 days, replaces Eugene [Scrapiron] Young, recently resigned, who had been Notre Dame's trainer for the last 15 years.

Burns was graduated from Notre Dame in 1939 and coached at St. Francis De Sales High school in Chicago for a year before going to Cincinnati, where he has been trainer at Xavier university and coach and trainer at Roger Bacon High school.

DETROIT'S E-B'S BOWL 3433, HIGH SERIES IN NATION

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 5 (AP).—Detroit's E. & B. bowling team, state match game champions, tonight rolled a series of 3433, one pin more than the nation's previous high this season as listed in latest figures by the American Bowling congress.

Three individuals on the team, Fred Bujack, Chet Bukowski, and Capt. Louie Sielaff, each put a 700 series into the total. The series was rolled in a regular match in the Greater Detroit league.

M'Spaden and Byrd Lead in Coast Tourney

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 5 (AP).—Harold McSpaden, defending champion, and the former New York Yankee baseball player, Sam Byrd, shot 1 under par 70s today to tie for first round leadership of the 19th annual 72 hole Los Angeles Open.

McSpaden, of Sanford, Me., coupled a 34 and 36 for the round. Byrd played the 7,000 yard Riviera course in 36-34.

The ex-ball player would have enjoyed the top spot to himself except for bad luck on the first hole. He drove out of bounds, but dropped a 16 footer on the 18th for a birdie 3 to even up for the earlier penalty.

Cards:

Par—Out	544	343	444—35
McSpaden—Out	544	333	444—34
Byrd—Out	644	343	444—36

Only Two to Break Par.

McSpaden and Byrd were the only ones in a field of 132 pros and amateurs to shatter par for the first 18 holes in the $1,333 war bond event, which ends Monday.

Eight, including Sam Snead and Byron Nelson, tourney co-favorites, shot par 71s to tie for second place. The others were Tony Penna, Chick Rutan, John Revolta, Bruce McCormick, Claude Harman, and Ray Mangrum.

Sgt. E. J. Harrison of Wright field, Dayton, O., who won the recent Miami Open, was in a five way deadlock at 72.

Twenty Post 75s.

Twenty of the contestants posted 75s. They included Sgt. Jim Ferrier of Camp Roberts, Cal. P. G. A. Champion Bob Hamilton of Evansville, Ia.; Ed Dudley, Atlantic City; Mike Turnesa; Craig Wood, United States Open champion; Willie Goggin, White Plains, N. Y., and MacDonald Smith.

PRO LEAGUE TO CONSIDER VETO ON EXTRA POINT

The National Football league, a pioneer in wide open play, now is toying with the idea of abolishing the extra point try after touchdown and adopting the sudden death method of breaking ties.

A proposal embracing both innovations is included among 21 rules changes recommended by officials and coaches for consideration at the league's annual winter meeting in Chicago next Tuesday and Wednesday.

George Strickler, league publicity director, explained that the sudden death recommendation—made by Bert Bell, president of the Pittsburgh Steelers, and Coach Earle [Greasy] Neale of the Philadelphia Eagles—calls for overtime periods of 15 minutes' duration with the contest to end when the first touchdown, field goal, or safety is made.

Other recommended changes would ban offensive players from using elbows in blocking an opponent above the shoulders; permit substitutions while time is in, provided the substitution is made and the replaced player off the field before the ball is snapped; abolish the automatic touchback on all kicks which cross the goal line from scrimmage; permit point tries from any point on the field beyond the 2 yard line; allow a T formation quarter back to crouch directly behind the center whether or not he is handling the ball.

HOLD SKATING MEET TODAY IN LINCOLN PARK

The annual skating meet of the bureau of recreation of the board of education will be held today on the north pond of Lincoln park. Contestants in the midget and junior classes will race at 10 a. m., and the intermediates and seniors are scheduled to race at 1:30 p. m.

Herman Fischer, director of the bureau, will referee the finals, divisional meets having qualified the youngsters earlier in the week. Assistant referees are Nicholas Malloy, Fred Schwind, and Walter Sonnenlieter. Other chief officials are John Mock, clerk of course; Louis Baker, finish judges; William Woeltja, timers; Henry Meyer, number clerks; Frank Heidenriech, heat clerks; Herb Rath, patrol judges; Ed Elste, scorers; Edwin Uhligm, marshals; Carl Cramer, first aid, and Norman Preo, announcer.

Decatur, Ill., Jan. 5 [Special.]—Illinois high school basketball players are looking up these days. Veteran coaches say they can't remember a season when so many 6 foot 5 inch [or taller] preps were in action.

George Riley.

Most gigantic of these youngsters is George Riley, son of a former Columbia college basketball great. George, who plays for Decatur High, towers 6 feet 7½ inches. Riley has proved unstoppable so far, scoring 312 points in 15 games, an average of 20.8. His best performance was 29 points against Oak Park, his worst 9 points against East St. Louis.

They Can't Stop Him.

He has been held under 16 points in only two games. They can't stop this galloping basketball machine without fouling him and when they foul him he makes plenty of free throws. Champaign came nearest to solving Riley by rushing the other Decatur players so hard they couldn't make accurate passes to him. Still, he grabbed enough flying basketballs to score 19 points. No wonder Decatur has been able to win 14 of 15 starts.

Next to Riley, probably the state's lengthiest prep players are Danville's Bob Murrin, and Senn's Jack Wulfe, each 6 feet 6½ inches tall. Wulfe was a scoring sensation during the Chicago holiday tournament, which Senn won, and yesterday he slid 14 points over the Lake View defense as the Bulldogs opened their drive in the north section with a 48 to 10 victory.

He's Only a Junior.

To north section fans, Wulfe is reminiscent of last year's star from the same area, Don Rehfeldt of Amundsen High. Rehfeldt, who stood 6 feet 6, is now the regular center at the University of Wisconsin. They predict Wulfe eventually will surpass Rehfeldt as the Senn star is only a junior. Murrin of Danville isn't the scorer that Wulfe is—yet, but, with his height, he can't miss.

The coming giant of prep circles is said to be Dave Allen, who's 6 feet 4, weighs 195, and does his rebounding for Waukegan. He has averaged 11 points in each game, and he's just a sophomore.

The Tribune artist depicts the difficulty a high school basketball player of normal build has to contend with in these days of giants.

Riverside Has Giants.

When it comes to mass production in the height zone, Riverside-Brookfield High, coached by W. A. [Barney], Dudley, the old De Kalb star, is No. 1. There isn't a bigger team in Illinois High school basketball, and some say it's the biggest in history. The five tall boys on Dudley's squad are John Sentz, 6 feet 5; George Schreiber, 6 feet 5; Nutane Reiser, 6 feet 4; Dean Froelich, 6 feet 3; and George McKinley, 6 feet 2½. All but Schreiber are regulars. When they're all in the game at once, Riverside averages 6 feet 4. Another northern Illinois skyscraper is Wheaton's 6 foot 4 inch center, Don Patterson.

OWNER PLANS APPEAL AFTER BAN AT TRACK

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 5 (AP).—Mony de Swaan, Dutch owner of 23 race horses, said today he will appeal to the federal racing commission against a ruling of the stewards at the Hippodromo de las Americas barring his horses permanently from that race track.

The stewards announced they had issued the ruling after an electric battery was found in the hands of Jockey Oscar Pernia just before the featured Ciudad de Mexico handicap on New Year's day, in which Pernia rode Nipsickle, one of the Swaan's horses. De Swaan said he was not given a hearing before the stewards and did not even receive notification of yesterday's meeting at which the decision was rendered.

Chief Steward Edwin J. Brown said Pernia was exonerated since he notified officials that use of the battery was planned. He asserted the stewards had officially notified De Swaan of the meeting.

PAPERS EXEMPT IN BAN AGAINST WIRES ON RACES

Washington, Jan. 5 (AP).—Reclaiming of communications equipment formerly used to disseminate race track information will not affect newspapers and recognized news services in their handling of racing news.

The board of war communications said today a ruling to this effect accompanied yesterday's action by the board and the federal communications commission asking that telephone and telegraph companies recover the facilities and labor employed exclusively or principally in the dissemination of racing information.

"This action by the board and the commission will in no way prevent newspapers and recognized press associations from continuing to use communication facilities for collecting and distributing general news including racing information," a statement by the two agencies said.

The Great Lakes Negro varsity basketball team won its fourth victory in six games in the Midwest Service Men's league last night, trouncing Chicago shore patrol, 63 to 27, in the naval armory in Chicago. Great Lakes led, 27 to 10, at half time, outscoring the shore patrol by a wide margin in the last period. Leroy Pryor, center, led Great Lakes with five baskets and one free throw.

Park District Opens 3 More Ice Skating Rinks

The new rinks are at Kelvyn park, 4438 Wrightwood av.; park 131, Wrightwood and Lockwood avs.; and Amundsen park, 6100 Bloomingdale av. A heavy snow would cause the closing of some rinks, officials said.

CHURCH LEADER ASKS WIRE BAN FOR RACE NEWS

Use of telegraph wires for transmission of race results to this country from Mexico and Cuba defeats some of the purposes of the ban on racing in the United States, the Rev. Henry C. Hoover, pastor of First Congregational church of Berwyn, said yesterday.

As chairman of the commission on civic relations of the Church Federation of Greater Chicago, the Rev. Mr. Hoover commented that "When the telegraph company opens their already overloaded wires to horce racing reports to the United States they are, by so doing, aiding and abetting the forces who would help defeat this war measure.

"As patriotic citizens," his statement continued, "we have accepted without complaint the ban on congratulatory telegrams for births and marriages. But how will the home folks feel when told: 'Sorry, but we cannot receive such telegrams, our lines are too busy with the war effort — reporting the latest victory from the horse racing front."

NEW TRIER FIVE BEATS PROVISO HEAVIES, 48-38

Steve Davis, center on the New Trier High school basketball team, scored 17 points last night to lead the heavies to a 48 to 38 victory over Proviso in Suburban league play. Proviso led, 25 to 24, at the half but was unable to stave off the Winnetka team's second half rally.

It took two overtime periods before Morton's heavyweight team could beat Evanston, 39 to 37. Waukegan trounced the Oak Park heavies, 39 to 23.

In the West Suburban league, Riverside ran up a 24 to 6 half time lead on York to coast to a 36 to 20 victory. The York lightweight team, however, beat Riverside, 24 to 23, in an overtime game.

The La Grange heavyweights, leading Downers Grove, 16 to 11, at the half, won, 30 to 19. Maine's heavyweight team led Glenbard by nine points at the half, 19 to 10, and won, 34 to 28, in the third West Suburban meeting.

Thornton of Harvey rallied to defeat Blue Island, 49 to 46, in a closely contested senior game in the South Suburban league. The Blue Island quintet led, 27 to 21, at the half. Chris Krueger of Blue Island was the leading scorer with 17 points and Gerald Bradley paced the victors with 15 points.

ASKS U.S. AID PLANT SHIFT TO CIVILIAN GOODS

End Useless Curbs, Belknap Urges.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 5.—Charles Belknap, president of Monsanto Chemical company, appealed in an interview today for government policies helpful to post-war reconversion and private enterprise in America when Germany and Japan have been defeated.

"We agree with the government that the first job of industry is to do everything it can toward winning the war and to do nothing that would interfere with this effort," said Belknap, 64, who served in the navy thru World War I.

Asks Wholesome Policy.

"We don't agree with policies restricting the development of new civilian goods that would not interfere with the war effort.

"Washington, D. C., in ruling on applications for materials and man power for industrial projects, is rejecting those which do not contribute to munitions, regardless of whether the projects would detract from production of material. A more wholesome and equitable policy would be to reject only those projects which would detract from war production or in man power available for combat.

"The welfare of industry, the plans for post-war employment, and the preservation of private enterprise are secondary to winning the war. But they are an important secondary consideration of America at this time, and the government should be friendly and not hostile to this secondary consideration."

Wants No Special Favors.

In addition to man power and materials to pilot post-war production of new and improved civilian goods, Belknap said the government's tax policy should be changed so industry can obtain capital from private sources for new and expanded post-war operations. In the manufacture of chemicals, a $17,000 plant investment is required for each new job.

Belknap emphasized he wanted government coöperation for all industrial reconversion preparations and not special favors for his own company. The facts as they apply to Monsanto, however, were readily available and can be cited in support of his argument.

Monsanto, which produced more than 80 million dollars of war materials last year, has plans for a 50 million dollar post-war plant expansion. The labor force is to be increased to 11,000 persons compared with 5,500 in 1939. The plants will manufacture new materials for better civilian goods in a variety of applications. Some materials are now used exclusively for army and navy goods. Some are laboratory discoveries incidental to war research.

Expects Post-War Delay.

"These contributions to the national economy and to national employment will be delayed, in some instances two or three years, unless government permits preparations for post-war to continue in war time," said Belknap. We must create a civilian market for materials now used exclusively for war. We must iron out the production problems by pilot operations, experimenting in the semi-industrial stage.

"The potential civilian processors of these new materials, including several plastics and textile treatments, must be permitted to pilot their production of the final products. The consumer acceptance also must be tested, all before money can be invested safely in new facilities for volume output of new raw materials."

New Products Listed.

Monsanto's new post-war products, as described by the company, will include the following:

A group of compounds for textile treatment, some to keep stockings from running, others to minimize wool shrinkage, to make wool trousers wrinkleproof and permanently creased, with shineless seats, and another to impart water repellent qualities to cotton, rayon, and wool fabrics; a light weight thermoplastic now going into military electronic equipment but with potential applications in automobile parts, household equipment, and business machines; a silica plastic for refrigerator insulation, and various synthetic rubber materials.

Small Corn Liquor Makers Get Part in Holiday Output

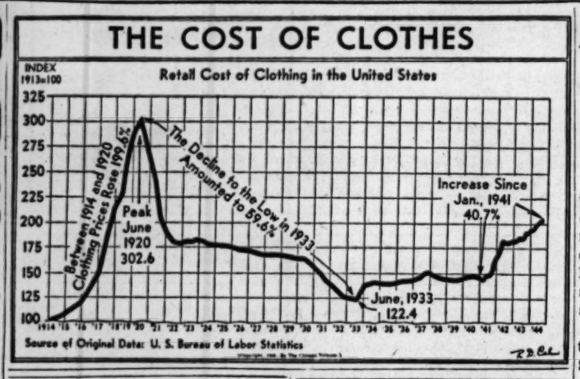

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5 (AP).—The WPB today made it possible for small distillers equipped only to make liquor from corn to participate in the January "holiday." It notified all registered distillers they may use either 50 per cent of their total grain consumption this month in corn or 40,000 bushels of corn, whichever is larger. The order originally limited corn use to 50 per cent of total grain consumption.

Home Federal Savings Boosts Total Resources

Total resources of the Home Federal Savings and Loan association of Chicago rose from $11,675,763 on Dec. 31, 1943, to $15,306,268 on Dec. 31, 1944, Charles A. Zundalek, president, reported yesterday. United States government bond holdings totaled $3,084,996 at the end of 1944, compared with $1,147,200 a year earlier.

New Municipal Loans Top 57 Millions Next Week

New York, Jan. 5 (AP).—Boosted by three large city, housing, and county loans, new state and municipal financing next week will total $57,619,500, the Daily Bond Buyer reported today.

Shipbuilders Set Records in Fiscal Year

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5 [Special].—New records were established under the construction program of the United States maritime commission in the fiscal year ended June 30, with 1,881 ships built aggregating 19,025,231 deadweight tons, the agency said today in its annual report to congress.

The commission said it would be remiss if it did not credit the shipbuilding industry, the shipyard employes, and the suppliers of a wide variety of materials from virtually every state with "a remarkable performance" in reaching their production goals.

Total for 1944 Lower.

Officials said the totals for the fiscal year were not to be confused with the commission's report of last Wednesday which covered the calendar year 1944. Construction in the calendar year aggregated 16,343,436 deadweight tons.

The tonnage difference in the two periods was a result of the shift from the slow Liberty type to the faster Victory ship, conversion for military use, and the construction of special military types for the army and navy, it was said.

Deliveries of special types included combat loaded transports and cargo ships essential for military operations in the Pacific, a number of small cargo carriers of 3,840 deadweight tons for the army and navy, a few large troop ships, aircraft carriers, and frigates for convoy escort service. The wooden vessel program including deck scows, hold scows, large nonself-propelled barges, a few large tugs, and a group of small 65-foot tugs, has been completed.

Defends Concrete Vessels.

Near completion also is the emergency concrete ship construction program. The commission defended the concrete vessels, asserting that "contrary to the feelings of many that the program was useless, the vessels have proven most useful, particularly in military operations."

Some of the concrete barges carried gasoline to the South Pacific area, a number of them are being used as floating warehouses there and others have been completed for refrigerated service for army use.

The commission said no new shipyards were built in the fiscal year, but $31,142,777 was expended in expanding facilities in existing yards.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5 (AP).—The American public spent 11 per cent more in department stores last year than in 1943, the federal reserve board reported today.

A phenomenal rise in store business came in the last six months of the year. A reserve board economist said sales in the first six months were only about 5 per cent above 1943. The sharp upward trend began about D-day, June 6. Finally, in the November-December Christmas shopping season, sales were 17 per cent larger than a year earlier.

Preliminary figures for the 12 federal reserve districts showed percentage increases between 1943 and 1944 as follows: Atlanta district 21 per cent, Dallas 17, St. Louis 13, Kansas City 13, New York 11, Minneapolis 11, Boston 10, San Francisco 10, Philadelphia 9, Cleveland 9, Chicago 9, and Richmond 8.

CHICAGO FIRMS URGED TO ABIDE BY 48 HOUR RULE

The Chicago Association of Commerce yesterday issued a bulletin, the first of a series on man power regulations in effect in the Chicago area, to 10,000 employers urging them to make certain they are complying fully with the 48 hour minimum work week regulation.

It called their attention to War Mobilization Director Byrnes' recent order that companies violating war man power commission regulations be denied materials, fuel, transportation, and rationed goods. The war production board, as a result of this order, issued a regulation warning that priorities and allocations may be withdrawn or modified if WMC regulations were not complied with.

Cook County 1944 Realty Transfers Are Larger

Real estate transfers in Cook county recorded in 1944 totaled 54,978 with a stated value of $64,142,576, compared with 49,254 valued at $60,433,381 in 1943. Last year's totals were largest in number since 1941 and in value since 1939. Trust deeds and mortgages totaled 37,519, valued at $261,391,491, compared with 32,623 and $216,473,536 in 1943.

FARMER SALES OF CORN REACH PEAK FOR YEAR

Farmers sold more than 800,000 bushels of corn yesterday for deferred shipment to Chicago, the largest day's business in more than a year. About 2 million bushels have been sold in the last three days, and buyers could have obtained much larger quantities if they had raised their bids slightly, it was reported.

Hedging sales against purchases of corn from the country depressed futures about ½ cent a bushel at one time, but the market recovered to close unchanged. Wheat was unsettled, but rallied from an early decline and finished ¼ cent lower. Oats gained ⅛ to ¼ cent. Rye was ¼ to ½ cent higher. Barley closed unchanged to ⅛ cent lower

Railroad Suit Ignores Law, Says Fletcher

The justice department's anti-trust suit against the railroads charging violation of the law in rate making is in "utter disregard of the law of the land," Robert V. Fletcher, vice president of the Association of American Railroads, said yesterday.

He told a luncheon meeting of the Executives' club in the Hotel Sherman that congress and the war production board have legalized the so-called conference method of initiating railroad rates during the wa. and "this is no time for either public or private agencies to require an essential industry to answer charges based on a narrow and technical interpretation of the law."

Defendants in the suit, filed in Lincoln, Neb., last August, include the Association of American Railroads, the Western Association of Railway Executives, and 47 western railroads.

File Dismissal Motion.

The western roads contended in a motion for dismissal filed in Lincoln last Tuesday that a 1942 law passed by congress suspended civil anti-trust prosecution of activities certified by the WPB as necessary to the prosecution of the war and that the WPB issued a certificate in March, 1943, approving joint action by railroads on rates.

"We have but one task and that is to win the war," Fletcher said. "I measure my words when I say that it is a tragic thing for men to be charged with violations of law by reason of their doing what the highest authority in the government has approved as being essential to the war effort and in the public interest.

"In this time of war, when it is necessary for the war and navy departments to obtain rate adjustments on short notice, the Association of American Railroads has been functioning as a part of an over-all rate authority, with power to make changes in rates applicable to military traffic when prompt attention is required.

Central Control Needed.

"The officers of the association are in daily contact with the transportation divisions of the army and navy, not only with respect to rates, but with respect to extraordinary movements of special troop trains. Yet the department of justice seeks the dissolution of the association at a time when, without some central organization, we would have a repetition of what happened in World War I., when, as a result of congestions, conflicting orders, and confusion, the war effort was enormously retarded, resulting in government control."

Fletcher argued that the attack on the railroads by the department of justice was in reality an attack on the interstate commerce commission, the war production board, and the army and navy.

He said this statement was justified because the ICC has sanctioned and approved the operation of traffic bureaus and rate conferences for consideration of proposed rate changes; because of the WPB certification; and because the army and navy had urged the WPB to adopt the policy expressed in the certificate.

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Jan. 5 (AP).—The government today promulgated a law adopted by the national convention authorizing Bolivia to contract a 4 per cent loan of $4,420,000 from the United States Export-Import bank for airport construction and improvements.

TAX EXEMPTION ASKED ON RAIL IMPROVEMENTS

Gurley Bases Plea on Competitor Aid.

Fred G. Gurley, president of the Santa Fe railway, yesterday urged that railroads be granted tax exemptions after the war on money spent to make permanent roadway improvements, particularly line and grade changes. He spoke at a joint meeting of the midwest shippers' advisory board and the Traffic Club of Chicago in the Palmer House.

Fred G. Gurley.

Gurley said such assistance to the railroads would only be fair in view of the government aid extended to their competitors on highways, waterways, and airways.

"Why not allow us a tax credit to offset part of the cost of these improvements in our roadway in keeping with the policy under which the federal government matches dollar for dollar the money advanced by the individual states for improvements in highways?" Gurley asked.

Principle Is Well Established.

"Exemption from some or all federal taxes is not a new or unheard of thing. The provision for exemptions in whole or in part to further some alleged public good is well established as a principle of federal tax policy. I need only to mention the total exemption of coöperatives as an example. The different tax rates for different net income levels is another example."

Gurley said he was opposed in principle to federal aid to the various transportation agencies, but because it does exist he believed it would be fair to offer railroads tax exemption as their aid.

He emphasized, however, that he wanted no part of any scheme which even would approach putting the government in the railroad business. He would prefer that each transportation agency stood on it own feet, eliminating payments from the pockets of taxpayers.

The railroads for years have been reducing grades and curves, but must obtain capital for new improvements from rates charged for their services, he said.

Tells Aid to Other Carriers.

The government has spent large amounts for improving streams for the benefit of waterway carriers, Gurley said. For the airways it has installed air terminals, beacons, and other safety devices. And for the truckers it has built new highways and improved old ones, and plans similar aid after the war.

L. M. Betts, manager of the railroad relations section of the Association of American Railroads, said the military situation indicated demands on industry probably would be heavier this year, which meant the railroads probably would continue to operate at their maximum. He said the freight car supply situation was a little better than last year. The railroads obtained 40,000 freight cars in 1944, compared with 26,000 in 1943, and 900 locomotives, compared with 500. He said prospects were fair for obtaining 48,000 cars this year.

Profit Cashing Turns Stocks Lower After 6 Day Advance

New York, Jan. 5 (AP). — Assorted rails and industrials remained strong in today's stock market, but large-scale profit cashing on the recent six day advance pushed the list irregularly lower.

Inflation sentiment based on long-war spending, talk of stock splitups, mergers, and dividends bolstered individual favorites. Many customers, however, decided that a technical correction was overdue and trimmed or shelved their accounts. Dealings were lively from the start.

Average Dips 0.2 Point.

The Associated Press 60 stock composite was off 0.2 point at 58.9, first recession since Dec. 27. It was another broad market, 982 issues registering. Of these, 415 were down, 340 up, and 227 unchanged. Transfers of 1,798,330 shares compared with 1,826,740 Thursday.

New York Central was most active and ended up ⅝. Norfolk and Western rose 7½ points to 234½ on odd-lot deals. Among gainers of 1 to 2 were Allied Chemical, Chesapeake and Ohio, and Boeing. Modest advances were retained by American Telephone, Standard Oil [N. J.], Armour, Wilson & Co., and du Pont.

RAIL BONDS CLIMB

New York, Jan. 5 (AP).—Rail loans swung higher in today's bond market which rolled up a volume of $22,141,400, largest since Feb. 15, last year, against $21,115,600 Thursday. Industrial and utility corporates were generally steady.

Leading the upsurge in the rail division with closing gains of 1 to about 3 points were various issues of the Monon system, Denver and Rio Grande, Lehigh Valley, New York Central, New Haven, Northern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific, and Southern Railway.

More than $1,820,000 face value of Alton 3s were traded on a rise of 1½ points.

CHICAGO LIST STRONG.

Prices advanced again on increased turnover of 54,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Leaders included Armour & Co., which closed up ⅛ on a new 1944-'45 high of 7; Libby, McNeill, up ⅛, and Chicago corporation common and Peabody Coal, both unchanged. Other highs included Goldblatt Brothers, up 1⅝, and North West Utilities prior lien, up 2.

Rails Estimate November Net Profit Higher

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5 (AP).—The Association of American Railroads today announced that class 1 railroads in November had an estimated net income, after interest and rentals, of $63,900,000, compared with $63,347,988 in November, 1943.

The report said for the first 11 months of 1944, estimated net income was 627 million dollars compared with $838,877,492 for the corresponding 1943 period

Operating Revenues Rise.

Operating revenues for November were $780,672,489 compared with $761,993,806 in November, 1943, and operating expenses $524,449,672 compared with $502,191,518.

Total operating revenues for the first 11 months of 1944 were $8,679,932,149 compared with $8,272,347,276, an increase of 4.93 per cent. Operating expenses for the first 11 months were $5,726,193,980 compared with $5,057,982,983, an increase of 13.21 per cent.

Rate of Return Lower.

The announcement said that in the 12 months ended Nov. 30, 1944 the rate of return on property investment [the value of road and equivalent as shown by the books of the railway including materials, supplies, and cash] averaged 4.02 per cent, compared with a return of 5.42 per cent for the 12 months ended Nov. 30, 1943.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5 (AP).—Railroad freight loadings in 1944 totaled 43,441,266 cars, an increase of 1,001,315 cars, or 2.4 per cent, over 1943, the Association of American Railroads said today.

Loadings by commodities and the percentage of increase or decrease, compared with 1943, were: Grain and grain products, 2,521,262, down 4.8 per cent; live stock, 892,114, up 6.5; coal, 8,937,856, up 5.1; coke, 750,825, down 0.1; forest products, 2,271,993, up 1.9; ore, 2,648,892, down 5.9; merchandise [less than carload lots], 5,423,033, up 6.8.

Cars of revenue freight loaded in the week ended last Saturday totaled 584,757, a decrease of 177,692 cars or 23.3 per cent, compared with the preceding week and of 58,687 cars or 9.1 per cent, compared with the corresponding 1944 week.

BLACK MARKET INFLATION PERIL WARNING GIVEN

Controls to Mount, Says Cherne.

The real threat of black market inflation lies ahead, Leo M. Cherne, executive secretary of the Research Institute of America, said last night at the National Retail Furniture association's annual dinner in the Stevens hotel. He predicted several months of peak military output in 1945, stiffening of war time controls, and increased restrictions on civilian economy.

Earlier, an office of price administration move to clarify a furniture pricing muddle was termed "a squeeze against retailers" by a retail furniture spokesman.

Both statements came in connection with the midwinter home furnishings market in the American Furniture Mart and the Merchandise Mart.

Inflationary Pressure Rising.

"OPA must grapple anew with a problem that seemed to be licked," Cherne said. "Increasing shortages plus bulging consumer pocketbooks spell strong inflationary pressure. Moreover, shortages at the retail and wholesale levels put the squeeze on dealers to stock up at black market prices."

He predicted that widespread shortages of almost everything in 1945 would lead to endless hearings by congressional committees on why this or that is short. Poor distribution will be the key to some shortages, he said, but the OPA is reluctant to do more rationing. In some lines, textiles for example, the supply has become so small that rationing is impracticable.

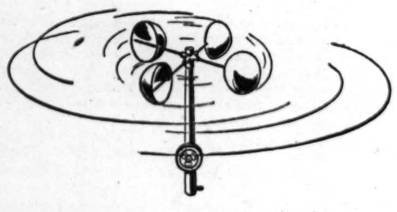

It was the textile shortage which led to the charge of "squeeze" laid against the OPA. To help furniture manufacturers meet the upholstering fabric shortage retailers have been buying coverings for use on furniture ordered by them. OPA men said that overcharging has resulted because of the lack of a pricing formula applying specifically to such cases.

New Pricing Order Discussed.

At a closed meeting between OPA officials and furniture retailers a new pricing order covering this problem was discussed. Essentially the ruling provided that the retailer must use as his cost figure the price the manufacturer would have charged for a piece of upholstered furniture had he supplied the covering.

But because of the shortage of coverings retailers have been forced to compete for such fabrics on a market with which they are unfamiliar and a "speculative scramble for fabrics" has resulted, Louis S. Bing Jr., past president of the re-

The unimpeachable test of an advertising service comes when a hurricane of competition is met, when selling really becomes difficult, when the public is not in a mood to buy what you have to sell.

Going to Buy a Radio?

Nationwide surveys reveal that a radio is one of the first things millions of families will buy for their homes after the war. Many will buy a radio before anything else!

If a radio is near the top of your "postwar" buying list, here are a few tips on what to look for before you make a choice. Crystal-clear reception that seems to bring your favorite stars right into the room with vibrant richness of tone. Improved FM (Frequency Modulation). More faithful reproduction of records. Sturdy, battle-born construction that means better listening longer. Cabinets styled to fit the personality of your home.

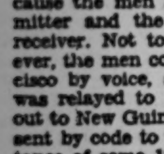

All these finer radio features are part and parcel of each Majestic Radio and Radio-Phonograph. Years of experience, plus all the tested, war-born Electronic improvements—many of these results of Majestic's own research—will be your guarantee of better listening with Majestic. Your choice will be both easy and wise when you choose Majestic.

Danny Kaye, movie singer and mimic, bowed into radio with his own show Jan. 6. With Danny, as straightman and music maestro, will be the popular trumpeter, Harry James and Lionel Stander, comedian.

Round Trip Via Radio

The shortest distance between two points isn't always a straight line, or not in this case anyway. It seems a communications unit on Leyte had to contact a ship lying 200 yards offshore. Blinker signals were out because of the hazard of enemy interception. And radio contact was impossible because the men had a voice transmitter and the ship had a code receiver. Not to be stymied, however, the men contacted San Francisco by voice, and their message was relayed to Australia, shuttled out to New Guinea, and from there sent by code to the ship . . . a distance of some 18,629 miles all in a matter of five minutes!

BLACK MARKET INFLATION PERIL WARNING GIVEN

tail furniture association, commented after the meeting.

"The situation should be corrected immediately by having a joint meeting of government officials, fabric manufacturers, fabric jobbers, and furniture manufacturers in the hope that a single markup formula can be established for the marketing of covers," he said.

"Correction" Criticized.

"We retailers believe the burden of correction in the cover situation should not be just a squeeze against retailers and their markup, but should be approached on an industry wide basis. The order puts the price adjustment wholly on the retailer's shoulders."

Bing was named 1944 winner of the Cavalier award. One of the industry's top recognitions, the award has been given since 1936 to "the merchant, who best served his industry, his country, and his community."

Edwin B. Spangenthal, newly elected president of the National Retail Furniture association, warned at last night's dinner that distribution costs may increase after the war, but said increased consumption would be assured if prices were kept down.

O'MAHONEY ASKS WEIGHT RISE, NO CATTLE CEILINGS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5 (AP).—Sen. O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.] today urged OPA to abandon its proposals for ceiling prices on live cattle and initiate a program to increase the average weight of animals to be slaughtered in 1945. He said this would be the best solution to the problem of increasing the meat supply.

In a letter to Price Administrator Bowles commenting on Bowles' assertion that the meat supply in the next three months would be 10 to 15 per cent less than in either the first or last quarter of 1944, O'Mahoney said 2,100,000 more cattle were slaughtered in the first 11 months of 1944 than a year earlier, but their weight was 30 pounds less per animal.

O'Mahoney said the reason for this was that cattle feeders limited their operations because of the original price rollback program. He described the ceiling plan as a "second rollback on top cattle," which "can only bring about a further decline in feeding . . . and in the average weight of beef animals."

PRICES OF HOGS MOVE HIGHER AS RECEIPTS DROP

Packers paid a 5 cent higher average price of $14.65 a hundred pounds for the hog supply at the Chicago stock yards. This was only 5 cents less than the highest average since October, 1943. Early buyers paid the $14.75 ceiling price but most of the supply moved late at $14.60 to $14.70.

Sheep and lambs cleared quickly at some of the highest prices in more than six months. Numerous shipments of fed western lambs sold at the $15.60 top price, which equaled the highest price since June.

Steers, yearlings, bulls, and calves were steady. Heifers, cows, canners, and cutters ran counter to the trend and slumped 25 cents or more on final rounds.

15 UNION AIDS WIRE PLEDGE TO AVOID STRIKES

Officers of 15 midwestern locals of the American Communications association [CIO] telegraphed President Roosevelt, Secretary Stimson, and Gen. Eisenhower yesterday their unions would oppose work stoppages or strikes in the telegraph industry for the duration of the war.

An election of a collective bargaining representative began Wednesday among 60,000 Western Union employes, ACA officials said, and will end Jan. 8.

Results will not be known until Jan. 23 in Washington, D. C., the officers said, but they added that "regardless of which union wins . . . the public and the armed forces are entitled to a guarantee against war time strikes."

The competing union on the ballot is the Commercial Telegraphers' union [AFL].

CHICAGO SAILOR SEES WAC SISTER AT NEW GUINEA

Two Chicagoans in service, a brother and sister who hadn't seen one another for 2½ years, held a Christmas day reunion on New Guinea thousands of miles from home, Vincent T. Bartak, 34, the brother, wrote his wife, Tessivel, 3833 Pioneer av. His sister is Sgt. Stephanie Bartak, 10507 Perry av. When Bartak, a machinist's mate in the navy, went ashore Christmas day he found his sister on duty in a WAC communications office.

Expect Challenged Votes to Decide Union Election

The CIO United Auto Workers' union yesterday polled 789 votes and its rival AFL union 765 in an election among 1,819 employes of Revere Copper and Brass, Inc., to select a bargaining representative. Robert Rissman, chief field examiner of the national labor relations board, said disposition of 54 challenged ballots would be necessary to determine the winner, since neither side had polled a required majority of 810.

URGE 5 CHANGES IN RELIEF LAWS; 29,274 ON ROLLS

Officials Seek More Federal Aid.

George J. Klupar, Chicago welfare commissioner, reporting the city relief roll dropped again in December for the 52d consecutive month, to 29,274 persons, said yesterday that the state legislature which opened yesterday will be urged to consider changes in welfare administration.

More than 8,000 persons have been dropped from relief here since last January when the count was 37,561, and Klupar said that practically no employable persons remain on the rolls. The majority are old or infirm, or both, he said, and the list includes 4,000 cases in which the city relief agency supplements state aid to dependent children grants.

Advance Five Proposals.

Klupar and other welfare leaders, it was learned, will push for action on at least five proposals, as follows: [1] To remove the state requirement for citizenship as qualification for old age pensions, [2] provide adequate grants for aid to dependent children, [3] adjust Chicago's 6 million dollar annual pegged levy for relief so that the state would assume more of the relief cost, [4] unify the various state welfare laws to prevent confusion, and [5] increase the maximum of 10 per cent of total relief cost now allowed for administrative expense.

Removal of the citizenship requirement would admit 1,500 Chicagoans to old age pensions who must now be cared for thru general relief at a cost of $720,000 a year, Klupar said.

Means More U. S. Aid.

The city and state now share the entire cost of these cases. If they could receive old age pensions the federal government would match state pension grants dollar for dollar in all but a few special cases and so save $360,000 a year in local and state funds, Klupar explained.

Inadequate state grants for aid to dependent children throw extra burden on local relief and cause confusion, it was said, since local relief supplements the inadequate state aid. It is proposed that the state increase the children's grants and that the cases be administered entirely thru the Cook county bureau of public welfare and county agencies downstate. This would remove 4,000 cases from the Chicago welfare administration and eliminate $1,800,000 a year from its grants.

More State Aid Sought.

Under Chicago's pegged levy for relief, Klupar continued, the state pays only the relief cost in excess of 6 million dollars a year, whether it be the peak cost of $30,000,000 or the $9,800,000 spent in 1944, leaving three-fifths of the cost on the city. The total is expected to be only $7,500,000 in 1945. The state should pay more than the $1,500,000 over the peg, Klupar contends.

The 10 per cent administrative maximum should be raised, Klupar said, because, as the relief roll declines, the proportionate cost of administration rises.

CIO UNION PURGE HITS 14 CRITICS OF PAC SPENDING

Victims Opposed High Political Outlay.

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 5 [Special].—Officers of Nash-Kelvinator local 13, CIO United Automobile Workers' union, it was disclosed here today, are seeking to revoke the union membership of 14 members who criticized the expenditure of union funds for political action committee purposes in last fall's campaign.

The intended purge victims are accused of "conduct unbecoming union members" because they divulged to the press their charges that the union officials had exceeded their authority by making larger expenditures for candidates indorsed by the PAC than had been approved by the membership.

The 14 defendants have obtained legal counsel and are fighting to retain their membership because their jobs depend on remaining in good standing in the local.

Signed Statement.

The union critics had signed a statement shortly before the Nov. 7 election charging that Donn Hackett, president of the local, and Odell Z. Lamb, financial secretary, used union funds without the knowledge and approval of the members. They conceded that the membership had empowered the officers to use certain sums to aid the PAC, but contended that the officers had made additional unauthorized expenditures.

Lamb Beaten for Senate.

Lamb, a former Mount Pleasant college professor, was a Democratic candidate for the state senate but was decisively defeated by the veteran Republican senator, Harry F. Hittle of Lansing.

Targets of the Nash union's ouster action were listed as Forest E. Mohr, E. D. Cheney, L. C. Phelps, L. P. Morse, M. Nummer, Howard R. Morehouse, James Simko, H. Wouters, R. S. Harper, M. Halsey, Melton Colby, George D. Kethum, C. Cole, and O. G. Langham, all signers of the statement.

PLOESER URGES HIS PRICE PLAN FOR LIVE STOCK

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5 (AP).—Rep. Ploeser [R., Mo.] today urged Stabilization Director Vinson to adopt a live stock price program he suggested in 1943 to lessen the meat shortage.

Ploeser said a crisis prevails because federal agencies failed to plan a workable program for the war period. He suggested to Vinson, the OPA, and the war food administration in July, 1943, a plan which provided in part that the cattle feeder be permitted a "proper" margin for feeding of heavier and better beef cattle and that grain and miscellaneous feed costs be adjusted to encourage production of weightier animals.

Can't Cry

JEAN MORGAN.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 4 (AP).—Jean Morgan can't cry like a baby any more.

Jean used to make her living doing that. She'd wrinkle her face and wail into a microphone with a tiny voice remindful of junior the time he sat down hard on an open safety pin.

Warned Sweetheart First, Says Caller.

Testimony of a new witness in the shooting Wednesday afternoon in the home of Lawrence Eaton, 17, of 216 Franklin st., Waukegan, disclosed yesterday that Eaton had warned his sweetheart, Rita Gibbons, 18, that he was going to shoot her just before the shot was fired, Assistant State's Atty. Harry P. Breger announced.

Eaton, out on $10,000 bond and scheduled to appear in court Jan. 18 for a preliminary hearing on two charges of assault with deadly weapon, was conversing by telephone with Gloria Richardson, 16, of 421 South av., when Miss Gibbons was shot in the neck by Eaton, Breger said.

Hears Shooting Threat.

According to the prosecutor, Miss Richardson made a statement to police yesterday in which she said she telephoned Eaton about 4:30 p. m. Wednesday and that when he answered the phone she knew he had been crying. After they had talked a moment, she told police, she heard Eaton say:

"Stay away from me or I'll shoot."

"After a couple of seconds I heard a gun shot, Rita screamed, and the receiver clicked," Breger quoted Miss Richardson as saying. She said she called back a few seconds later, and after the phone rang several times, Rita answered and screamed that she was shot and needed help.

Hastens to Shooting Scene.

Miss Richardson called a cab and hastened to the Eaton home, she said, and then rode to the hospital with the Gibbons girl in the ambulance which arrived at the home at the same time.

Statements also have been taken from Nolin [Doc] Dunn, 18, of 615 North av., who was threatened by Eaton in a drug store after he had shot the Gibbons girl; Dunn's sister, Rosemary, 16, who had been in the Eaton home before the shooting, and Dale Rasmussen, 16, of 633 N. County st., who had stayed all night with Eaton on Tuesday.

Eaton, an amateur artist, had been "feuding" with Nolin because Nolin refused to invite Eaton to a party. Earlier the two had been rivals over the same girl. The shooting was a climax of a drinking party during which Eaton threatened to "get" Nolin. Miss Gibbons was shot, Eaton confessed, because she tried to take his father's gun from him as he prepared to leave the house to "kill Nolin."

Miss Gibbons was reported last night to be "improving" in Victory Memorial hospital.

BOB HOPE SIGNS RADIO CONTRACT 'FOR MILLIONS'

Comedian Bob Hope has signed a new 10 year contract with his radio sponsor, the Pepsodent division of Lever Brothers, Charles Luckman, president of the division, said yesterday. It was disclosed that the new agreement provides "a considerable increase" in Hope's compensation and was "understood to be for nearly as many millions as years." Hope has been on the air for the same sponsor for seven years. Luckman praised Hope for his "morale building among members of the military services." He added that since 1941 Hope and his troupe have traveled approximately a million miles to entertain soldiers and sailors.

CONKLING LAUDS CHOICE OF NEW BRITISH PRIMATE

Bishop Wallace E. Conkling of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago yesterday praised the choice of the Rt. Rev. Geoffrey Francis Fisher, bishop of London, to become archbishop of Canterbury and spiritual head of the Anglican communion thruout the world. "It was a very good choice," said Bishop Conkling. "I have heard many fine things about him and had understood that he probably would be nominated by King George VI. The only fear I have for him is that he is not physically strong enough for the arduous work of archbishop of Canterbury. But they said that of him when he became bishop of London in 1939, and he has been going along all right."
